BANKERS ARRANGING REGIONAL MEETINGS

Studying New Legal and Economic Conditions Affecting Bank Management

STRESS PUBLIC OPINION

American Bankers Association Sponsor of Meeting. A Part of Nationwide Program of Banking Development

PHILADELPHIA—Fifteen hundred bankers from fifteen eastern states met here in January in a two day conference devoted to discussions on legislative, managerial, operating and public relations problems of the banking business. This was the first of a series of meetings planned by the American Bankers Association in its nationwide program of banking development under the leadership of Robert V. Fleming, president of the association. Similar conferences will be held in southern and western sections of the country.

"It is the purpose of these working conferences to bring to association members and other bankers a thorough knowledge of the changes in banking laws and rules, provide discussion of better public relations so that there shall be greater cooperation and understanding between the banker and his customers, and to give opportunity for a survey of the problems incident to the Government's competition with our chartered institutions," he said.

To Help Government Quit Bankers The discussions at the conference showed that the bankers are ready to make it easier for the Government to relinquish many of its emergency financial services as soon as possible by demonstrating how their institutions are able to render full banking facilities.

Bankers generally have recognized that in times of emergency the Government had to come to the assistance of the people where chartered institutions were unable to do so on account of such conditions, Mr. Fleming said. They also realize that possibly many functions which the Government is performing are of a nature which cannot be handled by chartered institutions under fundamental principles of sound banking.

On the other hand, he said, "we should survey all emergency lending measures of the Government to judge which of these activities can be properly and soundly taken over by banks."

The attending bankers devoted time to considering the Banking Act of 1935 and the many related regulations and discretionary powers under the Federal law. These were explained by G. Howard Wolfe of Philadelphia, who said he had found there are forty-eight places in the act where provision is made for discretionary power to be exercised by government officials through rule or regulation.

Bank taxation was discussed by Charles H. Mylander of Columbus, Ohio, who declared that "the average American is vitally interested in taxation of banks because solvency may depend to a large degree upon the way in which the taxing power is exercised upon them."

To prove his point he cited earnings figures which showed that, in the year ended June 30, 1934, "for the United States as a whole, national banks used $14.89 out of each $100 of net operating earnings, before taxes, in payment of taxes; but in seven of the twelve Federal Reserve Districts the percentage of earnings used for taxes was above the average. It was in practically these same seven districts that the greatest number of bank failures occurred in those hectic years from 1920 to 1933."

As an example of how far taxation can go, he quoted official figures showing that in 1934 a large number of small state banks paid on the average $34.20 of every $100 of operating profits for taxes. Mr. Mylander urged that there be brought home to the average American the self-evident truth that banks, dealing as they do only in intangible property, are not proper subjects for property taxation; that the true measure of a bank's ability to pay taxes is the earnings it can make.

WHEN BANK CROOKS SHOW PREFERENCES

The American Bankers Association reports that non-member banks suffer twice the percentage of burglaries and hold-up robberies as compared with members. Member banks display a sign showing that they receive the protection of the association's detective agents, who cause the arrest of from 150 to 400 bank crooks every year, the organization, which is a non-profit body, says.

"Professional criminals often boast of having sense enough to dodge the far-reaching system of man-hunting available to members, so long as there are other banks without this protection," it says. "They recognize that once on the record of the Association's Protective Department, they must pay for every crime with which they can be identified. Detainer warrants have followed them from place to place so that penal servitude for one crime would not expiate other offenses."

ON HONOR ROLL Miss Grace Rosser, of Jonesboro, member of the freshman class of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, was one of 130 students at the college to make the honor roll for the fall semester, according to the list of names released recently from the office of Miss Mary Taylor Moore, registrar.

IN MEMORIAM

In the early hours of the morning on December 16, 1935 the gentle spirit of Egdar ugene Lambeth slipped quietly away. He was only sick three hours. His going was such a shock to his loved ones for he seemed to feel unusually well the day before he passed away.

He was the youngest child of the late Alfred T. and Dorothy Chatham Lambeth. He was born December 10, 1870 at the old Lambeth home. He had just passed his 65th birthday. In June 10, 1908 he married Miss Minnie C. Gaddie of Fayetteville, N. C. Of this survive four children, Edgar Eugene, Dorothy Bell, Ruth Gaddie of Monroe, and Mrs. A. T. Darnall, Mocksville N. C. As a citizen he was interested in all civic affairs and his life was an example worthy to be followed. As a friend he was true and loyal, taking a deep interest in those with whom he came in contact and concerned over their welfare. As a husband and father he was kind, thoughtful and gentle. He never turned a deaf ear to the unfortunate and always took time to listen and sympathize with them. Indeed "He was a friend to man". He attended State College at Raleigh.

He was a faithful member of Gum Springs Baptist church from which his funeral was conducted by Rev. T. Y. Seymore and Rev. A. C. Thompson. The interment was in the church cemetery by the side of his brother who preceded him to the grave ten years ago.

"To him death came, no conquer in the end." He merely smiled to meet another friend and may he some day bid those he loved, Good morning.

The oculist was examining the eyes of the patient. Pointing to the letters N P R T V Z E D F H K O on the chart he said, "Please read that line." The patient squinted several times, rubbed his chin and then shook his head. "What's the matter?" asked the oculist. "Can't you read letters that size?" "Yes," replied the patient, "I can see them all right, but I cannot pronounce the word."
