Mass Meeting Friday Night
 A large number of the citizens of the town attended a mass meeting at the City Hall last Friday night. The poster advertising this meeting was not signed by any one and did not go into the details as to the object in holding the meeting. Mr. Sam Hoyle who finally called the meeting to order stated that it was held for the purpose of assisting the Board of Aldermen in solving the problems now confronting the town. Mr. W. S. Weatherpoon was made chairman and Mr. D. L. St. Clair secretary.

At the request of some one the town budget was read after which there was a general discussion as to how money should be raised to resume the work of keeping the streets in repair and sprinkled and for keeping the town clean and in a sanitary condition. The board had to suspend this work on account of not having funds to carry it on. They had hoped to get the money by asking the town to increase the tax assessment, but that proposition was "turned down" at the recent election. It was found that the town was in debt to the amount of $15,000. The board had to borrow the money to meet operating expenses as the amount raised from taxes was not sufficient to take care of things. Every one present realized that the town was "up against it," and that it will take some nice work to get things going again. The board has done its best to make "both ends meet," but found it impossible to do so without increasing the tax rate. As nothing feasible was offered as to how the problem should be met adjustment was taken without having accomplished anything. After leaving the hall some of our citizens were heard to remark that if they had known the true condition of affairs they would have voted for the measure when the election was held.

Young Girl Accidentally Killed
 Miss Ada Smith, the 18-year old daughter of Mr. Dave Smith, of the Monroe section, was shot and killed Wednesday night. The particulars of this tragic affair are about as follows: While Miss Smith and a party of young people were on their way to the store, at the Dye old place, to get a supply of gas. After the gas had been put in the car, Mr. Dickens entered the store to change some money when a gun in the building was discharged, the load taking effect about the head and shoulders of Miss Smith who was seated in the car. The wounded girl who was rushed to Sanford for treatment died soon after being carried to Central Carolina Hospital. The body was turned over to Undertaker Rogers for burial.

It is thought that the killing was accidental. Mr. Dickens, who is a very nervous man, had set a gun in his store as a protection against robbers, and it is thought that he forgot about having set the trap when he went to enter the store.

Realizing the seriousness of the deed Mr. Dickens became frightened and disappeared and at last accounts Sheriff Lassiter, who went to search for him, had not succeeded in apprehending him.

How I Became My Own Grandfather
 I married a widow who had a daughter. My father visited our house frequently, fell in love with my step-daughter and married her. Thus my father became my son-in-law, and my step-daughter my mother, because she was my father's wife. My step-daughter had also a son; he was of course my brother and at the same time my grandchild, for he was the son of my daughter.

My wife was my grandmother, because she was my mother's mother, I was my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time, and as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather, I became my own grandfather.—The Review.
