FOURTH OF JULY

ly discussing the significance of the Declaration of Independence. He pronounced it one of the world's greatest documents. He felt that this and the Constitution should be held up to the youth of the land as a guide.

Mr. Fountain informed his hearers that he did not come to Sanford to discuss politics or make a political speech, but he wanted to take advantage of the opportunity to discuss the merits and demerits of the Brookings survey and the proposed new State Constitution. As the Brookings survey recommends the short ballot and abolishes or consolidates many counties, "I warn the people against this," said Mr. Fountain.

Before he had spoken half a dozen words on the subject, one realized that he was very much opposed to the proposed new Constitution. He gave his reasons for the faith that was in him in very plain English. He said he was opposed to centralization in handling governmental affairs and to vote for that measure would commit one to that doctrine. He appealed to his hearers to stand by the old landmarks and be on the safe side. He found many serious objections to the proposed new Constitution but the most serious fault he had to find of it was that it placed the affairs of the State government in the hands of comparatively few people. He said that the document was framed by nine men. He warned the people to be on their guard and when they went to the polls cast their votes to kill this measure.

4-H Clubs Gather in Washington

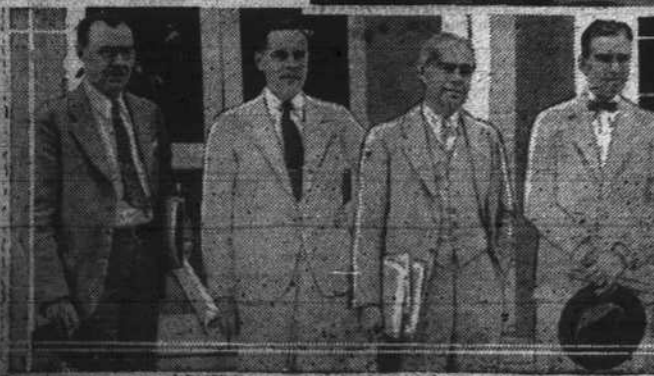

ABOVE: Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, whose informal address at the recent 4-H Club Camp in Washington was read with interest throughout the nation, photographs the programs of two lucky 4-H members from Iowa. They are James F. Kearns and Miss Florence E. Mader. Attractive Miss Mader has specialized in canning, clothing and room improvement since 1927. Although Secretary Wallace's recent writings have shown him to be a believer in world trade, he has made the point that certain vital industries have to be built up in this country. While he did not name any of these, many people feel that the nitrate of soda industry is one of them. (Photo by I. N. F.)

RIGHT: Like an old-hand at broadcasting, C. L. Gramling, Jr., of Orangeburg, S. C., tells the nation radio audience how he has completed eight years of outstandingly successful 4-H Club work in corn, cotton and wool. Young Mr. Gramling's trip to Washington was made possible by The Barrett Company, distributors of Arcadian, the American nitrate of soda. As part of its agricultural development work, this company takes a keen interest in both the 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America and co-operation with their leaders. It has found that its contacts and donations of American nitrate of soda, not only help the boys towards better farming methods but also enable them to learn first hand what fine results this improved product of the South gives. LEFT: An important quartet in agricultural affairs, these officials have been working day and night to aid the drought-stricken West but were not too busy to take an interest in the 4-H Camp. Left to right, they are: Col. L. W. Westbrooke, assistant to the Federal Emergency Relief Administrator; Wm. I. Myers, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration; Chester A. Davis, Agricultural Adjustment Administrator, and Sanford Tugwell, who has just been appointed under-Secretary of Agriculture. Mr. Tugwell's address was one of the highlights of the Camp. This Lady Surprised Us!

Just the other day, one of our good customers asked "What is a KILOWATT HOUR?"

SHE is one of our finest customers—she makes use of ten or a dozen of the newest electric appliances in her home—but the other day she told us she just didn't understand the meaning of a "kilowatt hour." It always bothered her when she paid her monthly bill, she asked us to explain.

It is really quite simple: a "kilowatt hour" is a unit of measurement. Just like a quart of milk, a yard of cloth, a peck of potatoes or a pound of meat. That's all—just a convenient unit to measure the amount of electricity you use in your home each month.

She confessed to us, even after we had explained, that what bothered her most was that she couldn't see it—couldn't measure it with her eye like she could a quart, a peck or a pound.

That's true. You can't see electricity at work, but you can measure the work it does for you. For example:

One kilowatt hour (or KWH as it appears on your bill) will light that 60 watt lamp in your hallway for two nights—over 16 hours. It will run a smaller lamp, say 40 watts, for 25 hours.

One KWH will operate your electric refrigerator for just about 12 hours.

It will run your washing machine for 5 hours. It will run an average size electric fan 15 hours.

Under our rates, kilowatt hours cost very little. And the more you use, the less each one costs—just as you'd expect.

If you have not recently seen the new Electric appliances, make a point of dropping in to your dealer's store some time soon. Or stop in at our store and have someone show you around. There's no obligation to buy.
