Last Baltic Capital In German Hands Is Now Threatened; Russians Gain

The British second army set another column east toward Germany Wednesday, pulling up on the Meuse river at Boxmeer, 13 miles south of Nijmegen and only three miles from the Dutch-German border.

The new drive came as American transports landed close behind the front in Holland with men, weapons and supplies for the beleaguered airborne troops in the Nijmegen-Arnhem sector and bolstered the allied forces for the increasingly vital struggle at the northern gateway to the Rhine.

There still was no word early yesterday, however, of the fate of the British airborne "Red Devil" division which has clung stubbornly to a little foothold on the north bank of the Neder Rhine for nine days and nights.

Seeking to cripple Japan's main war arsenal on the Asiatic continent, a heavy force of American

Price Ceilings On Used Appliances

Buyers of used household equipment and appliances were warned by the Charlotte District Office of the Office of Price Administration this week that dollars-and-cents ceiling prices should be checked before a purchase is made as the OPA has obtained numerous evidences of a form of "black market" in these goods in some sections of Western North Carolina.

The OPA said the ceiling prices should be observed both by individuals and establishments when making sales of these used items of merchandise. Information about the ceiling prices may be obtained upon request to a local war price and rationing board or to the OPA District office in Charlotte, it was explained.

The letter is as follows: "The handling of applications for ballots by men in the armed services and the issuance of ballots in pursuance of the law dealing with soldier-voting have imposed upon the county boards of elections in this state probably the largest burden ever sustained by them. In addition to this, there is apparently a much larger general absentee voting owing to the fact that so many of our adult population are engaged in work in war industries outside of the state and away from their normal voting places.

"I am informed by the Chairman of the State Board of Elections that probably more than one hundred thousand men in the armed services will apply for ballots. The State Chairman also

Furniture Store Will Open Here

A new furniture store will be opened in Sparta around October 1, in the Duncan building now occupied by the Carolina Silk Shop, next door to the bus terminal, it was announced this week.

The new store, to be known as the Sparta Furniture Company, is owned by J. G. Chipman and W. M. Roope, of North Wilkesboro. The owners also operate the Wilkes Furniture Exchange in North Wilkesboro.

"We will offer a complete line of new furniture," Mr. Chipman said yesterday. "Furniture, like everything else is difficult to procure these days, but fortunately we have a pretty complete line of stock. We are anxious to serve the public of Alleghany county and are looking forward to the opening of the store at the earliest possible date," he stated.

The Carolina Silk Shop, under the management of Mrs. Lou Tolbert, will be moved to the Glen Edwards building on the corner next to the community building, it was announced. Mrs. R. M. ### RECEIVING BALLOTS FROM SERVICEMEN

Glenn Nichols, chairman of the board of elections of Alleghany, pointed out yesterday that a number of ballots were coming back from men in service.

He said that more than 200 ballots had been sent out and that requests were still coming in. Ballots will continue to be mailed out to men in service, provided they are properly requested, up until the time of election.

Some officials pointed out that considering that the blank ballots did not get out until late in August, that the returns so far were unusually good.

It is expected that there will be many others from now until the time of election. It was pointed out that the ballots from the soldiers do not require postage, but several requested they at their own expense to be sure of delivery.
