The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism can withstand hunger but not dyspepsia. The confirmed dyspeptie "is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils." The man who goes to the front for his country with a weak stomach will be a weak soldier and a fault finder. SCIENCE AND AFTER LIFE. Conservation of Energy Demands

Continuance of Soul. [Dr. Gullie, of Michigan University.] Our life is a constant growth of the human intellect, closely connected with the development of the body. But we know that there is a continuous interchange of cells, decaying and forming, and yet, though the living tissues may in the course of time be entirely renewed, the individnal continues to exist; it remains one and the same. But even the matter and energy which have been given off from the living body have not disappeared; they are stillgin existence, though disconnected from the lifegiving principle. Should we not demand that there should be a similar conservation for the invisible part of our life? I have not the power to describe what the life after death is; the intellect will not tell us.

While I have to content myself with the assertion that mind is as indestructible as matter and energy, my firm belief in evolution and in an orderly plan of the universe leads me to doubt that there can be any retrogression in its development. I believe my spirit will after death be more advanced in all its characteristics of the human soul.

And thus I find no difficulty whatever in believing in a personality embracing the whole universe and intimately blended with the marvelously intricate system of material bodies, a personality different from ours, it is true, but since I form a part of it, the city. one of the same nature as my own, only grander, wiser, more powerful and more just. In conclusion, let me say that the views here advanced were not obtained by adherence to any theological or philosophical dogma, but were the result of a purely scientific search after a word picture which would satisfy not only the intellect, but the hu-

But Lost All Hope of Cure-Grew Worse and Worse in Spite of Many Doctors and Three Years of Hospital Treatment - Inflammation Made Her Almost Crazy with Pain.

CURED BY TWO SETS OF CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I began to have an itching over my whole body about seven years ago and this settled in my limb, from the knee to the toes. I went to see a great many physicians, a matter which cost me a fortune, and after I noticed that I did not get any relief that way, I went for three years to the hospital. But they were unable to help me there. I used all the medicines that I could see but here a worse and worse. I had an inbecame worse and worse. I had an in-flammation which made me almost crazy with pain. When I showed my foot to my friends they would get really frightened. I did not know what to do, I was so sick and had become so nervous that I positively lost all hope.

"I had seen the advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies a great many times but could not make up my mind to buy them, for I had already used so many medicines. Finally I did decide to use the Cuticura Remedies and I tell you that I was never so pleased as when I noticed that, after having used two sets of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills, the entire inflammation had gone. I was completely cured. I should be only too glad if people with a similar disease would come to me and find out the truth. I would only

Kissing among members of the family is hygienically permissible, fortunately. It is, of course, through the transmission of bacteria that kissing is harmful. But each family has its own domesticated bacteria, as it were, of the same species as those inhabiting other people, but somewhat by constant interchange. Against these each member of the family in a measure is immune. TO BLOW UP LEE STATUE.

That is the Plot Reported Annoymously from New York,

Washington, April 13 .- Warning was received in Washington today of a plot formed in New York to blow up with dynamite the statue of Gen. Robt. E. Lee, placed in statuary hall at the United States Capitol by the State of Virginia. The staue represents General Lee in the Confederate uniform in which he served. There have been protests from some Grand Army of the Republic and other Union organizations against the statue, and Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, has made several speeches protesting against its presence.

Secret service men and the Capitol and Washington police were at once notified of the letter, which purported to have been written by a man who overheard the discussion of the details of the plot in a saloon in Cortlandt, street New York. The police were not disposed to regard the threat

Signing himself "A Law-Abiding Citizen of New York," the writer of the letter stated that he overheard the conversation in the saloon, where six or eight men were discussing the matter. Four of the men were to go to Washington to blow up the statue, according to their plans. They were to get $200 each and their expenses,

AN INDIAN MEDICINE WHEEL.

An interesting relic of a prehistoric people has just been discovened in the Big Horn Mountains, in Wyoming, by mining prospectors. It is known as the "medicine wheel," is looked upon by the Indians as sacred, and is held in veneration by all the tribes of the central mountainous country. The "medicine wheel" is a giant Medicine Mountain. Laid out symmetrically, it is built of great granite boulders placed so as to form a perfect wheel, with spokes 150 feet long. At the centre is a great rocky hub. For a long time the whites have known that somewhere on Medicine Mountain the Indians had a sacred altar of some kind, but it has been guarded so zealously that no white man ever-knew the character or the location of the place. The red men always refused to talk of it to the whites. It was by chance that the prospectors came upon the wheel. The identity of the builders of the 'medicine wheel" is as unknown to the Indians as to the whites. The only tradition possessed by the Indians concerning the wheel is that it was built by the gods themselves and is to remain a sacred object to the end of the world. Medicine Mountain was so named by the Indians for the reason that it was to its rocky slopes that the Indians went for the "medicine" or charm wrich was to protect them through life. It has long been known among the Indians as the home of the Great Spirit, and for generations these Indians have camped around the great wheel while engaged in the mystic rites and ceremonies of making Indian "medi-
