TAR HEEL SCRAP BOOK

BY Lura Thomas McNeil.

It is a wholesome and encouraging thing to note the interest taken throughout America today in the libraries.

Impetus is being given everywhere to the establishment of reading facilities in the small towns. Of course, cities so far back as history allows us to peep took cognizance of the importance of libraries. The little towns have shown great lethargy in this direction.

No matter how reluctant the strata of intellectual highbrows may be to accept the movie as a cultural influence the fact remains that much of the interest in libraries and their establishment in the little towns may be traced to the previous establishment of movie houses.

Now that everyone is familiar with the motion picture play many fans are aroused to the fact that they have been missing something. Who is this author of "The Little Minister" or of "David Copperfield" that other fans should reel in ecstasy upon when billboards announce the appearance of an opus from their pen at the cinema.

The library is the answer—and not to be left behind accepting their money blindly, even the most lethargic toddlers off to the library. Once there he is often surprised at the dinginess and the smallness and the inadequacy of his home town book shelves. Genuine shame engulfs him when he realizes that his own apathy is partly responsible for the condition.

The football fan, the up-and-coming member of the local chamber of commerce realizes at last deep down within him that in spite of the splendid climate, the good citizenry, the clean streets, the good water supply, the good highway connections and the up-and-at-em looking golf course of his town, there may still be other reasons why tourists choose Southern Pines or Waynesville for their stopovers.

Katherine Newlin Burt, certainly a desirable type of tourist or Yankee sojourner to Southern climes gave the tourist's viewpoint on this matter in a letter to "The Pilot" more than two years ago.

I shall quote from the letter: "A town without a library is either one of such a high degree of culture and wealth that each family has a well stocked and up to date book room of his own; or it is a town of such low degree of culture that it cares to keep in touch neither with modern life nor with the past." That is stating the matter in no uncertain terms.

She further states: "Students use the library, young and mature people who like to be up to the times and certainly can better pay a membership fee than the price of outstanding best sellers."

Mrs. Burt, who is a successful novelist herself, as well as being the wife of a perhaps even better known novelist, Struthers Burt, enumerates the types who use the Southern Pines library as school children, parents, sick people, convalescents, tired business men, and women who prefer to rent rather than buy books.

"Unless I am very much mistaken," she opines, "I seem to have heard from our business men expressions of interest in the pleasure of our winter visits."

There is another very important reason for maintaining libraries in our home towns which Mrs. Burt does not mention. That is the providing of an attraction to our better class of natives. When we educate our sons and daughters we need them settle in the home town and carry on the industries which we have started or to build up the town by making new jobs or new industries for themselves.

But what is the situation when the young graduate returns and casts an eager eye about the home town before settling into his life work?

Too often the town seems flat and dull. He misses the intellectual stimulus of his student companions. When he approaches some pet subject which is still fresh on his mind from lecture hall or seminar he is met with an appalling vacancy.

He realizes that the home-towners have not kept up with things. Too often they cannot follow except when the conversation is held to petty local affairs or the general news of the daily paper. Too often they have no knowledge of the why and wherefore of current events or of new strides in science or the arts. He turns for solace to the library. And if his town boasts any library at all what does he find in it. A few seedy volumes perused then unsatisfied by his own needs, haps contributed by some one who a frowsy shelf of detective and mystery stores perhaps, a few well worn

Kiwanians Entertained By Music Club Group

The local Kiwanis Club in its regular meeting Friday night was delightfully entertained by members of the Sanford Music Club. The business session of the club was rapidly disposed of to give full time to the ladies of the music club.

President J. C. Pittman stated that he was planning joint meetings of the civic clubs for a Safety on The Highways program at which a representative of the Carolina Motor club would speak to the clubs.

On motion of D. B. Teague it was voted that the club entertain the Sanford teachers at an early date. On the motion of J. E. Brinn, the club voted to meet Wednesday evening instead of Friday evening on account of athletic contests held in Raleigh Friday.

With the business completed Dr. J. F. Foster presented Mrs. B. B. Kammer, President of the Sanford Music Club, who, with six other members of the club, delighted the Kiwanians in the presentation of the following program:

Solo - "Beautiful Lady in Blue" Mrs. H. F. Makepeace.
Piano Duet - "Irish Rhapsody" Mrs. E. W. Hunter and Mrs. H. F. Makepeace.

Reading - "The Lost Purse" Mrs. B. B. Kammer.

Medley - "Mrs. E. W. Hunter"
Solo - "Alone" Mrs. A. V. Gibson.

Chorus - "Lights Out" by the group.

Mrs. E. W. Hunter served as accompanist, and at the close of the program the Kiwanis club joined the members of the Music club in singing several familiar songs. The Sanford Music club is an organization of which the people of Sanford are justly proud, it shows the high order of talent and appreciation of music on the part of the people of Sanford.

