Many Organizations Active In Health Needs Of Country

By C. W. Erwin

Great things are being done for the health of the people of North Carolina.

The Duke Foundation of eighty million dollars, half of which went for Duke University, donates many thousands in this state and in the Piedmont section of South Carolina for hospital building and hospital care.

The medical school at Duke and the hospital at that university is established and maintained with money from the Duke Foundation.

The Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Winston-Salem was established by the family of that name.

The Baptist hospital in Winston, already a great hospital, is to be enlarged at a cost of a million dollars.

The city of Charlotte a few years ago built a million dollar hospital.

The Catholic hospital in Charlotte is making a million dollar addition. Theirs is called "Mercy General."

The Presbyterians in Charlotte have nearly a million invested in the Presbyterian hospital and are planning to expand.

Mrs. Will Reynolds in Winston recently left several millions for a health and hospital fund.

The Reynolds Memorial fund has donated to the N. C. Health Department for a period of about five years the sum of $200,000.00 for a special health fund. This gift will be discontinued July 1 of this year.

The Shriners have as their special project help for crippled children.

The Methodist hospital in Elkin has served our people well.

Now, in addition to all of the above, the various states have their own health programs, both curative and preventive.

The federal government is in the midst of a tremendous building program to care for its veterans.

The state has two large hospitals to care for tuberculosis cases. One of these is at Black Mountain and another in the eastern part of the state.

Ten million dollars was appropriated by the last N. C. Legislature to help build and maintain medical centers in this state. The largest of these will be at Chapel Hill, where a four year medical school will be established and a larger hospital.

Our county health officers like Dr. King are doing a great work not only in preventive medicine, vaccinations for example, but in many other ways.

Local FHA Will Be Crippled By Agriculture Cut

Has Served Many Farmers In Alleghany And Ashe; Need Still Great

Because of the drastic slash in the proposed budget for FHA along with other agricultural groups, many farmers in Alleghany and Ashe counties will be badly hampered in their work.

The Appropriations Committee recommendations for administrative funds reduced the President's recommendation of $30,000,000 to $18,000,000 or a cut of 40 per cent. The president's recommendations for the rest of the program, FO loans and mortgage loans have also been greatly reduced.

Officials pointed out this week that unless some of this can be restored by the Senate before the bill gets the final approval by Congress, the program will be so reduced that it will be impossible to render the service for which it stands. Not only will much of the planning and supervision work now being carried out be done away with, but loans will also be cut down.

A tentative survey reveals that there are a number of veterans now taking advantage of this program as well as many others which it is helping to re-establish in their work. At the present time there are 283 farmers being served by the Alleghany-Ashe unit. Figures reveal that in Ashe there are 149 active loans; in Alleghany, 62; a total of 30 tenant-purchase farmers of the two counties and 43 others.

Figures further reveal that in the two counties 80 loans totaling $12,735 were made for 1945-1946 as compared to 145 loans totalling $27,735, or an increase of 81 per cent in number and 117 per cent in total amount, thus showing the increasing need. Loans made through this program are to farmers, who are unable to secure adequate credit elsewhere.

Since the program has been activated in Alleghany and Ashe counties, a total of 897 farm families have been served and this number included 604 that have paid up loans. Farmers have not only been helped to re-establish themselves and become home owners, but to improve their standards of living as well as health through the program.
