

Brief Review Of State, National And World News During The Past Week

CULTISTS CELEBRATE RECOVERY FROM SNAKE

Stone Creek, Va. — Banjo-strumming, torch-waving disciples held for a "super demonstration" on a craggy mountain top to hear a 13-year-old girl tell how she "returned from the dead" through faith.

Leaders of the mountain religious cult in this rugged, coal-mining section, promised that Fay Nolan, of Caswood, Ky., whose bout with a rattler left her with a gangrenous arm, would be on hand for the big demonstration athwart the Virginia-Kentucky state border.

Members of the family hid the girl away after authorities feared she would die from the rattler bite. They have refused to produce her since then, but announced that she was well and would appear this week.

Snake-handling cultists from throughout the South were pouring into the remote region to test their faith with blow-torches and serpents in Monday's demonstration and to see the girl herself.

'MISS SOUTH CAROLINA' TO WED GOV. THURMOND

Elko, S. C. — Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Crouch of Elko have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jean, to Governor James Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

Their announcement said the wedding would take place at the Executive Mansion in Columbia, Nov. 7. The ceremony will be private with only the immediate families of the couple present.

Miss Crouch, 21, was graduated from Winthrop College last June. She was the Governor's selection for "Miss South Carolina" at the 1947 Charleston Azalea Festival, and became a member of his office staff after her graduation from college. She resigned two weeks ago.

N. C. BAR MEETING TO BE HELD OCT. 24

Raleigh, Oct. 11. — The 14th annual meeting of the North Carolina State Bar will be held here October 24, Edward L. Cannon, secretary-treasurer announced today.

Fred B. Helms, of Charlotte, president, will preside over the sessions which will open at 10 a. m.

The council of the state bar will meet on October 24, Cannon said.

Scheduled to speak on the program of the bar meeting are Superior Court Judge William C. Harris of Raleigh, Associate Justice M. V. Barnhill of the state supreme court, and Judge John J. Parker of the U. S. circuit court of appeals.

PETS FROM THE DEEP. Little Shreen O'Brien feeds some homeless seals at Seaside, Ore. Baby seals, separated from their moms and pups, are picked up on the beach almost every year at this time. Professional hunters kill the seals for their skins, thus leaving the babies deserted and the little ones are usually washed ashore.

Legislators Making Tour To Secure Opinion Of Farmers

Washington — The House Agriculture Committee set out this week on a "grass roots" tour of the nation to learn how farmers feel about producing food for foreign relief.

Mainly, the committee is going out to get the farmer's view on what he wants his Government to do about long-range agriculture policy. "But," Chairman Hope (R-Kan.) said, "any farm plan for the next three or four years is bound to be fundamentally affected by the measures of relief we extend abroad. The whole farm economy will be affected."

Just before the committee departed, one farm organization—the Farmers' Union—submitted a recommendation that Congress be called into extraordinary session immediately to approve a broad program of European aid, along the lines of the multi-billion dollar program based on the Marshall plan of helping Europe as she helps herself.

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson submitted the Administration's complete proposals for long-range agricultural policy. He told the committee this program—designed for the day when farmers again are threatened by price-depressing surpluses—would not be operative so long as America makes large shipments of food abroad.

Work animals whose regular grain and hay is supplemented by being out on pasture at night are cooler and more comfortable in hot weather, require less grooming, can get water and salt when ever they feel like it, require no bedding, and but little work in cleaning stables.

WIPING OUT OF RENT CONTROLS IS SOUGHT

Washington — The wiping out of rent controls next Spring "is the next imperative step to lick completely the housing shortage," a subgroup of the National Association of Real Estate Boards said.

In another housing development, Senator Wagner (D-NY) disclosed that a nation-wide survey of city slums—with a view to replacing them with tidy homes—is underway.

Alexander Summer of Teaneck, N. J., chairman of the realtors' Washington committee, will recommend to the national association that efforts be continued as necessary to see to it that rent controls end February 29 as provided in the present, modified rent control law.

Summer issued a statement in Washington. He indicated that the real estate people made their decision primarily because of recent statements "of a few Congressmen that Congress may consider extending control beyond that date."

Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) said Saturday that "I would have no objection to extending rent control" beyond February if Housing Expediter Frank Creedon continues to be guided by local rent advisory boards.

Seeded in September, crimson clover will supply grazing over about the same period as Italian rye grass, but may not supply quite as good grazing during mid-winter as it may be bitten down by freezes and very little new growth is made at this time.

State Fair Is Expected To Draw Crowd This Week

Raleigh — A record crowd is expected to attend the State Fair this week which opened Tuesday and will continue through Saturday.

Fair Manager J. S. Dorton said a total of $25,000 in premiums, the largest total prize offering in the fair's history, would be awarded for outstanding exhibits.

Gov. Gregg Cherry and State Agriculture Commissioner W. Kerr Scott formally opened the fair Tuesday morning.

Entertainment for the five-day program includes harness and automobile racing, a "hell-drivers" troupe, a large carnival midway, and nightly fireworks displays.

Attendance was expected to equal or pass last year's all-time record.

A top exhibit this year will be the largest outlay of eggs ever seen at one of the annual exhibitions. Premiums for prize-winning entries total one-third more than last year.

The state's much-discussed mechanical inspection law for motor vehicles will be up for personal inspection at the fair. The motor vehicles department planned to have a typical "safety lane" on exhibit to show North Carolinians what to expect when they take their cars in for a compulsory inspection, beginning next year. The 160-foot lane will test cars for wheel alignment, brakes, lights and other safety features.

Farmers Warned Of Hog Cholera

One of the greatest financial losses in recent history may occur this fall unless North Carolina farmers take every precaution to protect their fall pigs from hog cholera, says Dr. C. D. Grinnells, professor of Veterinary Science at State College.

Pointing to the present record prices and relative scarcity of pork, Dr. Grinnells agrees with the American Foundation for Animal Health, that the Nation's swine raisers have a tremendous stake in this fall's battle against cholera, the Nation's No. 1 swine killer.

Because the danger of fall cholera flareups is especially great in the next few weeks, farmers are urged to keep a close watch on their swine and have fall pigs vaccinated early. Vaccination, plus good sanitation and proper feeding, is the best safeguard against cholera losses, Dr. Grinnells said.

Five steps to ward off possible outbreaks are recommended: Have all pigs vaccinated—preferably around weaning time—first making sure, by veterinary examination, that they are in condition to receive the immunization.

Watch the herd closely for signs of fever, loss of appetite, or weakness. A hog just coming down with cholera can spread the virus, even before pronounced symptoms occur. If signs of illness are noticed, suspect cholera first.

If an outbreak threatens, and pigs have not yet been vaccinated, have this done immediately.

If there is cholera in the neighborhood, quarantine for at least two weeks any new livestock brought to the farm. Warn your neighbors if you suspect cholera on your own farm.

Be careful about visiting hog lots. Disease may be spread in this way.

The production of burley tobacco in North Carolina is estimated at 15,000,000 pounds.

Uncle Sam Says

Everybody knows it pays to buy U. S. Bonds. But not everybody knows how much it pays. By investing as small a sum as $2.50 a week in U. S. Bonds, your savings will be $1,449.84 in ten years. Take savings of $3.75 a week; by 1957, you will have $2,163.45. There are two easy ways to save automatically. Have a regular amount of money set aside from your pay each week for bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. Or, if you're not on a payroll, but you do have a checking account, you can have your bank automatically charge your account for the purchase price of a bond each month.
