AVERY VIBRATOR Fertilizer Distributors

(Regular and double foot models)

Constant, regulated flow of fertilizer—up hill or down

In all Avery Vibrators the tap-tap principle of fertilizer distribution entirely does away with the wasteful and uncertain results of the "knocking" or "jolting" methods commonly employed. It makes no difference whether this distributor is working up hill or down, over rough ground or even—distribution is constant, can be regulated at will, and fertilizer is evenly and efficiently distributed.

This is how the Avery Vibrator works. In the bottom of the hopper is a flat oscillating plate connected to a trigger which comes in contact with the lugs on the wheel, as you can see in the picture. The result is a series of steady taps which force fertilizer through the spout—evenly and smoothly. The quantity of fertilizer dropped can be regulated accurately. There is no knocking or jolting. The best thing about the tap-tap principle is its simplicity. There are few moving parts, and replacement of parts subject to wear is a simple job and puts the machine in as fine shape as when it left the factory.

With the Avery Double Foot Distributor, illustrated, the fertilizer is evenly covered after distribution. Other Avery Fertilizer Distributors meet every condition and requirement. Come in and let us point out the Avery Plus features that mean better, more economical fertilizer distribution.

There is a full line of famous Avery walking, riding and tractor plows, tillage implements and Champion harvesting machinery!
