LOCAL BRIEFS

Rev. N. C. Hughes will preach at the Episcopal church next Sunday night at 7:30.

Hon. T. W. Bickett, Democratic candidate for Governor, will speak at Carthage on the 28th of October.

Although the Baptist church is being repaired and remodeled there will be preaching by the pastor at the church next Sunday morning and night.

Lee county is going to have a very creditable exhibit at the State Fair, especially corn. The exhibit will be carried to Raleigh Friday morning by those who have it in charge.

The new Graded School building is nearing completion and the contractor expects to be able to turn it over to the board of trustees by the 1st or 15th of November.

Rev. Clarence Pardo, who is pastor of Presbyterian churches in West Virginia, was recently ordained at Presbytery in Charleston. Mr. Pardo has received calls to some large city churches.

Mrs. Maggie A. Hair, sister of Mrs. W. B. Johnson, of this place, died at her home in Cumberland county on the 4th inst. in the sixty-second year of her age. She was a member of the Baptist church and a lovable Christian character.

John Woodard, colored, was committed to jail by Mayor Howard Monday to serve a sentence of 30 days upon the charge of vagrancy. There are others in Sanford that might be sent up on this charge, and they are not all colored citizens.

Special trains will be run over the Seaboard to Raleigh next Wednesday and Thursday, 18th and 19th on account of the State Fair. The train will leave Sanford at 7:50 a. m. Round trip fare, including ticket to the fair grounds, $2.15. Sanford and Lee county will be well represented.

The Sandhill Citizen states that 1,400 acres are to be planted to peaches in the Sandhills this winter. Mr. J. Van Lindley, who has a large orchard near Southern Pines, received fancy prices for his peaches this year and although the crop was short he realized a good profit.

The Democrats are busy organizing all over the county. A number of Wilson-Bickett Clubs have organized and others will be organized during the next few days. Let every Democrat in the county join one of the clubs and work for the success of the Democratic ticket. Help make the majority as big as possible on the 7th of November.

Prof. J. E. Brian, the former superintendent of the Jonesboro graded school, but who has, for the past year, more made his home in Johnson county, has returned to this county and is now connected with the Sanford Real Estate, Loan and Insurance Company. Prof. Brian expects to move his family from Johnson to Sanford soon where they will make their home.

Mr. J. F. Kelly, who has handled the cashier's desk at the Southern Express office in this city for the past year, has been promoted to the agency at Burlington, S. C. Mr. W. J. Ball, who for the past five years has acted as day transfer clerk at the depot office, takes Mr. Kelly's place as cashier. Mr. E. C. Bass, of Sanford, fills the vacancy at the depot office as transfer clerk. - Fayetteville Observer.

Young men of this section who are going to cast their first vote at the election on November 7th, should attend the big Democratic rally at this place on Friday, Oct. 28th. You will hear something about the true principles of Democracy and go away better prepared to cast an intelligent ballot. Do not expect to vote the Republican ticket. It will not hurt you to hear the other side of the great questions of the day presented.

The heavy frost Tuesday night damaged crops in this section to the amount of thousands of dollars. One farmer reports that not more than half his cotton was open. Much of the top crop, if not entirely ruined, will be yellow cotton. Some corn, which was not yet ripe, has been damaged. It was the heaviest killing frost that has come in several years and the crops being late the damage was heavy. As the frost comes in the fall, it will feel a good deal better.

By putting the State Fair exhibit on the Eureka Farm Life School, consisted of almost every article that is raised in the Sandhills. This excellent advertisement for the rural nurse as this very popular exhibit with both the public, showed up in through the work of basket making, has gotten it down to a fine art. These baskets and watters sell at fancy prices. There was a good exhibit of cakes, jellies, preserved and canned fruits.

Congressman E. N. Page spent a few hours here Wednesday while on his way to Broadway where he spoke that night.

The Baptist Philanthropy Class will have a picnic party at the home of Mrs. T. E. King next Thursday evening, October 19th. The public is cordially invited.

A boys' corn judging contest will be held here on the second day of the Lee County Fair. The boys will do the judging. All corn club boys in the county are requested to bring ten ears of corn each to the fair for this judging contest.

