What makes us say in expressing our opinions is that the younger generation may say that we ought to drop dead.

To hire anybody to get my name in a newspaper would make me lose sleep, and yet many persons do precisely that.

Student's Wife Victim of Accident

Mrs. James Harold Roberson, whose husband is a sophomore at Chowan, was killed in an automobile accident on Monday morning, December 22nd at two o'clock.

Mrs. Roberson was returning with her husband to his home near Washington, N. C., for the Christmas holidays, and in a car a short distance ahead Mr. Roberson's parents were driving. The elder Robersons' car collided with a car parked, reportedly without lights, in the middle of the road. When the Chowan student saw that his father's car had run into this car, he got out to render assistance. While he was trying to push the parked car out of the road, his father was waving a flashlight across the road to warn oncoming vehicles. A sailor, approaching in a car had seen the accident, and parked his car some distance down the road and came to offer his help. In a few minutes a heavy tractor-trailer came at a reportedly high rate of speed and almost ran over the father, he being saved from death when the sailor yanked him out of the way just in time. The tractor-trailer then ran into the two Roberson cars, parked one behind the other. The impact knocked the car in front over a fifteen-foot embankment and fatally injured Mrs. James Roberson, who was in the second car. She was taken to the Williamston General Hospital, but died on the way. The senior Mrs. Roberson had left the car in which she was riding when the first accident occurred or she may have been killed also.

The funeral for Mrs. Roberson was held on December 24th, in Washington, N. C., and burial was in the Oakdale Cemetery of that community.

An inquest was held at Windsor on Thursday, December 26th, and the truck driver and the negro of the unlighted parked car will be tried in February on charges of manslaughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberson had been members of the Chowan College community only since September. Last year as freshmen they attended Guilford College, and it was there that they met. They were married on August 10th at the Norview Methodist Church, Norfolk. Mrs. Roberson was from that city, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Davis live.

While in Murfreesboro, Mrs. Roberson had been employed as a receptionist at the Holland Funeral Home. The couple had lived across the street at the home of Mrs. Godwin Jenkins. They had become acquainted with a large number of townspeople and the college family, and many expressions of deep sympathy have been received by the bereaved husband.

He returned to the campus to resume his studies on January 2nd, the opening day of the post-holiday period.

Thanks Red Apple

The secretary of the college faculty has been requested to write the management of the Red Apple restaurant expressing thanks of faculty and students for the discount cards recently distributed.

Faculty members and students, with the cards signed, are to be given a ten per cent discount when they dine at the Red Apple.

STORIES

lars. The price of such a vessel would establish centers like the one mentioned in a thousand "desolate valleys" throughout the world, each with a hundred thousand dollars to use in helping the depressed masses to help themselves and build international brotherhood. What might not such an investment, if properly manned and motivated, mean to humanity.

Those who scoff at the practicality and efficiency of such measures of Christianity-in-action might ponder the words of the late Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

"Christianity has not failed," declared this valiant Virginian. "It is simply that nations have failed to try it. There would be no war in a God-directed world."

Student Government has again become the talk of the campus here at Chowan. This time it is hoped that it will function properly and be successful.

The Women's Judiciary is a very important part of student government and for this reason all students should know its members and its functions.

The aims of the Women's Judiciary are to aid in better living conditions for boarding women students at Chowan; to aid in developing women as leaders; and help in the improvement of the college as a whole.

The membership consists of a president, four representatives from the dormitory and one day student, making a total of six members.

Candidates for the judiciary are elected from an eligible list of the incoming sophomores and they must have an average of "C", have a good spirit toward the organization, and show evidence of leadership.

The judiciary meets every two weeks, special meetings being called if the need arises. The Dean of Women, or her designated representative, attends each meeting.

The officers of the judiciary hold office for a school term. It is their duty to report any infraction of rules, or any conduct detrimental to the life on the campus to the regular meetings of the judiciary. In most cases the judiciary takes care of the disciplinary problems. However, if the problem is of a very serious nature, it is referred to the Student Affairs Committee which is made up of faculty members.

Baby Girl For Kelton Rays

A baby girl was born Tuesday, January 21, to Mr. and Mrs. William Kelton Ray. Valarie Lynne Ray, weighing in at 8½ pounds, arrived at 7:00 p. m., and in such a hurry she came into the world at the home of her grandparents at Seaboard.

The father is a student at the Roy Parker School of Printing at Chowan College. The mother, the former Lillie Mae Davis, completed a course in Teletypesetter operation last year at the same school.

Congratulations from their many friends at Chowan!
