

REBECCA SMITH DUNBAR, Class of '60, of Swan Quarter, now employed as a general clerk with the Hyde County ASCS has this to say: "I believe that the one-year secretarial course I received at Chowan College will measure up to any other business school or college in North Carolina. I have worked with other people who have attended different business schools and colleges, and I feel that I am just as well prepared for the business world as they are."

WILLIAM P. MILLER, Class of '60, has now earned a degree in Business Administration, and is employed in New Bern as a State Probation Officer, North Carolina State Probation Commission, says: "I feel this department is very fine—one of the best. I received excellent instruction at Chowan."

BETSY SUMNER HALL, Class of '61, formerly of Conway, now working with the Delaware State Board of Education, Dover, as NDEA secretary, comments: "The job I hold could not have been handled by anyone without some college background. Chowan prepared me very well for the business world."

ELLEN ANN FINCH, Class of '60, formerly of Merry Hill, now a first-grade teacher in the Agers School, Roanoke Rapids, says: "Although I am teaching, the secretarial course that I took helps me greatly; I use my typing and shorthand quite often. I think that Chowan rates on the top compared to other junior colleges."

WILLIAM PRUDEN SPIVEY, Class of '62, from Windsor, now a student at East Carolina College, spares us the following comments: "In my opinion, Chowan is a very good college. The Department of Business does a superior job in preparing students for the business world and in preparing students for further educational training at other institutions."

JEAN DIXON BARLOW, Class of '61, from Murfreesboro, is employed with Ford Division, Ford Motor Company, Norfolk, Virginia, as an accounts receivable clerk, and comments: "I think Chowan has a wonderful Department of Business, provided one takes advantage of its benefits. I feel that I received a good course of study, and each day I realize how important many of the courses were that I completed."

SAM TALL BEALE, III, Class of '60, from Boykins, now employed with the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, is attending Old Dominion College in Norfolk. Sam will have earned a degree in Business Administration in December, 1963. He speaks well for Chowan: "The business training which I received at Chowan College was very good, and particularly outstanding were the courses in accounting and business law."

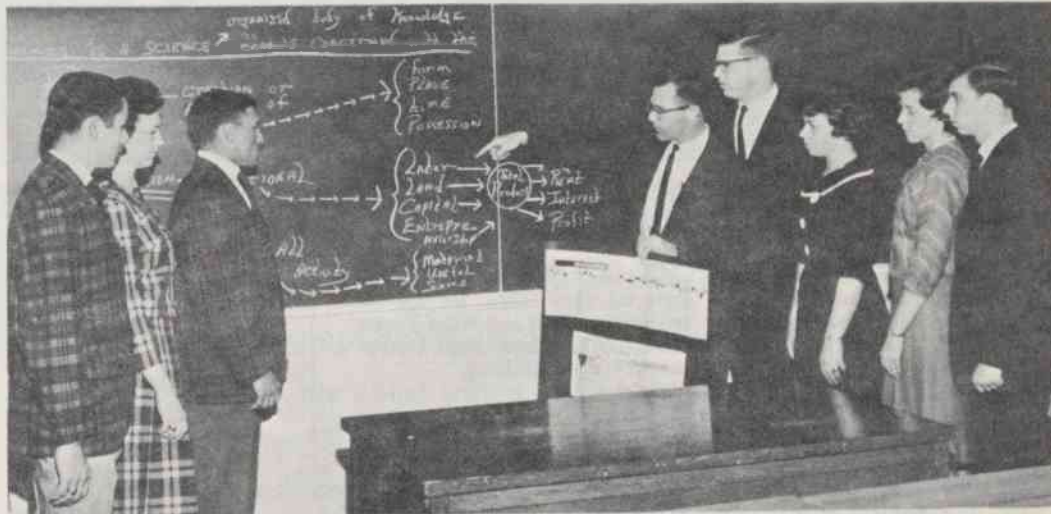

WANDA ROSE McCANTS, Class of '61, from Pantego, has just completed requirements for the B.S. Degree in Business Education and plans a teaching career. Wanda says, "It is hard to put into a brief statement what Chowan College has meant to me because it involves so many things. I think that the two years of business training received there will compare favorably with other institutions offering business courses. As for working on a degree, you have to WORK no matter where you are!"

ERNEST W. WHITTINGTON, JR., Class of '62, originally from Roanoke Rapids, now is working toward a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Accounting at the University of Richmond, and writes as follows: "The Chowan Department of Business prepares its accounting students as well as any college I know."

WILLIAM CARLISLE HARREL, Class of '58, from Columbia, now is teaching bookkeeping and ACCOUNTING—Accounting students have many questions even after the period bell rings. Here Mr. Ruffin is checking on the understanding of adjusting entries.

