

WARREN TOPPAN, Lynn, Mass.

Cured of severe compound cold and cough by

Vinol

"From Dec. 20, '08, to March 1, '09, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was magic. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years."

Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine.

Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

TRIUMPHS FOR COTTON BULLS

Old Time Excitement on New York Exchange Due to Damage Reports.

New York, April 25.—Not since the big break of January last has the New York Cotton Exchange experienced so much activity and excitement as today. It was a time of triumph for the bulls, whose already strengthened position as regards the old crop was sensationally stimulated by reports of disastrous weather in the South effecting the coming crop. This led to rumors that the bull campaign was to be carried on throughout the end of the current season and possibly into the early new crop deliveries, as it was in the season of 1902-03 when, after Sully's successful deal in May contracts, Messrs. Brown and Hayne, who are prominently mentioned in connection with the present bull movement, carried the bull campaign through into July, August and September. It is urged in this connection that even if the South finds sufficient seed to replant the entire area reported damaged, the cold snap has made it look like a late crop, and that mills consequently dependent upon old crop supplies for a correspondingly longer period.

Meanwhile preparations for making enormous deliveries in May contracts are steadily going on. It is said that the inspection bureau of the New York Cotton Exchange had a larger force of men engaged in preparing cotton for delivery yesterday than ever before, and according to the official figures, the stock of certificated cotton at New York, which was reported as 87,000 bales toward the end of March, had mounted up to 161,000 bales by the close of business Saturday with predictions that between 180,000 and 200,000 bales would be ready for delivery by May 1st. Moreover, the May shorts have until the end of May to secure cotton for delivery on contract.

Far as the market learned, nothing further developed during the day in respect to the Federal grand jury price exchanges investigation against the bull clique nor were there any further disclosures with reference to the affairs of Knight, Yancey & Co., the Southern spot firm whose failure caused such widespread consternation last week. According to latest estimates, New York firms are creditors to the extent of over $600,000.

It is rumored that those firms which had sold May against shipments expected here from the failed southern house are finding little difficulty in adjusting their contracts around present prices, and that they will be out little more than their actual advances, if the cotton does not materialize. It is reported that three English spot cotton men who arrived here today from Liverpool sailed before the Knight-Yancey failure was announced with a view to investigating the firm's condition. They declined to be interviewed today.

Seldom has such a flood of crop damage reports poured into the local trade from so wide an area as today and for the time being it seemed that the excitement in new crop months was overshadowing the old crop situation, possible legislation at Washington, the government investigation and even the Knight-Yancey failure.

While the inference was that these reports of damage were more or less exaggerated, they were effective in the market on the theory that the sleet, snow and freezing temperature found an unusually large amount of cotton up for the last week in April, while ultimate damage from a new crop standpoint was predicted by reports of any sufficient supply of seed

BALD HEADS NOT WANTED.

Baldness is Too Generally Considered a Sign of Advanced Age.

A bald-headed person does not have an equal chance with one blessed with a healthy head of hair, because baldness is too generally accepted as an indication of age. Many large corporations have established an age limit, and refuse to take men over thirty-five years of age as new employees.

Almost 65 per cent of bald-headed people may regain a good head of healthy hair if they will follow our advice and accept our offer. We have a remedy that we positively guarantee to grow hair on any head, unless the roots of the hair are entirely dead, their follicles closed, and the scalp has become glazed and shiny. We want people to try this remedy at our risk, with the distinct understanding that unless it does exactly what we claim it will, and give satisfaction in every respect, we shall make no charge for the remedy used during the trial.

CROP DAMAGED 50 PERCENT.

New Orleans, April 25.—Further reports received here today from all parts of Louisiana and Mississippi indicate that earlier estimates of the damage to cotton crop as a result of Sunday night's unprecedented cold in this section were not exaggerated. With the cotton acreage damaged to an extent of not less than 50 per cent, including a total loss in many quarters, planters today turned their attention to replanting, only to be confronted with the grave problem of a lack of seed. Unable to secure the required supplies in their own sections, many farmers have sought to obtain seed in other parts of the South only to be informed that the same conditions prevail there.

You Didn't Put Vim Enough Into It.

A friend of mine bought a horse at auction some time since, which seemed to be a perfect model. He was as handsome as a picture, beautifully proportioned; he had all the earmarks of the thoroughbred and there did not seem to be an out about him. Yet he was absolutely good for nothing as a driver or draught horse, and he could not be used under the saddle. He seemed to be all right and to have plenty of spirit until he was harnessed. Once in a carriage, he flinched; there was no life or energy in him. My friend was soon glad to get rid of him at any price.