L. L. Thomas for the committee on Boys and Girls work reported that they proposed as a project for the year the revival of Boy Scout work and stated they had planned a joint meeting of the three civic clubs of Sanford in the near future at which they would present a program to the Executive of the Oconee County Council to speak to the clubs on Scout work, and recommended that the Kiwanis club sponsor one troop. The report was adopted.

They are taking this method of raising the money to build one they are being going as you will get value received when you take a meal with them. If you enjoy a good old chicken stew you cannot afford to miss this feast.

All Negroes At Lee Road Camp Moved

The color line has been drawn at the highway stockade near Sanford by the highway authorities sending the colored prisoners to other camps where all colored prisoners will be kept. This seems to be the policy of the prison authorities who have decided that it is best to keep the white and colored prisoners in separate camps. They perhaps think that it will be an improvement in disciplining the prisoners and make it easier to handle them.

There are now 90 white prisoners in the stockade at this place. Occasionally one makes his escape, but seldom does he return. Long experience in the business enables him to keep them pretty well in check. The number of prisoners at the stockade varies from month to month. Often they spend only a few weeks or months there.

Newspapermen To Visit Sandhills Land Project

Several hundred North Carolina newspaper editors and prominent citizens of surrounding counties have been invited to attend a meeting here next Tuesday, March 10, to be held in connection with an inspection of the development work on 60,000 acres of Sandhills land recently acquired by the Resettlement Administration.

Dr. L. C. Gray, of Washington, assistant administrator of the Resettlement Administration and one of the nation's greatest land authorities, will speak.

F. W. Eatman, project manager, is being assisted in arranging the affair by the following committee of newspaper editors in towns near the project: Nelson C. Hyde, of the Pilot, Southern Pines; Isaac C. London, Post Dispatch, Rockingham; O. L. Moore, Exchange, Laurinburg; Neil Cadden, News-Messenger, Hamlet; and Clifton Blue, Sandhills Citizen, Vass. Homer H. B. Mask, regional director of the Resettlement Administration, also is cooperating in the arrangements.

A barbecue luncheon is being arranged at the project headquarters as a special feature of the meeting. A tour of the construction work already started will give visitors a chance to get first hand information of what the project is doing in this area. A number of state and county officials and leading citizens are expected to join in the meeting and inspection tour.

Koonce Says Will Take $50,000 Repair Roads

Mr. John Koonce, who is at the head of State road work in this section of the State, thinks it will cost something like $50,000.00 to repair the highways in Lee county and put them in the shape that they were in before they were badly damaged during the winter. Some of the dirt roads were literally washed away and will have to be rebuilt. It is going to take time, labor and money to put them in shape.

It is fully decided that Sanford is to have a new postoffice. First of the week Mrs. C. L. Scott, our clever postmistress, showed us a picture or drawing that gave us some idea of how the building will look when completed. The information giving a description of the proposed postoffice comes from Congressman Lambeth.

The new building will be placed on a site with a frontage of 120 feet on the north side of Carthage street and extending for that width for a depth of 180 feet.

The building will have a frontage of 67 feet and depth of 84 feet and a ground area of approximately 4,578 square feet, consisting of a basement and one story.

The exterior is of colonial design and will be faced with red brick, having a wood cornice, pediment and entrance; granite lintels, window sills and steps. The lamps and railings at front entrance to be wrought iron.

The public lobby will have terrazzo floor with marble border and marble wainscot.

The work room to have wood floor and wainscot, plastered walls and ceiling. The toilets to have tile floors and wainscots.

Congress Hears About New Taxing Problems

A group of exceedingly glib statesmen emerged from the White House Thursday night. For three and a half hours they had been talking to the President about that most distressing election year topic—taxes. Also, they had been listening to the President on the same subject, and had found no comfort in his words.

In the fortnight preceding that fateful Thursday night meeting there had been many optimistic predictions by Congress leaders that only a modest $500,000,000—enough to meet the demands of the stop-gap farm program—would be expected at the session.

The President disabused them of that idea, informing them that early this week he would submit a message making enough taxes to meet the following calls on the Treasury:

1. $500,000,000 annually for the farm program.

2. $120,000,000 annually for the next nine years to finance the cost of paying the bonus nine years ahead of the due date.

3. $500,000,000 in temporary taxes to make up the deficiency caused by the Supreme Court decision invalidating the AAA. The President suggested that this might be divided into two or three annual installments.

That program boils down to additional taxes of $786,000,000 annually for the next three years and $620,000,000 for the six years thereafter.

