THREE GREAT DEMOCRATIC LEADERS.

The cause of the people, as championed by the Democratic party, now has a brighter outlook than has been the case since the first defeat of Wm. J. Bryan for President. In every section of the country there is a revolt against the principles and policies of the Republican party...

For more than thirteen years the Democratic party has been out of power. After the election of McKinley it declined into a minority at times scarcely strong enough to furnish active opposition to the Republicans...

Now that the signs point to the possibility of the Government again being intrusted to the Democrats, they find that at least three men have arisen who have in them the qualities of leadership. Judson Harmon by his courage and ability has instituted reforms in Ohio that mark him as one of the most efficient Governors in its history...

Conditions must be regarded as hopeful when the party can enlist the energies of so conservative and thoughtful a citizen as Dr. Woodrow Wilson. He feels that not even his work as president of Princeton University can justify him in refusing to respond to the call of the people. He believes that the Governorship of New Jersey offers such an opportunity for public service that he cannot decline to accept it.

By his remarkable administration as Mayor of New York Judge William J. Gaynor has been brought into national prominence. His fine record and forceful personality combine to make him an almost invincible candidate for Governor of New York. Before many months the Democrats may have presented to them the choice of three great Governors for the party leadership in 1912.

Senator E. D. Smith, of South Carolina, is out in an interview in which he says that, in his opinion, cotton this year ought to bring 20 cents a pound. He accounts for the decline in price since September last as an "attempt to take advantage of the necessity of the case and get as much cotton as possible during the time when the unfortunate ones have got to meet their guano bills, supply bills, and notes in bank." In concluding the interview Senator Smith calls on the people of the South to stand together to get a fair price for the staple. In this connection he says: "I plead with every Southerner, regardless of his profession, vocation, or avocation to stand by and lend all possible aid to that long-suffering, much-abused, but glorious producer of all the South's currency—the cotton farmer."

MAYOR GAYNOR'S SENSATIONS

New York's Chief Executive Tells in Detail How He Feels to Be Shot. New York, Sept. 19.—Mayor William J. Gaynor in a letter to his sister, Miss Mary E. Gaynor, of Utica, N. Y., which is printed this afternoon in the Evening Post, tells in an interesting manner of his impressions at the time he was shot on the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. The mayor says that he has not read a line of what has been published of the shooting nor does he now remember the name of the man who shot him. Going over the incident of the shooting Mayor Gaynor, after stating that Robert Adamson, his secretary, pointed out that the ship was dressed with flags for him, said: "My next consciousness was of a terrible metallic roar in my head. It filled my head, which seemed as though it would burst open. It swelled to the highest pitch and then fell and rose again, and so alternated until it subsided into a continuous buzz. It was sickening, but my stomach did not give way. I was meanwhile entirely slightless. "I do not think I fell, for when I became conscious I was on my feet. My sight gradually returned. I became conscious that I was choking. Blood was flowing from my mouth and I tried all I could to swallow it so those around me would not see it. But I found I could not swallow and then knew my throat was hurt. It seemed as though it were dislocated. I struggled to breathe through my mouth, but could not and thought I was dying of strangulation. I kept thinking all the time the best thing to do. "I was not a bit afraid to die if that was God's will of me. I said to myself, 'Just as well now as a few years from now.' "In some way I happened to close my mouth tight and found I breathed perfectly through my nose. I then believed I could keep from smothering. But I kept choking and my mouth kept opening to cast out the blood. Though the thing had not entered my head that morning I was not surprised when I realized I was shot. I had had a feeling for some weeks that I might be assaulted on account of the anonymous threats I was getting by mail."

An Example, Mr. Cotton Manufacturer. Monroe Journal. Some time men will wake up to the face of protection. The law of complete free trade between the United States and the Philippine Islands had been in effect just one year on August 1st. During those twelve months our imports from the islands increased fifty per cent. During the same time our exports to the islands increased 70 per cent. One of the chief articles of export showing this increase is cotton goods, and since the natural demand of that country would be the simpler manufactures of this trade, and since the South principally produces these, it is fair to assume, in the absence of figures, that the South has been the largest gainer. Yet Republican spell-binders are trying to commit the South to the dead body of protection, and just at a time when the balance of the country is beginning to see its rottenness.

Farmers Fight Duel to Death While Wives Watch by Roadside. Pelham, Ga., Sept. 21.—Stopping their buggies when they met each other in the public road near here today, Charles Tate and John Marchant, both prominent men of this county, fought a duel with pistols, both dropping to the ground dead after half a dozen shots had been fired. The wives of the men sat in the buggy while the fight was in progress and saw their husbands killed. Tate was a bridegroom of two months and his wife was the widow of Frank Marchant, a brother of the man whom he killed and who killed him today. The fight, it is alleged, grew out of an old grudge. When they met today Marchant called Tate to his buggy. The men exchanged hardly a word when the shooting began. Tate fired three times, every bullet finding its mark. While the bullets were cutting into his body, Marchant fired twice, one bullet striking Tate's hand and the other passing through his heart. The widows called aid and had the bodies removed.