A good many young men are like this horse. They seem to be superbly equipped. They have fine physiques, talk intelligently and impress you as having great possibilities; and yet there is nothing to them; they are nobodies in life. They never get anywhere. They barely get a living; just vegetate, and you can hardly tell why.

"You didn't put vim enough into it," wrote a man to a friend who had failed in business. This tells the story of thousands of unsuccessful men. There is not vim enough in them.

VALUE OF EDUCATION.

Nothing More Productive Than Intelligent Men and Women.

Joseph M. Rogers, in Lippincott's. To make the well-rounded man and woman, we must give an objective and subjective experience of life to the boy and girl. We are making it almost wholly academic. The great objection that children have to most studies is that they seem to deal with unrealities, are so intangible as to be nothing more than pictures. To supply the needed instruction calls for a much larger and more varied equipment than is now employed, and it is going to cost a lot of money.

How easily we raise money for any thing which we consider really essential! It is not forgotten how blithely we entered upon the war with Spain, which did not prove expensive as wars go, but brought in its train an increase of general expenditures, so that our national expenses are now double what they were 20 years ago. A billion dollars could be raised for war purposes without the slightest difficulty. We are not alone in this respect. Ten years ago Great Britain thought it was heavily encumbered with debt, but it expended $1,250,000,000 in the Beer War, and has been increasing its expense ever since.

France has a public debt of nearly $7,000,000,000. It may be granted that the French are not growing in population, nor is the nation expanding in any way outside its borders, yet it seems to carry this burden without difficulty, while every nation in the world that wants money goes to Paris, where there is ever a demand for investment by the thrifty people. There is not a nation in Europe that is not heaving in debt, yet not one that is anything like a critical condition. The point I wish to make is that the taxing power of a nation is always greater than is estimated, and good investment if applied to proper purposes. Nothing is more productive financially than intelligent men and women. In 1870 our total national expenses were $275,000,000. This year they will be almost four times as great, and I think there are few who feel the burden in any way. There are few people who are aware that they pay any federal tax whatever. Some think the education of their children costs nothing because they live in rented houses and send the children to public school. The real truth is that the poor man is paying more than his proportionate share of the cost of public education. The increased cost will not fall heavily upon the man with nothing struggling to better the status of his children, but upon those who have most benefited financially by the State educated young men and women.

A SATISFIED CUSTOMER.

Success Magazine.

You may bring customers to your store once by shrewd scheme and advertising, but you cannot hold them by this means alone. Unless you satisfy them, give them good value for their money, you cannot induce them to come again. But the satisfied customer is a perpetual advertisement. He not only comes again himself, but he sends his friends, and they furnish a perpetual mouth to mouth advertisement which gives stability and permanence to a business which can never come from mere newspaper advertising.

Many young men going into business seem to think that price is the only element that enters into competition. But it is really only one of many. There may be a score of reasons besides price why customers flock to one store and pass by a dozen half-empty stores on their way. For instance, a great many people never learn to depend upon themselves in their buying. They do not trust their own judgment, but depend upon the clerk who waits on them. A clerk who knows his business can assist a customer wonderfully in a very delicate way, by suggestion, his knowledge of goods, of qualities, of fabrics, of durability. The courtesy and affability of clerks in one store pull thousands of customers right by the doors of rival establishments where the clerks are not so courteous or accommodating. Everybody appreciates courtesy, and a little personal interest goes a great way in attracting and holding customers. Most of us are willing to put ourselves to considerable trouble to patronize those who show a disposition to help us, to render a real service.

He is a shrewd merchant, therefore, who keeps only courteous, accommodating employees.

Confidence has everything to do with patronage. We like to patronize the firm which has a good reputation, and many prefer to pay more for articles in a reliable store that guarantees their quality, than to buy similar articles at a much lower price in an unreliable store. People are afraid to go to unreliable places, even though the prices are cheaper. They have a feeling that they will be swindled somewhere; that the lower price only covers up poor quality. There is no one thing that has so much to do with a business man's success as the absolute confidence of the public.

One Conductor Who Was Cured.

Mr. Wilford Adams is his name, and he writes about it.—"Some time ago I was confined to my bed with chronic rheumatism. I used two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy with good effect, and the third bottle put me on my feet and I resumed work as conductor on the Lexington, Ky., Street Railway. It gave me more relief than any medicine I had ever used, and it will do all you claim in cases of rheumatism." Foley's Kidney Remedy cures rheumatism by eliminating the uric acid from the blood.
