JAPANESE MAKING PEARLS.

Have Discovered a Method by Which They Can Be Made as Cheap as Collar Buttons.

New York, Sept. 30.—The existence of a secret method in making pearls which, if disclosed, would make them as plentiful and as cheap as the park row collar button, was told today by Professor Bashford, Dean of Columbian University, to the American Fisheries Society in session here.

"In a little harbor south of Japan there has been produced successfully by a secret process pearls that are of the finest type," said Professor Dean. "When I was at the University of Japan the Emperor of Japan himself opened these oysters and took therefrom this new pearl I now exhibit, so there is no doubt about the genuine success of this experiment. But this secret has even been withheld from the Emperor, otherwise the whole of the pearl industry would be revolutionized."

"Dr. N. C. Niskawa, a graduate of the University of Tokio, discovered the process and left his secret to his father-in-law, Mikemoto, one of the most famous pearl raisers of Japan. I surmise that the pearl is formed by introducing scientifically a piece of mother of pearl into the shell around which the pearl is formed, taking the place of the worm which nature uses to form the core of the naturally grown pearl."

A Rare Breed.

The Youth's Companion.

The love for animals especially dogs, which distinguished every member of the Horton family, manifested itself in the usual Horton way in Robert at the age of seven by the acquisition of a piece of undesirable canine property.

"What in the world are you bringing home?" called Mrs. Horton from the piazza, as Robert rounded the corner, treading joyfully, but not as rapidly as was his wont. He was hampered by a yellow-brown, much bedraggled dog, attached to a string, and by a large empty box, which overweighted his express cart.

"Why, father gave me twenty-five cents to spend for having had the measles," called Robert, as he whirled about to disentangle the string from one of the wheels of his cart, "and there's a man down by the post-office let me have this splendid dog, that he thought he must dispose of, 'cause he had no home nor family, for the quarter; and Mr. Cole from the store gave me this beautiful box for his kennel."

"He's a full-blooded cur, mother!" and with an air of triumph, Robert dropped the handle of the express cart and rushed the yellow-brown dog up the piazza steps.

"I told the man my family were more particular about what kind the dog was than how he looked," he added proudly.

Banner's Bond Collected.

Boon Democrat.

At the spring term of court it was ordered by Judge Webb that an execution for $8,000 against the bonds men of L. M. Banner be issued and the same be turned in to the clerk by this fall term of court. Every dollar of this bond has been collected, and Sheriff Ragan has the clerk's receipt for the same.

[Banner was convicted of homicide and sentenced to the State prison. He was released under bond while the case was pending in the Supreme Court and when the decision of the lower court was affirmed he disappeared.]

PHYSICIAN ENTIRELY CURED OF ECZEMA

By the Use of Cuticura Remedies. Prescribes Them and Says They have Cured when Other Formulas Failed. They Always Bring Results.

"My face was afflicted with eczema in the year 1897. I used the Cuticura Remedies and was entirely cured. I am a practicing physician and very often prescribe Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Soap in cases of eczema, and they have cured where other formulas have failed."

"I am not in the habit of endorsing patent medicines, but when I find remedies possessing true merit, such as the Cuticura Remedies do, I am broad-minded enough to proclaim their virtues to the world. I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and must say I find your Remedies a No. 1, and still find the Cuticura Remedies as good as ever. They always bring results. G. M. Fisher, M.D., Big Pool, Md., Dec. 4, 1909."

DOCTOR RECOMMENDED THE CUTICURA REMEDIES.

"When I was ten or twelve years old I had a scalp disease, something like scald-head, though it wasn't that. I suffered for several months and most of my hair came out. Finally they had a doctor to see me and he recommended the Cuticura Remedies. They cured me in a few weeks. I have used the Cuticura Remedies, also, for a breaking out on my hands and was benefited a great deal. I haven't had any more trouble with the scalp disease. Miss Jessie E. Buchanan, R. F. D. 3, Hamilton, Ga., Jan. 7, 1909."

LEAVE A NICHE FOR JACKSON IN THE CAPITOL.

Baltimore Sun.

The statue of Stonewall Jackson placed in the State House grounds at Charleston by the women of West Virginia is the work of the famous sculptor, Sir Moses Ezekiel. With Sir Moses its modeling was a labor of love, as he himself was a cadet at the Virginia Military Institute when Jackson was an instructor there, and the sculptor fought in the Confederate Army and shared the intense admiration that the brilliant exploits of "Stonewall" aroused in the men who followed him. No bronze or marble can picture Jackson, the man of instant decision and swift action, or indicate the fiery military genius that flamed up in him. But it can and does present the serious, sad-faced man of deep religious nature, the soldier who was moved in every action by his devotion to duty and his sublime faith.

