country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a- million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women.

WEEKLY COTTON REVIEW.

New York, July 29.-A broadening of the speculation in the new crop yield of 13,000,000 to 13,506,000 bales were frequently heard. Now estimates of 12,000,000 maximum are common and there are those who believe that unless Texas gets the needed copious rains in the near future, the total yield is likely to be nearer 11,000,000 than 12,000,000.

The reporter of a Wall Street house after five trips of inspection over the 40 per cent, of the total. In the past South this season estimated the yield year the products of the cotton field of 11,250,000 bales with average represented nearly 30 per cent. of the weather conditions during the re mainder of the season. The effect of these sharp reductions in crop estimates within a month has been very noticeable in a decided increase of commission house buying for people in many sections of the country, not $9,900,000 sawed timber, $9,800,000 excepting the South and West. Also spinners, both foreign and domestic $8,700,000 fertilizers, $4,600,000 have bought freely. The buying by continental spinners has ben a feature of the trading of late. The buying of this character seems to indicate a growing apprehension regarding supplies. "I suffered for eight years with what the doctors called the 'seven year itch.' This was like small red pimples such as form on the face but they burned and itched, day and night. These pimples were from my ankles up, but mostly on my thighs and arms. I tried doctor after doctor but their medicines brought no relief. But at last I struck the right treatment - this was Cuticura. bought a set of the Cuticura Remedies — Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills - and a few applications brought relief. When I had used about half the set I was nearly cured and after using two full sets I was well and best of all, I have stayed cured. "About four months ago, our baby began to be covered with a rash and his head with a spreading sore. Back of the ears, the flesh cracked open and the poor baby would scratch till it bled. He worried, cried and could not sleep. Then we bought a set of Cuticura and with a few applications the burning and itching ceased, baby stopped worrying and could sleep. When this single set had gone we had no use for any more as baby was never troubled with the disease of the baby all asked what cured him and when we told them, they were surprised and pleased to find a sure cure for these skin afflictions. Tragic Fate of Man and Mule.

With sightless eyes upturned toward the electrified zeus that grimly reaped his life, storm beaten and lying prostrate beside a ilfeless mule with reins within his grasy the lifeless body of Jam Jomes was discovered three miles out of Henderson ville yesterday after the severe electrical storm that swept this section. Prior to the storm, Jones was plowing corn, and as he did not reach home directly after the rain it was feared that ill fate had overtaken him, whereupon a search was made. Jones' body was found outstretched beside that of the mule, which he had been plowing, deneath an apple tree nearby where he had beed working. Presumably, he had taken the tree as a refuge from the storm. The tree beneath which he was found showed no signs of having been struck by lightning, but indications were seen on another-tree a short distance away. It is said that the case of the watch found on his person had been melted by the stroke that caused his death.

REMAINS OF GENERAL PACK- THE COST OF LIVING AND THE HAM REST IN CAROLINA SOIL

From old records and newspaper clippings in her possession, Miss Minnie Massey, of this place, furnishes us the following account of the burial place of General Edward Packenham, who was killed at the of the rich, have operated to raise battle of New Orleans by General Jackson's men. Some time ago and she gathered information for the

"In the early part of the eighteenth century there lived an old man who kept a tavern on a stage coach line at Morgantown, in Fair field county, South Carolina, and who sent periodically to Charleston for rum. The barrels were brought on shafts. His guests helped him to dispose of the contents of the barrels without much persuasion.

"But one or the barrels being drained more quickly than usual, that is the rum gave out too soon, they wanted to ascertain the cause at once. The barrel was burst open and a dead man's body was discovered inside of the barrel, to the horor and disnay of the bystanders, who had drunk the rum off the dead

It is generally conceded that the body of General Packenham was never received in England. It is claimed by some that it was mystericusly lost in some way never fully explained. The story further says: "After the death of General Packenham, an English officer concealed his body in a barrel of rum, among other reasons to preserve it, and secretly put upon this barrel a pecu liar mark in order that he could easily recognize it. Whether the barrel was sold un wittingly or otherwise is not known. But later a dead man in a barrel of rum was sent from Charleston to a person at Morgan-Carolina. It is said that two soldiers, who had returned home from the battle of New Orleans were present when the barrel was opened and readily identified the uniform, in which the body was dressed, to be that of General Packenham. There was also a passenger on board a stage coach stopping over at that place at the time and vouchsafed that the appearance of the dead man in the barrel corresponded accurately with the appearance of General Packenham when he last saw him at the battle of

"The remains found in the barrel, whether they were those of the General or not, were buried in an old graveyard near the tavern, and the inhabitants of that place and community look upon it as the grave of General Packenham."

The Roanoke police express the belief that Lewis was influenced by dime novels and Wild West pictures. Lewis has a swarthy complexion and dark brown hair and weighs 132 pounds. His face is tanned as a result of his wanderings since he killed Zachary. From Roanoke he went to the former home of his parents at Shenandoah, thence to Norfolk and Washington, and from there to this city, arriving here Friday.

He was in the city jail for another cause when a post card describing him as the youth wanted was received here from Rosnoke.

The resultant seems to be the outcome of special forces on the goods side of the price ratio working foot for some time to have some real to raise the prices of goods more than inventions and progress in the arts have been able to depress them. In this respect the latter differs from the Lastly, it must be admitted that, aside from the higher prices of many staple articles, our standard of living has changed with the growing wealth of the country. Each family now wishes more expensive tood, better clothes, more costly millinery, more pictures and books and those of a higher price, more bicycles and automobiles, more horseback riding, more traveling, stays at higher priced hotels, passege on more expensive steamers, than formerly-all to keep up in the procession with the successful rich, who are increasing enormously in numbers. Every one expects, as a matter of course, to buy fruits and vegetables out of seasonsuch as a very short time ago were considered within the reach of only the largest purses. Our kitchen economy is quite too wasteful; we throw away fats and buy lard to take their place. May it not be the psychological hour to call for the creation of a new aristocracy of the simple life, of those who care for the reality and not for the shadow, for the true inward pleasures of the mind rather than for the external evanescent show? Mice That Subsist on Scorpions. Among the queer forms of animal life that inhabit Death valley is a mouse that has acquired such a taste for scorpions that they form its entire bill of fare. The scorplon carries its formidable armament in the end of its slender, elongated abdomen in the shape of an exceedingly venomous hooked sting. When disturbed it elevates this in the air and goes in search of its disturber. But it is comparaare proverbial for their quickness the world over. The mouse learned many generations ago where the scorpion carries its weapon, and when he meets it he leaps at the uplifted abdomen, takes off the sting at a single bite and weather conditions would seem to proceeds to make a meal of his helponly animal that relishes scorpions.

AGRICULTUAL SCHOOLS.

The agricultural school is coming.

They are teaching elementary agriculture in the public schools now, but that is about like teaching the young lady for whom he conceived a public school book on physiology to a real doctor-it does not go far enough. A movement has been on formal declaration, the exigency of farming taught the boys of North Carolina. The State Farmers' Union, now in session in Raleigh, has taken up the matter of agricultural education and in a speech before that body last Tuesday, State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner declared in favor of establishing agricultural farm life in schools, at least one in each county. He outlined the plan of having the Legislature appropriate $50,000 or $100,000 and then apportioning this in lots of $2,500 to counties in which the county authorities and the people will provide suitable farm and school buildings, including dormitories and raise at least an additional $2,500 toward maintenance.
