

"Two bottles Cured My Rheumatism"

"I have been a sufferer from rheumatism for about two years, and have used many liniments and patent medicines which gave me no relief. A lady friend of mine told me she had used your Liniment and found relief at once. I got two bottles and they cured me. I think it is the best Liniment a person can have in the house. I shall always keep a bottle in my house as long as I can get it."—Mrs. E. R. WALLACE, Morrisons, Va.

"Wood to Burn"

The Wadesboro Oil Mill operates a domestic fuel department. Perhaps this seems a curious branch of the oil business, but it is easily explained. It takes steam to run a mill, and it takes fuel to make steam. All during the summer, when farmers have an idle day or two, they bring loads of pine wood to the mill and go away with spending money. Long strings of this wood are now stretched over all available space at the mill.

This Wood Is Dry.

Every day Mr. Rogers goes out and selects a nice, straight, clean lot of this wood and marks it for slaughter. This select lot of wood is sawed up into stove lengths by a wood saw, and split into nice fine sticks just right.

This Is the Right Wood to Buy

All the ugly, crooked, sappy, dirty green sticks are shoveled into the big furnaces to make steam for the oil mill. That furnace does not know the difference. Other wood dealers have to sell all kinds, good and bad. Discriminating Customers get the very finest wood every time. COAL TOO—Coal, the same way; good clean lumps for customers, dirty dust for steam boiler.

WOOD and COAL, any quantity, any time.

They Are Here They Are Beauties

That car of horses and mules that I purchased in St. Louis has arrived, and every one who has seen they says they are the handsomest animals ever brought to Wadesboro. Both the horse and the mules were selected with the greatest care. If you need a driving horse, a mule for the farm, or either a mule or a horse for any purpose, I believe I can please you. I will take pleasure in showing you what I have.

CHAPTER V.

ALL three knew the desperate chance they were taking, and they spoke little as they made their way out into the straits. Their craft was strange to them, and the positions they were forced to occupy soon brought on cramped muscles. The blistered, frost, narrow framework over which is stretched walrus skin, and it is so fashioned that the crew sits, one behind the other, in circular openings with legs straight out in front.

Gradually, imperceptibly, the mountain shores behind them shrank down upon the gray horizon. It seemed that for once the weather was going to be kind to them, and their spirits rose in consequence. They ate frequently, food being the great fuel of the north, and midday found them well out upon the heaving bosom of the straits with the Kadlak shores plainly visible. Then, as if tired of toying with them, the wind rose. Had it sprung from the north it would have wasted them on their way, but it drew in from the Pacific, straight into their teeth, forcing them to redouble their exertions. In the hope that it would die down with the darkness the boatmen held on their course, and night closed over them still pearly silently.

It was nearly noon of the following day when the watchman at the Tyak cannery beheld a native canoe creeping slowly up the bay and was astonished to find it manned by three white men in the last stages of exhaustion. One of them, in fact, was unconscious and had to be carried to the house. He did marvel, however, that another of the travelers should begin to cry weakly when told that the mail boat had sailed for Kadlak the previous evening.

"Too bad you didn't get in last night," said the caretaker sympathetically. "She won't be back now for a month or more."

"How long will she be in Kadlak?" Big George asked.

"The captain told me he was going to spend Christmas there. Let's see—"

NOTICED BALD SPOT COMING ON HEAD

Interesting Story of Consultation with Dermatologist and Successful Use of Cuticura. Also Case of Severe Icy Poisoning, Relief of Which by Cuticura was Permanent.

"Nine years ago I noticed a bald spot coming on my head and, as I was only nineteen years old, it did not seem to me as if it was on the side of my head instead of on top. My mother advised my seeing a dermatologist, and he said it was due to a germ I must have got at the barber's. He couldn't cure, but by treating each hair separately by electricity, he said, the hair might come out white or gray, if it came out at all. He proposed giving me a treatment every month for six months at ten dollars a treatment. When I told my mother she advised using Cuticura and this I did, using Cuticura Soap and Ointment every day. In two months my hair commenced to grow, and in six months one would never have known there had been any trouble, the hair coming out being black, the exact shade of my own. I have never had any trouble since, and feel I can't say half enough for Cuticura."

"Another member of our family was terribly poisoned by poison ivy and every summer for years the blisters came, bursting and causing great suffering. We tried everything recommended by the best physicians, but with no good result. Finally we tried Cuticura and obtained relief in a very short time which was permanent. She has never had any trouble since, so Cuticura is invaluable to us, you see. G. J. Browne, 1 Remington St., Dorchester, Mass., Jan. 29, 1910."

DAVID B. HILL IS DEAD.

Sage of Wolfert's Roost Passes Away Unexpectedly.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20.—David B. Hill, ex-United States Senator and former Governor of New York, died suddenly today at Wolfert's Roost, his country home.

About two weeks ago Mr. Hill was seized with a bilious attack while at his law office in this city, and although his condition was not considered serious at the time his physician advised him to remain at home for a few days until he recovered. A cold developed and a few days later alarming reports of his condition were circulated. These reports, however, were denied by friends; in fact, the Senator appeared to be on the road to recovery until last night, when he suffered a sinking spell.

David B. Hill has been described as "the man without human weakness" and as "the cold chisel politician, through whose veins runs ice-water instead of blood." Probably both descriptions were exaggerated, but, in the main, they were accurate. He had no recreations; work was his lifeline, and there were no variations. He had no irregular habits, cared nothing for accumulating wealth, cultivated no friendships, was never known, after he reached man's estate, to love.

He never married—two reasons for which have been advanced: When he was a young man his favorite sister died, and it was long before his health recovered from the shock. It is also said that he had a romance as a youth, but that the girl's death soured him against women and life. He was always courteous and at home in the society of women, but he never sought them. Yet he could love, for when his mother lay on her deathbed he drove daily from his law office in Elmira, 15 miles, to the little cottage in Havana, that he might spend each night at her bedside.

With men he was austere and distant, save where interest made close relations necessary—and as soon as the business was over he retired into his shell again.