The statue in Charleston will stand as a monument to valor and genius, and an all-too-tardy tribute to the great General from the State in which he was born. Perhaps it is even yet too early to expect the prejudices of sectional conflict to have subsided sufficiently for all the people of a border State to unite in a tribute to one of the leaders of either side. But the time is rapidly approaching, if it has not yet arrived, when Union men as well as ex-Confederates will come to regard Stonewall Jackson as the greatest man born in the territory that is now West Virginia. The soldiers of every country acknowledge him as a transcendent military genius. His lofty personal character, his devotion to his people, distinguish him as a man worthy of any honor.

In the Capitol at Washington is the national hall of fame, where each State may place the statues of its favorite sons. West Virginia has already filled its niches with lesser lights. But she may very well reconsider her choice, and upon one pedestal place the statue of her greatest son, so that in the Capital of a reunited country Stonewall Jackson can once again meet Robert Lee.

Instruction From the South.

Harper's Weekly.

When Davy Crockett sat in the national legislature as a representative of the state of Texas, he had many clashes with men of more education but less wit than himself. It is told of him that one day, while standing in front of his hotel on Pennsylvania Avenue, a swarm of mules trotted by under the custody of an overseer from one of the stock-farms in Virginia. A Congressman from Boston, who was standing near by, attracted Crockett's attention to the unusual sight, saying:

"Hello, there, Crockett; here's a lot of your constituents on parade. Where are they going?" The celebrated hunter looked at the animals with a quizzical glance, and then turning to the other, said quietly, but with great emphasis, "They are going to Massachusetts to teach school."

Good Physics and Good Rhetoric.

Youth's Companion.

The brilliant phrase that turns the day for the harassed orator is worth much fine gold. A writer in the Washington Star tells how a certain public speaker once checked a hostile audience.

He had said something which the crowd did not at all like, and was immediately hissed. He smiled, and when the noise had subsided, said, "When a stream of cold truth is poured on red-hot prejudices, it is no wonder they hiss."

For that he was heartily applauded, and allowed to continue in peace.

THE GIFT OF GOD.

How a Run of Shad Ended Divine Service in Old New England.

Richard Wightman, in the Metropolitan Magazine.

More than a hundred years ago, when the stone steps of the Old House were in front of the Meeting House in the village—and worshipful feet went up them and along the uncarpeted aisles to the straight-backed pews, each with a wooden door held shut with a wooden button—one Sunday morning after the "long prayer," while the clergyman was in the midst of his discourse, one of the members of the congregation was seen to rise from his pew and tip-toe quietly out of the church. Soon a neighbor followed and then another and another, slowly and with reverent regard for the sanctity of the place they were so unwontedly leaving during the sermon.

The minister, noticing this, stopped in the midst of his discourse and said: "May I be permitted to inquire the reason for this exodus?" At this one of the few remaining men stood up in his pew and answered thus: "Since the service began word has been sent us that a large school of shad has been pocketed in the Oyster river. The tide has gone out, and the meadows are covered with live fish. Thousands of them are dropping there in the sun, and we have thought best, sir, to improve the opportunity and go down there and secure winter food for our families." Then he sat down, and after a moment's pause the clergyman gathered up his manuscript and said: "I think that is a very good idea. I will dismiss the congregation and go and get some myself."

Gossip of the Day.

Exchange.

A Boston couple were recreating near Augusta, Ga., and met an old negro woman, to whom they took a fancy. They invited her to pay them a visit, and the black woman accepted, especially as her expense were paid. In due time she arrived in Boston and was installed in the house of the white folks. She occupied one of the best rooms and ate at the same table with her host and hostess. At one of the meals the hostess said:

"Mrs. Jones, you were a slave weren't you?"

"Yes, marm," replied Mrs. Jones, "I belonged to Mars' Robert Howell."

"I suppose he never invited you to eat at his table," remarked the Boston woman.

"No, honey, dat he ain't," replied Mrs. Jones. "My master was a gentleman. He ain't never let no nigger set at de table long er him."

"Behold the Western Sky."

Where people live but never die."

The reason for this is plain to see; They all take Rocky Mountain Tea.
