

LOCAL BRIEFS

The next term of Lee Superior Court will convene Monday, November 8th, with Judge W. A. Devin presiding. It will be a term of one week.

The rural public schools of Lee county will open for the fall term November 1st. A few of the schools supported by the supplementary tax have already opened.

A few more days and the agony will be over in county, State and nation, and everybody will be glad that the matter is settled, whether they are on the winning side or not.

The slump in prices is causing some of our merchants to offer goods at greatly reduced prices. Lots of goods have been sold here during the past few days at re-adjustment sales.

The revival meeting which was conducted by Rev. C. L. Wicker, of Gulf, and Rev. Mr. McManess, of Goldston, at Oumook last week, closed last Sunday night. The meeting was well attended and much interest manifested.

Miss Gertrude Little is at Raleigh this week in charge of the home demonstration military booth at the State Fair. Miss Little was a judge at the Chatham county fair at Siler City last week. She says it was a very creditable fair.

The walls of the new garage, which is being built by Mr. Frank Snipes, on Carriage street, are about completed. The building is of concrete brick made on the ground by Link Boykin. It will be a very substantial building when completed.

We are told that more liquor is now being made in the woods of Lee county than in many months. Large quantities of it is brought to Sanford and sold every week. It is said that much of it is brought in by smugglers in automobile tires. It is also handled in fruit jars.

Mr. W. W. Harrington, cotton weigher at this place, has ordered scales to weigh cotton, but it has not yet arrived. It was agreed that he should furnish the scales and the cotton buyers build the platform, but as yet nothing has been done about the matter. It has not been decided where the platform shall be located.

We are informed that more long staple cotton was raised in this section this year than ever before. Farmers raised it on the strength of the high price it brought last season. It sold for about three times as much as the short staple cotton. We are informed that there will not be that much difference in the price of the two staples this year.

There was no preaching at the Presbyterian church last Sunday. The pastor, Rev. W. S. Golden, assisted by Rev. Eugene Alexander, of Sanford, installed Rev. C. K. Taft pastor of Carriage, Union and Bureau Presbyterian churches. Mr. Taft is a very able young preacher and these churches are to be congratulated upon securing him as their pastor.

The drive that is being made to get the women of Lee county registered for the November election is meeting with success, but still there are some who have not been on the registration books. If their names are not put on the books during the next two days they cannot vote. It makes no difference how anxious they may be to do so. Saturday is the last day in which one will have the opportunity to register.

The slump in the price of agricultural products and other things doesn't seem to effect the tourist travel. Tourists are going through Sanford every day in large numbers. Some times a half dozen or more cars are seen to pass along together. The dust is so great that the tourists and their cars are covered with it. If these tourists were to appear in the presence of their friends without first washing their faces they would hardly recognize them.

The merchants and business people on Chatham street believe in keeping things clean and in order. You can stand on the street corner at the Banking Loan and Trust Company and by looking down the street in the direction of Jonesboro for some distance you will hardly see a scrap of paper. All waste paper and other rubbish is collected and burned by people engaged in business along that street. They have also had the street sprinkled for the past week or two at their own expense. If the merchants and business men on Moore, Wicker and Steele streets would do this the business section of the town would be in better shape.

Last week Mr. S. W. Kent, who runs a meat market at this place, butchered the largest beef he has ever handled since he has been in the market business. It was a Holstein bull and was owned by Mr. John M. Melver, of Gulf. It was four years old and weighed 1,900 pounds. Mr. Kent paid $148.00 for the animal. He was so heavy that Mr. Kent experienced much trouble in butchering him. The hide weighed 135 pounds, the forequarters averaged 250 pounds and the hindquarters 200 pounds. The hide on his neck and jaws was more than an inch thick. This animal, which was as big as a good sized elephant, became so unruly that he had to be killed. He could not be kept in an enclosure when it suited him roam at will. He would even go through a barbed wire fence.

The Carolina Power and Light Company is making a second offering of cumulative preferred stock. The stock pays dividends every three months, amounting to $7 a share each year. As the price is $100, this is 7 per cent on the money invested. One of the features of the arrangement is that through a partial payment plan sums as small as $5 month may be invested. Believing that the dividends on its preferred stock should be distributed among those who support the company and those who operate it, the policy of the company is to establish partnership relations with its customers, employees and other residents of the towns and cities which it serves. The company is glad to have a large number of small stockholders. Those purchasing on the installment plan may withdraw, if they wish, at any time before making the final payments and receive the money they paid in with 8 per cent interest.

