THE DRAGON'S BACKBONE.

An Odd Incident of Railroad Construction in China.

When there was undertaken the construction of the railway between Kirin and Newchwang, the seaport of Manchuria, it was proposed to make a junction at a place called Lanpin, outside the city of Mukden. For this permission had to be obtained from the Tartar general of Mukden. This functionary at once proceeded to call in his geomancers, a species of soothsayers, who gave information concerning the good fortune and ill fortune of sites and were surprised by the Chinese to know what demons and dragons inhabited the earth under the surface.

The general consequently refused the application of the railway people and directed them to carry the road in a straight line from Kirin to Newchwang, avoiding Mukden. The engineers thereupon appealed to the viceroy, showing that, as this proposed route would go through a marshy and uninhabited country, it could not be profitable for their enterprise.

The viceroy wrote to the general of Mukden highly commending him for his discretion in consulting the geomancers, but suggesting that these sage persons go over the ground again and see if they could not find a place where the nails would not be likely to strike into the dragon's back. Accordingly, at the command of the viceroy, the general had his geomancers indicate a spot for the junction at Lanpin where they thought that, after all, the dragon's backbone would be safe.—New York Press.

Sawed Sawge. Here is the old King Richard II. way of making sawge: "Pyggs in sawge sawge, or pygs with sage sawge." "Take pyggs yakkid (scalded) and quarter them and seeth them in water and salt; take them and let them kele (cool); take parsel (parsley), sawge (sage) and grynde it with brede and yolkes of ayren (eggs) harde ysyde (boiled); temper it with vinegar somewhat thik, and lay the pyggs in a vessel and sewe onoward (the sauce over them), and serve it forth." "Take pyggs" is pretty good. Size or number seems of no consequence.—New York Press.

A Hard One. "Father," "What is it?" "It says here, 'A man is known by the company he keeps.' Is that so, father?" "Yes, yes, yes. RICE PAPER.

Shaved From the Snow White Pith of Trees in Formosa.

The so called rice paper is not made from rice, as its name implies, but from the snow white pith of a small tree belonging to the genus aralia, a genus represented in this country by the common sarsaparilla and the spikenard. The tree grows in Formosa, and so far as is known, nowhere else. The stems are transported to China, and there the rice paper is made. It is used, aside from a number of other purposes, by the native artists for water color drawings, and sometimes it is dyed in various colors and made into artificial flowers.

The tools of the pith worker comprise a smooth stone about a foot square and a large knife or hatchet with a short wooden handle. The blade is about a foot long, two inches broad and nearly half an inch thick at the back, and it is as sharp as a razor. Placing a piece of the cylindrical pith on the stone and his left hand on the top, the pith worker will roll the pith backward and forward for a moment until he gets it in the required position. Then, seizing the knife with his right hand, he holds the edge of the blade after a faint or two close to the pith, which he will keep rolling to the left with his left hand until nothing remains to unroll, for the pith has, by the application of the knife, been pared into a square white sheet of uniform thickness. All that remains to be done is to square the edges.

If one will roll up a sheet of paper, lay it on a table, place the left hand on top and gently unroll it to the left he will have a good idea of how the feat is accomplished.—New York Herald.

Masculine Music. The musical doctor stepped into the shop. His hair stuck out like stiff straws, and his joy of life was under his arm; also two buttons on his waistcoat were undone. So there was no doubt about his being a genius.

Firearms in Russia. As an illustration of how closely everything is watched in Russia, take its system of registering firearms. When a weapon of any kind is purchased a permit must be secured from the local authorities. The name of the man who makes the purchase, and the number of the weapon, is recorded. If the purchaser ever wants to dispose of the weapon he must notify the authorities and cause the transfer to be recorded on the books of the firm which sold it.

An Anachronism. When some celebrated pictures of Adam and Eve were seen on exhibition Mr. McNab was taken to see them. "I think no great things of the painter," said the gardener. "Why, man, tempting Adam with a pipilla of a variety that wasna known until about twenty years ago?"

Hindering the Process. Doctor—Well, John, how are you today? John—Very bad, very bad. I wish Providence 'ud 'ave mussy on me an' take me.

Her Answer. In inculcating the idea of truthfulness a teacher asked the question, "What is the best thing in the world to do and sometimes the hardest?" A little girl raised her hand timidly. "Well, my child?—" "To get married!"

Too Fond of Them. "Is he fond of outdoor sports?" "Yes. His wife complains that he even invites them home to dinner."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Ancient House. The ancient Romans had a catapult that could hurl rocks more than a mile. "Now I understand it." "What?" My neighbor told me the house was a stone's throw from the depot. He must have had it on his hands since the time of the Caesars.

A Complex Rest Cure. "Bliggins is a very vociferous person." "Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "but I don't blame him. The way a man of his mentality rests his nerves is by talking so loud he can't hear himself think."—Washington Star.

