Glenn not out of Politics.

Former Governor Glenn has let it be known that he is not yet ready to enter the political arena, and that it is more likely that he will be called to the United States Senate some time in the future. The ex-governor was in Washington Sunday following the interview with him in Monday's Washington Post.

Former Governor Robert B. Taylor, of North Carolina, may be a candidate for one of the Senatorial seats at the disposal of his State some time in the future. Between his speeches in local churches yesterday in the interest of the Anti-Slavery League of the District of Columbia, the former executive of the local State found time to speak on politics.

WHAT WILL A CREAMERY DO FOR ANSON COUNTY?

Much interest is being manifested here among persons who have investigated the matter in the proposition of the Chicago Building and Manufacturing Co. to erect a co-operative creamery here. Messrs. Bridges & Simmons, representing the company in Wadesboro and some of the arguments made by them in favor of the creamery are given below: "When we take into consideration the fact that no country, town or precinct are any richer than the land around them we can appreciate the need of soil building. The soil is a costly gift to man and when he degrades it he shows a neglectful appreciation of that gift. Every thoughtful man must know that the soil is being depleted year by year by the indiscriminate use of commercial fertilizer, for which product today the State is paying $10,000,000 yearly. In people in the State are paying 33 cents per pound for 1,000,000 pounds of creamery butter all of which comes from the north, produced in ways that are kept in barns seven months in the year and a great many of which with cotton seed shipped from the south, where cows can be kept in the open from nine to twelve months in the year. The State of Pennsylvania buys more cotton seed than any state in the United States, and don't grow a pound of it. It goes to prove its merits as a fertilizer. "The south is buying millions of dollars worth of cream each season at an average price of one dollar per hundred. This cream does not carry but two pounds of butter to the gallon and a large percentage of this cream is coming from the north. The average price of home churned butter through the year will not exceed 20 cents per pound. With a creamery the co-operative plan, situated in Wadesboro and taking the milk from farmers for a distance of six or eight miles in each direction a market would be opened up for the sale of an unlimited amount of butter at an average price to the farmers of not less than 30 cents per pound. This is an opportunity whereby the small farmer as well as the large one could get more cows, thereby enriching the soil and preparing the land for a better production of a diversified crop which must come."

Misses Virginia Stanback of Manum and Bessie Dockery of Wadesboro are the charming guests of Mrs. T. Usher of Livelien. Mr. T. R. Tomlinson, who bought the J. L. Wyatt's building and lot, is expected to be in Wadesboro, and having an arch way cut to connect it with his store and use it for a millinery house. Miss Whipp is in charge. The Wyatt building has a glass front with skylight 14 ft by 6 ft.

Everyone knows the after effects of La Grippe are often more dangerous than the disease. So often it leads to pneumonia with a weakened heart action unless a La Grippe cough that strain and drain the system yield quickly to the strong and strengthening qualities of Dr. J. C. GEN. ATLAS J. DARGAN.

BY JUDGE BENNETT.

When a young man, Dargan had many eccentricities. There is a tradition, in Henry county, Tennessee, that he exchanged rilly with a poetic young woman who asked him if, when the gentle zephyr fanned the flush from the cheek, did he not love to chase the hummingbird from flower to flower and gather incense. He said he did not know about that, "But if you give me a crooked stick and put me behind a toad frog I can come as near making him jump himself to death as any man living."

Having gotten license to practice law, he began at Paris, Tennessee, his first care being employed by a hog driver who, upon the false pretense of having a drove of hogs coming on, obtain loans. Being arrested and bailed before old man Jimmy Haines, he engaged Dargan, in the absence of other attorneys, and cautioned him to speak a long time and very loudly. The trial was going on, Dargan at the top of his voice, when the town butcher exclaimed: "Hurrah for Dargan!" Just then the alarm went up, "The prisoner is gone." Dargan saw his chance away down the road towards Wadesboro, Kentucky, going like the wind, on his red roan mare.

The death of his mother was the occasion of the dispersion of the family to various all the points of the compass—Edmund Dargan to Mobile, becoming Chief Justice of Alabama; Tim to the Atchepella country, in Louisiana; Colonel Jack to the races, after serving in our Legislature from Montgomery.

Atlas told me his father, coming home from a tour of the churches, found Colonel Jack's race horses in his lot, and at once set all the dogs that he could whistle up after them. Viciously, he did not look upon the deeds of abomination with any allowance.

Though blessed with a glorious person, every development of body inviting pleasure, his descent from Godly parents ingrained a deep strain of superstition.

His imagination penetrated to the exalted heights where God upon his great white throne suffered the purblind to see darts. As boy, man, citizen, statesman, loyal son of the universe, he loved the master and feared no evil. No man more highly exalted virtue or revered more precious healing than this man, he was guided by his birthright of strength, animal spirits and capacity to entertain the delusion of life and join the liveried partnership of bankrupt sin.

"Bennett, there is nothing comparable to a well ordered life. Vice with its evils will produce itself, while virtue, uncorrected by spontaneous gestation, observes the line of march of a great first cause. It is rendering a great service to humanity when a man, excited by intellectual capacities above his fellow men, holds out to them in his own person the example of a blameless life."