Affectionate Greeting For Map Peddler. Reidsville Review. They are telling a good joke on a good mother of the city. It appears that a few days ago she was expecting a visit from a nephew whom she had not seen in several years. A young man walked up to her front door and she proffered him a kiss. The young man was visibly embarrassed and turned his head away. The good lady affectionately tapped him on the cheek, saying: "You know you are going to kiss your auntie!" The young man resisted no further. Three handsome daughters had made their appearance by this time prepared for osculatory stunts, when the bashful young man tremblingly made known the fact that he had called to sell a map.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Beautiful Afternoon Party. Mrs. W. L. Marshall entertained with characteristic elegance yesterday afternoon at her beautiful home on Lee avenue. A number of handsomely gowned women were present, and in a spirited progressive game the prizes went to Mrs. T. L. Caudle and Miss Beesie Dockery. After the game an elegant salad course, with iced tea, was much enjoyed, and mints were handed around. Mrs. Marshall was assisted by her sister, Mrs. T. A. Marshall, both of them wearing becoming lingerie dresses. The out-of-town guests were Mrs. Reid Tull, of Richfield; Mrs. W. H. Craig, of Atlanta, and Miss Clara DeVane, of Red Springs.

Delightful Club Meeting. One of the smartest and prettiest club meetings it has been my pleasure to chronicle was held with Mrs. C. M. Burns, Jr., on Thursday afternoon, September 15th, at 5 o'clock. Most of the club members, Mrs. L. J. Huntley, Miss Ida Morrison, of Rockingham, Miss Lora Little and Miss Marion Little formed a congenial guest list, and after tea and crackers were served from a flower decked table in the parlor we were much entertained with an interesting contest. It was on pink cardboard cut in the shape of a "T", and all the answers ended with the sound of this letter. In cutting for the prize, fortune favored Mrs. W. P. Parsons, the trophy being a silver tea strainer. After this we were invited into the dining room, where we found exquisite decorations of pink roses and maidenhair ferns on the long table, white potted plants and vases of cut flowers further adorned the room. An elegant afternoon menu, in which the ice course simulated pink roses, was beautifully served, and much complimented. Underneath each plate was a pink card on which were questions to be answered with the names of roses, and in this test of our intellects the prize fell to Mrs. T. J. Fetzer. After many expressions of delight and appreciation the guests dispersed, the next meeting to be held with Mrs. Jas. A. Hardison.

Miss J. D. LEAK, Pres. and Sec'y of Book Club. His Distinguishing Mark. Success Magazine. One day a big city bank received the following message from one of its country correspondents: "Pay twenty-five dollars to John Smith, who will call today." The cashier's curiosity became suspicion when a cabman assisted into the bank a drunken "fare" who shouted that he was John Smith and wanted some money. Two clerks pushed, pulled and piloted the boisterous individual into a private room away from the sight and hearing of regular depositors. The cashier wired the country bank: "Man claiming to be John Smith is here. Highly intoxicated. Shall we await identification?" The answer read: "Identification complete. Pay the money."

A Good Position. Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country, there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, supervised by railway and wireless officials, and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Davenport, Ia., Cincinnati, O., Portland, Ore., or Memphis, Tenn.

THINK CHOLERA PERIL IS PAST

Its End Attributed to Liquefaction of St. Januarius' Blood. Naples, Sept. 19.—The phenomenon of the liquefaction of the blood of St. Januarius took place today after prayers lasting 65 minutes in the presence of a great multitude. The people interpret the rapidity of the liquefaction as proof that the peril from cholera is over.

THE MIRACLE. In the great church at Naples there are preserved the head and some of the blood of Januarius, bishop of Benevento, who was beheaded for the faith near Puteoli. The blood, as his acts relate, was gathered from the ground by a poor woman at the time of the martyrdom and enclosed in two small glass phials. On several occasions, it is recorded, his relics were carried in processions during eruptions of Vesuvius.

The standing miracle of the liquefaction of the blood of St. Januarius consists in bringing the congealed pieces near to the head, the phials being placed on the altar and prayer being made. After a longer or shorter interval the blood is said to become liquid and to flow.

Atlanta Physician Killed by Patient He Failed to Cure. Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 20.—Armed with a revolver, a pair of brass knuckles and an open knife and waiting his turn in the office of Dr. J. R. Sewell, 106 1/2 Whitehall street, William Cox, aged 36, of Austell, Ga., shortly after noon today, shot, instantly killing, the physician just as the latter was emerging from his operating room. Cox then turned the pistol on himself and pulled the trigger. He is now at the Grady hospital with a fractured skull. Cox came to this city from his home in Austell this morning for the purpose, it is said, of visiting Dr. Sewell, whose patient he had been for several weeks. It is understood that Cox has been brooding for some time because of fancied wrongs at the hands of the physician. He has stated, it is said, that the physician promised to cure him of a chronic disease in return for $100, but, instead of getting better, he has grown worse.

CHATTANOOGA DISC PLOW Put two, three, or four mules to it, get up on it and ride. Turn the soil good and deep and it will yield a rich harvest. A disc plow does not slide over the bottom of furrows and form a hard pan, as the mold board plow does, but it acts as a disc plow in turning the soil, as a disc harrow in pulverizing it, and as a subsoil plow as it cuts down through the hard pan that has been formed by the "ironing" of the landside on your 2-horse plows. It will pay you to think over this proposition. Your small grain should be put in with a grain GRAIN DRILL. Every practical farmer knows this. ECZEMA CURED Many people have tried so many remedies for eczema without being materially benefitted that they have come to the conclusion that there is no cure for this most distressing disease. That this conclusion is erroneous, and that Hobson's Eczema Ointment will effect a cure is shown by the following unsolicited testimonial of Mr. Venable Wilson, who for many years was a citizen of Wadesboro. Mr. Wilson says: "This is to certify that for nine years I suffered with eczema, and during that time tried numerous so-called specifics for it, but without effect. But after a few applications of Hobson's Eczema Ointment I was completely cured. "V. WILSON. "Thomasville, N. C., Feb. 22, 1910." We sell Hobson's Eczema Ointment under an absolute guarantee. If it does not effect a cure you get your money back. PARSONS DRUG COM'Y.