ECONOMICS—Great emphasis today is placed on better economic literacy. Mr. Helms is discussing specific ingredients with this student group.

general business in the city schools of Chesapeake, Virginia. He has this to say about his alma mater: "There is only one thing I can say about the business training at Chowan College and the college in general; and that is for you to keep up the good work and you will see the rewards as will be reflected in the lives of the men and women you are training."

SAMUEL BILLY TAYLOR, Class of '61, from Spring Hope, now is student teaching at the J. H. Rose High School in Greenville, thus completing the last requirement of his degree in business. Billy says: "I feel that the Department of Business at Chowan is one of the top business departments in the Southern part of the United States among small colleges. The basis of my business career was laid at Chowan."

WILLIE J. HASTY, JR., Class of '59, Roanoke Rapids, now employed as a bank examiner with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Richmond District, comments: "The Department of Business at Chowan is as good as any. My training at Chowan was just as important as my training at East Carolina College in preparing me for my present job."

FAYE NADEANE ROSE, Class of '61, from Norlina, now is employed as secretary to the regional manager of the Occidental Life Insurance Company, Raleigh, and comments: "In the one year that I attended Chowan College, I was well prepared to face the business world. In talking with friends and acquaintances who attended other colleges, I find that Chowan offered me one of the best backgrounds to be had."

SARA LOU PRITCHARD, Class of '62, from Hertford, now attending Atlantic Christian College, where she is working toward a degree in accounting. Sara is most anxious to complete all necessary requirements and then apply for the CPA examination; she has this to say: "I think the courses I took at Chowan in the Department of Business helped me decide that I wanted to go into accounting instead of business education."

GRAHAM DALTON LYON, Class of '60, from Ahoskie, has earned the Bachelor of Arts Degree in accounting from East Carolina College and is employed with the Union Bag-Camp Paper Corporation, Franklin, Virginia, as cost accountant. Dalton's comments are: "All subjects taken appreciated; accounting most beneficial."

MARCELLUS EVERETT ROBERSON, JR., Class of '60, from Robersonville, now employed with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation as a Bank Examiner, says: "I found the courses and the instruction at Chowan College more than sufficient to prepare me for senior college." Everett has earned the Bachelor of Science degree.

Present Chowan Students

ROBERT L. EVANS, from Hampton, Va., business administration, who plans to attend the University of Richmond.

"In my years at Chowan, I have accumulated many gripes and criticisms, yet Chowan has to be considered a valuable asset to me and any graduating sophomore, because this college has been the stepping stone, so to speak, to a greater education. I feel Chowan College could become known predominantly for its Department of Business, because of the strength and size of the department."

NANCY J. BENFIELD, from Statesville, one-year secretarial, has plans for a position in Greensboro.

"Chowan's Department of Business has given me a better chance of obtaining the position I want. Why? Because I have taken advantage of the one-year secretarial program which it offers. This program has greatly helped me and prepared me for my future career. I would sincerely recommend it to all students who are thinking about a career in business but planning only one year of training."

ELIZABETH WRIGHT, from White Plains, Va., medical secretarial administration, plans to work next year.

"I feel that because of my training here at Chowan, I will be able to hold down a much better job. Also, it has helped me gain knowledge in a broad business world. Things that helped were such varied subjects as economics, law, accounting, English, zoology and botany."

"I have talked to girls going to East Carolina, Madison, and Longwood Colleges who are in the field of business; and I feel sure that our goals are just as high as theirs. We are just as advanced as they are in any subject that I have taken."

GERALD B. ROWLAND, from Roanoke Rapids, plans to attend East Carolina College.

"The two years spent at Chowan have afforded me a better understanding of the use of the tools of life which will be beneficial in future endeavors. The training is rigorous and thorough, but the knowledge imparted is very valuable."

ROBERT K. HARRIS, Petersburg, Va., business administration, plans to attend the University of Kentucky or Stetson.

"My training here at Chowan has meant quite a bit to me. I think it has prepared me to go on to a larger college, something that I really needed."

The Department of Business stands head and shoulders above any other department in the college, and I especially like the encouragement that I have received during my two years here."

CLIFFORD G. WRIGHT, Dover, Del., business administration, plans to attend Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

"My training here at Chowan on the academic level has enlightened me in my views of the necessity of higher education. It is not for

(Continued on next page)

SHORTHAND—Modern techniques are employed in teaching shorthand. Miss Craven is assisting these students in speed development. Students are: Kathryn F. Byrum, Edenton; Elma Davis, Woodville; Bonnie Baker, Pointer, Virginia; and Rell Taylor, Whitakers.

BUSINESS LAW—But is this contract valid? Students feel that law is by far one of the most beneficial courses in the entire college curriculum. The courses in law are taught by Mr. Wallace.