He worshipped virtue, but disfigured his life with inconsistencies.

Wants Husband's Wages.

New York, March 15.—"When I married Sam," said Mrs. Fanny Bookbinder today in police court, "he promised to provide for me and last night his pay envelope was 30 cents short." Mrs. Bookbinder is a bride of eight days. Although she has a personal bank account of $1,000 which she refuses to share with Sam, she haled him into court on representations that he had treated her cruelly. "Sam makes $20 a week," she continued, "and I want every cent of it. If he needs anything I'll get it for him. I know what's due a wife and that's why I brought him here." "Suppose your husband wants a cigar?" suggested the magistrate. "I'll buy it for him," repeated Mrs. Bookbinder firmly. The magistrate laughed outright. "You go home and make up your mind," he said, "to do as your husband tells you and take what he gives you. And don't come before me again with such ridiculous charges. Case dismissed." The pair left court, arm in arm, and there was no sign of a cloud to dim their honeymoon.

AN INTERESTING PLAN TO INDUCE FARMERS TO COME TO ANSON COUNTY.

Communicated.

Perhaps one of the most interesting plans ever adopted by business men of any county to induce good tenant farmers who own, or can own, their own stock to locate and become permanent settlers is just now taking shape in Anson county.

A stock company is being formed for the purpose of buying up farming lands and dividing it in small farms. These farms to be sold to the tenant farmers on rental basis of 15 years, that is, the company will say to good farmers, "You may contract with us to pay one-fifth of the cotton or one-fourth of the corn which you produce for a term of 15 years," the company making a deed for the land to the farmer at once, so that he will surely know the land is his, if he promptly pays the rent.

This scheme is sure to bring to this county thousands of good farmers from all over the south, for there are tens of thousands of tenant farmers, some of whom, have been renting land for thirty years, others 20 years and others 15 years. Young married men, just starting in their first year on the farm, will pay one-fourth of what they produce on the average all their lives, and never have a home of their own. The 30-year renters will say, "Anson county is a good place, in this county they could have owned the farm they have been renting so long, twice over, and while I am an old man, and will not live out the fifteen years, I can start in and the children can keep up the payments of the rent when I am dead, and in this way I can help to leave them a home of their own." The young man just starting out as a renter will reason this way: "Here is the opportunity for me to own a home instead of renting all my life. My father has rented for fifteen years and paid the rents promptly every year, if he had had such an opportunity as this, he could have owned his farm by this time, and would have had no more rents to pay."

It will be a great advantage to the county, because the men who would otherwise be renters, and therefore not very much interested in improving the farms, will work to keep up the farms, because they will realize that the farms are to be their own, and all improvements they put upon them will be enhancing the value of their own property.

The promoters of this plan say there is profit enough in this enterprise to justify them in giving the farmers such an extraordinary inducement. The company will start out with a charter allowing them to have a capital of $125,000. The shares to be $10 each, and no doubt all those interested in the up-building of the county will take one or more shares in this worthy undertaking.

Mr. John W. Guledge has been employed to draw up and secure the charter for the corporation.

HUSBAND SHOTS DOWN WIFE.

Clasde Young of Rockingham Crawls From Bed and Fires Upon His Wife While She is Talking to Doctor Platt Covington.

Rockingham Dispatch, 16th.

This morning about 9 o'clock Clasde Young shot and almost instantly killed his wife at their home on Rabbit Hill, a suburb of Rockingham, using a single-barrel shotgun for the deed.

For two or three days Young has been confined to his home with grip, a times being irrational. Dr. Platt W. Covington, his family physician, had been attending him, and at 8:30 called and found him dressed. Young said he was better and refused to go to bed. The doctor made ready to leave and was standing in the doorway of the side of Mrs. Young giving her some directions concerning the sick man. Suddenly and without warning Young fired the gun, being only five feet away.

It is not known whether the shot was fired at his wife or the doctor. The entire load took effect in the body of Mrs. Young, going in at the right side. She reeled back into the room, Dr. Covington catching her as she fell. In ten minutes she was dead. Just as she fell Young's mother and brother, Oscar, drove up and were present when Mrs. Young died.

Dr. Covington says the man seemed to be entirely rational before the tragedy occurred, though he insisted that he was not sick. He is a drinking man, but for the past three months he has been quite sober. The doctor says the deed was done as a result of alcoholic epilepsy.

Young is a carpenter, about 30 years old, and is a brother of Henry Young, who was pardoned from a sentence in the penitentiary for killing a man at Hamlet while drunk several years ago, and has been here just a few weeks. Another brother is the chief of police here.

Mrs. Young told Dr. Covington while he was talking with her that her husband had made threats against her since being sick, but she paid no attention to them. She was the daughter of Mr. John Robbins and was about 26 years old. Four small children are left behind.

The coroner's verdict was that the deed was committed while Young was temporarily insane. Young was left at home under guard, the physician claiming that he was in no condition to be arrested and locked up. The enormity of the crime does not seem to have dawned upon him.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invariably bring relief to women suffering from chronic constipation, head ache, biliousness, dizziness, salivaceousness and dyspepsia. Sold by Parsons Drug Co.