Explaining his plan at his press conference on Friday, the President said that Congress might be able to reap a windfall of $150,000,000 or so by recovering some of the impounded processing taxes which were returned to processors after the Supreme Court ended the career of the AAA. But he did not know exactly how that might be arranged.

The purpose of the new tax program is to return the budget to the condition it was in before the AAA processing taxes were ruled out. At that time the regular budget was in balance, but no provision had been made for relief. Subsequently, at a Congressional committee hearing, Secretary Morgenthau made an off-hand estimate of $2,000,000,000 as the amount needed for relief in the fiscal year starting July 1.

A White House proposal that $620,000,000 be added to corporate industry's annual tax bill through a major revision of the federal revenue system Monday stressed an obviously apprehensive Congress to immediate controversy.

In a special message, President Roosevelt suggested that farm relief and payment of the bonus be financed from a tax on profits which corporations must on their treasuries as a surplus instead of distributing as dividends.

Later, speaking to the press, he drew a broad distinction between reserves—to provide working capital and cover depreciation of equipment—and surplus, which he said represented earnings, needed by the smaller stockholders, which should be taxed or distributed.

In both the message and at his press conference, he condemned the accumulation of undistributed profits as a method of evading taxation. The message termed this an "evil" that has reached disturbing proportions from the standpoint of the inequality it represents and of its serious effect on the federal revenue.

With some Democrats applauding while others were openly critical or frowning; with many Republicans frank in their denunciation; and administration leaders emphasizing that the President's plan was only a "suggestion," machinery was geared for starting a tax bill through Congress.

MEETING OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

The following business was transacted by the County Commissioners at their meeting at the Court House last Monday:

The Little Symphony Orchestra of the University of Michigan, under the direction of Thor Johnson, a former North Carolinian and an alumnus of the University of North Carolina, appeared in concert here Monday afternoon.

An audience of 800 greeted the ensemble, composed of youthful American artists, and were delighted with the rendition of the well selected and varied program, which reflected much credit upon Director Johnson and the members of the orchestra. Their appearance in Sanford was sponsored by the members of the Sanford Music Club.

Fire Does Small Damage Progressive Store Here

Tuesday evening about six o'clock the fire alarm sent the fire company to Progressive store No. 15 on the corner of Steele and Wicker streets and from the way dense smoke was pouring out of the windows on the second floor it looked like the boys were in for a stiff fight, but fortunately it turned out that there was no more smoke than fire. Upon going to the second floor with ladders the fire fighters discovered a lot of crates, boxes and other inflammable material which had accumulated had caught and filled the upper part of the building with smoke. They soon had the fire under control. The building was damaged to some extent. A lot of floor was damaged on the first floor by water. The building and stock of goods are insured. The losses are not heavy. The building is owned by the Hollingsworth estate.

On the 2nd of October, 1934, the Progressive Stores, Inc., lost a lot of goods by fire in their store on Carthage street. The interior of the store was remodeled and greatly improved before it was re-opened for business after the fire.

We understand that Mr. McNeill is instrumental in bringing this convention to Sanford. He has had the thing in mind for some time. It is expected that 300 to 400 delegates and others will be here for the occasion. Headquarters will be at the Wilrik hotel for committee meetings and candidates and others. A banquet will be held there.

Blockaders Get Busy With Spring Coming

The birds have returned with warm weather. So have the blockaders who remained in winter quarters during the severe weather of the past two or three months. We are informed that smoke from the stills can be seen from the hills here and there in the county.

The officers as well as the blockaders are now busy and producing results. A raid was made by deputies Sheriff Owen Taylor and S. A. Wicker in the Lick Creek section last Wednesday and a still and blockader captured. The outfit, which was a steamer of about 50 gallons capacity, was in full blast and as the officers approached they saw three men at work around the still. They took them by surprise and for the next few minutes an exciting foot race broke the stillness of the day. After chasing him some distance Owen Taylor captured his man, who turned out to be a white man by the name of Parrish, while the one followed by S. A. Yieker disappeared like magic, leaving him so far in the rear that he gave up the chase.

The officers destroyed the still, a large quantity of beer and five or six gallons of whiskey. The prisoner was brought to the court house and committed to jail to await a hearing at court.

Lee Farmer Held On Durham Forgery Act

Yade Cook, 27 year old Lee County farmer residing near Jonesboro, was arrested and has posted a $1,000 bond pending a hearing in Durham on March 10 on charges of forgery and false pretense in connection with the cashing of a $777.45 check in Durham last November 5.

The warrants against Cook were sworn out by C. E. Upchurch of Jonesboro, who claims Cook forged his name to a "certain government certificate" and later obtained the money from Miss Annie Piper Umstead by representing himself to be C. E. Upchurch.

Officials who issued the warrants said they understood the check was given in connection with the marketing of some tobacco in Durham.