Center of Toughness. Inquiring Tourist—Would you call this a tough town? Stray Native—Tough? Say, stranger, when we have old home week here detectives from all over the country come and pick out just who they want.—Puck.

Conscience. Conscience is not an indicator of what is right. That is the province of wisdom based on knowledge. Conscience is the divine imperative compelling us to do what we believe to be right. A whole lot of people never blame the fool for parting from his money until after it is all gone.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

CAUGHT THE COINER.

An Accident Spoiled an Ingenious Counterfeit Planning Scheme.

A case which shows the ingenuity used in passing counterfeit coin is the following: A tailor, who also was a very successful coiner, had a little daughter who was some ten years old. She was being taught to play the violin, and twice a week she went to have a music lesson at a house about a mile distant. Once a week the innocent little thing carried besides her violin case and violin a package cunningly secreted in the false bottom of the violin case, which contained some twenty or more pieces of counterfeit coin.

The music master, a rogue who was in the know, found no difficulty in abstracting the package unnoticed by the child and in his turn passed it on to a woman "fence," who again gave it to a male friend, who delivered it safely to the "utterer," a woman again, at a street corner, the package being this time concealed in the false bottom of a canary cage. Thus it passed through six hands, and besides the man himself only the music master knew who manufactured the coin.

The tailor was caught by an accident. His little girl let the violin case fall in the street, the bottom of the case was smashed, and all the coins, done up in tissue paper, fell into the street. The child, much mystified, opened one of the little packages, and the glitter caught a policeman's eye. This mishap led to the instant arrest of the tailor, who confessed, hoping for a light sentence, a hope which was not realized. Among the coiner's stock in trade were discovered two works on chemistry, fourteen molds, two batteries, plaster of paris, two ladles, a melting pot, crucibles and a quantity of chemicals.—London Telegraph.

Harder Still was the case of another graverigger who was asked to reduce his fee for digging a grave because, "mind ye, James, she was an auld woman and was sair spent."

CATARRH SUFFERERS.

Good Thing to Know. If you own a Hymel hard rubber inhaler, Parsons Drug Co. wants you to know that it will sell you a bottle of HYOMEI for only 50 cents.

Remember this, all who suffer with catarrh—a bottle of HYOMEI (pronounced High-o me) is put up in a separate package and sold for 50 cents, to accommodate the vast army of people who already own a Hymel inhaler.

Parsons Drug Co. will sell it to you at that price and give you the opportunity to begin at once to rid yourself of vile catarrh and the snuffling, hawking and spitting that go with it.

Many people through years of neglect have let catarrh get a strong hold upon them. Some of these people unreasonably think that one bottle of HYOMEI ought to cure them.

No matter how chronic your catarrhal troubles, HYOMEI is guaranteed by Parsons Drug Co. to cure them if you give it half a chance. Just breathe it, that's all, and its healing, soothing, antiseptic properties will make you feel better in a day.

If you own an inhaler get a 50 cent bottle of HYOMEI today. If you do not own a Hymel inhaler, ask for a $1.00 outfit, which includes inhaler.

It goes to the root of disease, strengthens and invigorates, its life giving qualities are not contained in any other remedy. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea has stood the severest test. For thirty years the surest remedy. Fox & Lyon.

HENTY AS AN INVENTOR.

The Author's Reversible Boat That Was a Halfway Success.

George Henty, the author of boys' stories, is described in "Sixty Years in the Wilderness," by Henry W. Lucy, as the warmest hearted, shortest tempered man in the world. "Before he found his true vocation in writing boys' books Henty tried various methods of supplementing his salary on the Standard. One was the recovery of tin from broken or dished utensils. For some months his study was filled with a bed smell and scraps of broken tin. The smell was engendered by efforts to melt off the tin from the baser metal with the assistance of a chemical compound invented by the operator.

"The next thing that attracted Henty's attention and filled him with hope of fortune was the building of a reversible boat, bound to right itself automatically. He took rooms up the river and, with some assistance from a village mechanic, built his boat. To a certain extent it proved an unqualified success. At the slightest wind directed toward, sometimes without it, it would turn over, keel upmost, with Henty in the river. Righting itself was, as the French say, 'another pair of sleeves.'

"Through some anxious weeks he was frequently ignominiously rescued by a passing boat and walked home oozing water from pockets and boots. In the end his landlady gave him notice that she could not be always mopping up after him. I fancy he gladly seized this opportunity of retiring from the boat building business."

Stories of the Graveliggers. Grimly humorous is the tale of the Scottish graveligger who complained that he did not get constant work. "But, George," said the minister, "if you were to be constantly employed in the duties of the office you would soon bury the whole parish."

"That might be, sir, but hoo am I to keep a wife and family unless I get regular work? 'Deed, sir, I havena buried a leevin' soul for the last six weeks."

Harder still was the case of another graverigger who was asked to reduce his fee for digging a grave because, "mind ye, James, she was an auld woman and was sair spent."