Mr. W. A. Self, one of the Democratic electors-at large, will speak in the graded school auditorium at Jonesboro Friday night at 7:30. Mr. Self is one of the best speakers in the State and should have a full house. Ladies, as well as men, are urged to go out and hear him.

Mr. W. F. Loyd, of this county, has engaged in furnishing crop reports for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture this year, and for his efficient service in this work, has been awarded, along with twenty-nine other farmers of the State, a ticket to the State Fair grounds at Raleigh this week. There were 300 farmers engaged in this work and the thirty out of this number that furnished the best reports were awarded tickets. Mr. Loyd has a very fine exhibit of twelve ears of corn at the fair this week. We doubt if there is a better exhibit of corn at the fair.

The Greensboro News states that Mr. Donald McIver, of Ocmulgee, Fla., who has been visiting relatives and friends in that city, had his pockets rifled at the fair grounds there on last Thursday afternoon and a $3,000 note removed from them. At least, he says he had the note in his pockets when he entered the fair grounds and missed it when he came out, and he has little hopes of ever recovering it. If Mr. McIver is a bit superstitious he will probably hereafter give Greensboro a wide berth during fair week. While he was in that city at the fair a year ago he had a similar experience. His pockets at that time were robbed of $5,000 in money, notes and bonds, and all that he ever recovered was an empty pocket book, which was dropped on the street.

Two Seaboard Air Line engineers were arrested by police officers here Friday, charged before Mayor Howard and fined for exceeding the speed limit in running their trains into town. A few months ago the Board of Aldermen passed an ordinance making six miles an hour the limit for running trains inside the corporate limits of the town. These were the first arrests made under this ordinance. This ordinance was passed to eliminate, as much as possible, the danger at crossings. Some time ago the board tried to get the Seaboard to install safety gates at the crossings. The railroad finally induced the board to accept a compromise and watchmen were stationed at the crossings. The watchmen have had trouble in stopping people from driving over the crossings in front of approaching trains, and the engineers failed to observe the ordinance against speeding their trains over the crossings. Hence the decision of the board to enforce the ordinance. Although north-bound passenger train No. 12 was running about three hours late Friday, Police Officer Turner forced the train to remain here along enough for the engineer to go with him to the mayor's office and pay the fine and costs. Since then the engineers have been more careful in handling their trains while pulling through the town.

Tuberculosis Clinic
For a long time workers engaged in the fight against tuberculosis have realized that early diagnosis is the most important step in the cure of the disease. For the last six years a clinic has been held at the State Sanatorium every morning, Sunday excepted, between the hours of eight and eleven a. m., where residents of North Carolina could be examined for tuberculosis without charge. The services of this clinic have been sought by such a large number of people that it became necessary to require an appointment for examination as only a limited number could be examined each day. In order to provide an additional opportunity for free examinations for those desiring it, the State Board of Health, the American Red Cross and the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association are cooperating by holding diagnostic clinics at any point in North Carolina where six or more desiring an examination can be gathered. The Clinic Physician, Dr. J. L. Sprull, is furnished by the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association. He is a skilled tuberculous diagnostician having been for three years clinician for the State Sanatorium. The nurses are furnished by the State Board of Health and the American Red Cross, and have a wide experience in public health nursing in the State. Since May this year clinics have been held in Burke, Edgecombe, Madison, Swain and Washington counties, and in the cities of Asheville and Spray. During these clinics 721 examinations were made, of this number 248 were found to have tuberculosis. One hundred and seven showed signs but had no definite symptoms and further examination by the aid of the X-Ray and tuberculin tests were advised. Three hundred and forty-eight were found to be free of the disease. Towns and counties desiring to hold clinics may secure appointment by applying to the North Carolina Sanatorium, Sanatorium, N. C.

Reason Why the Price of Cotton Should Advance
The 1920 crop is the sixth short crop that the world has had. This in itself is a sufficient reason for a high price on cotton. Furthermore, most of the cotton held over from last year is extremely low grade cotton. Much of the cotton this year is of a low grade, and much of it will be left in the fields. In fact, because of the very low price of the inferior grades of cotton and the high cost of picking, a great many farmers are leaving this year in the fields. This will reduce the estimate on the 1920 crop by many hundreds of thousands of bales. The low temperature and early frosts will also reduce the cotton production for 1920. Aside from the fact that the cost of producing the 1920 cotton crop has been estimated to be 40 cents or more, and that the Southern planter is entitled to at least the cost of production, there are many reasons why his cotton should bring this price or more. Above all, the spinners can afford to pay 40 cents a pound for raw cotton and still make a profit and allow a reduction over former prices to the consuming public.