Dr. R. F. Sladd, of Wake Forest College, will lecture at the Graded School Auditorium Friday evening at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the Civic Department of the Women's Club on his trip abroad. Admission, adults, 35c; children, 15c.

A large number of preachers and delegates passed through Sanford the first of the week on their way to Lillington to attend Fayetteville Presbytery which is now in session there. Rev. W. S. Golden, Messrs. A. & F. Seawell, W. S. Weatherpoon and others from the Sanford Presbyterian church are in attendance. Some of the members of the church go down, spend the day and return at night.

At the meeting of the Lee County Agricultural Society Saturday afternoon Mrs. T. M. Cross was elected manager of needle and fancy work department. The executive board was directed to secure a speaker for the fair. Mr. R. M. McIver, County Demonstrator, was appointed a committee of one to secure judges for the agricultural and live stock departments. It was decided that the Agricultural Society should hold its next meeting Friday afternoon instead of Saturday so as to give the merchants of the town and others an opportunity to attend. Everybody who is interested in the fair and wishes to see it made a success is invited to attend this meeting.

The Sandhill Fair.

In company with Mr. E. M. Underwood and family we attended the Sandhill Fair at Pinehurst last Friday afternoon. The trip was made from Sanford to Pinehurst in Mr. Underwood's car in one hour and twenty-five minutes. This was made possible by the splendid highways that have been built in Lee and Moore counties. Ten years ago it would have taken one five or six hours to have covered the distance with a horse and buggy. The rough stretch of road between here and Pinehurst is the Sanford Jonesboro road. The Moore county roads were recently repaired and are now in good shape.

The farmers were busy gathering their crops along the way. The fields were white with cotton, and on some farms very little of it had been picked. In some places much of it had not opened. We saw some very good as well as sorry cotton. Forces of hands and teams were busily engaged grading and straightening the Seaboard track in the neighborhood of Van and Niagara.

Upon reaching Pinehurst we found a large number of new cars who were from the south. They were there from four or five counties. The fair was held in the club house at Pinehurst under the auspices of the Sandhill Board of Trade and the Women's Auxiliary. There were no tent shows or midway. The parade was a feature of the fair, there being many beautiful floats representing business houses and other concerns. As we entered the fair building the first thing that attracted our attention was some splendid music that was being made by an orchestra composed of girls from Flora McDonald College, Red Springs. It was worth a trip to Pinehurst to hear that music. The girls handled those instruments with the ease and grace of some old master. The time was perfect. Dr. Vaddell, president of the college, who sat near by never felt happier in his life. But it was left to the girls of this college to carry out another part of the program that did not fail to attract attention. While surrounded by an immense crowd of people some twelve or fifteen of these girls dressed in suits made of Scotch plaids danced the Highland fling on the green lawn in front of the fair building. This caught the crowd who went wild with enthusiastic applause.

Going through the fair building we saw some exhibits equal to anything that will be exhibited at the State Fair. The first exhibit examined was the ladies' handwork. There was a splendid exhibit in that line from the patients of the State Sanatorium at Montrose. This exhibit, which will be carried to the State Fair, won first premium as being the best general display. There was much fine fancy work in this exhibit. An exhibit that attracted no little attention was that of baskets, watters and other articles made of pine needles or straw. There were some beautiful baskets in this collection.

Miss Jennie Corrie, who instructs in the work of basket making, has gotten it down to a fine art. These baskets and watters sell at fancy prices. There was a good exhibit of cakes, jellies, preserved and canned fruits.

MARRIAGES.

Harrington-Wicker.

Mr. W. W. Harrington and Miss Coraella B. Wicker were married at the home of the bride's father, Mr. J. M. Wicker, near this place, on Wednesday night of last week. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. A. McLaurin, of Jonesboro, pastor of the bride. It was a very quiet home marriage and was witnessed by only a few near relatives. After receiving the congratulations and best wishes of those present the bride and groom drove over to this place and are now making their home in a cottage on McIver street. The bride is a most excellent young woman and is highly esteemed by her friends. Mr. Harrington is one of Lee county's most substantial citizens and has for years engaged in farming near this place. His activities have been for progress and development, he is a member of the Lee County Highway Commission.
