He was about forty years of age and was sentenced in May, 1909, for manslaughter, his term being twelve years. It is the understanding that he had killed two men in his time, and at the State's prison he was regarded as being cunning and resouceful, but not desperate, though as he had made one escape shackles were kept on him so as to prevent a getaway. Sale, the warden, at once went to the woods and had the dead body of Fox taken to the Brown undertaking house, the Monday by Guards at the Pentten- convict force being left at work. An tiary and instantly Killed-Shooting examination of the body of Fox Followed Desperate Attempt on Part showed that the buckshot had entered the stomach, chest and side, while Guard Hunnicutt, whom he had knocked from the wagon is a little bruised on the left side.

The concerted work of Fox and the negro McIntosh showed that the plan had been agreed upon, but it tailed because of the quickness of Guard Smith, and of the success of Guard Hayes in getting loose from the negro McIntosh. That the guards were in a close place is certain, for if Guard Smith had been seized while on his wagon Fox might have controlled the situation. The knife he used on Guard Hunnicutt was 61 inches long, handle and blade, the blade itself three inches long, of an arrow head shape, tapering from a half inch to a point, the blade of steel and razor sharpness. The handle is of bone with a German silver fitting between the handle and blade. It was a hand made knife, and in his pocket Fox had a wooden sheath for the blade.

It was about 7.30 o'clock yesterday morning when Fox was killed in his attempt to escape and after Warden Sale had seen to the transferring of the body to the undertakers he notified Mr. George E. Hunter, a member of the Board of Directors, who, acting as directed by section 5409 of The Code, went to the scene of the killing of Fox and investigated the matter. In his report to the Govern-

"The Warden of the State's Prison, Mr. T. P. Sale, notified me this morning, about ten o'clock, as one of the directors of that institution, that J. L. Fox, a convict, had just been killed. I went immediately to the prison and have made a thorough investigation of the killing of Fox and and beg to report:

"While a squad of men were going out to work, and just as they halted to commence work, Fox attacked one of the guards with a knife, knocking him from the wagon and securing his gun, and endeavored to shoot another guard. At the same moment that Fox made his attack, another convict, a negro made sent to her. No arrangements have an attack on another guard. The as yet been made as to the removal third guard came to their rescue and shot Fox, killing him instantly.

The people of Morven should be proud, indeed, of their excellent high school, as it is rated among the highest in the State, which is proven by the testimony of several colleges which offer to accept its graduates without any further examinations. Does this not show excellent ability on the part of the principal, who cannot be otherwise than a very competent teacher. It also shows the careful training its students receive in its primary department, for it it is well known that nothing can be completed without a solid foundation. Watch Morven improve.
