Tobacco Sales On W. J. Mart Total $380,000

Plenty Of Buyers, Government Graders; Prices Are Considered Good

West Jefferson (Special) Sales at the Tri-State Burley Warehouse surpassed the 900,000 mark yesterday and are expected to go beyond a million pounds today, with an average for the season of 40 cents, totalling more than $380,000.00.

Since the market opened a week later than others, the volume has been unusually good as well as the average price, judging from the quality of tobacco offered for sale. The better grades have brought as high as sixty cents.

The market has plenty of buyers from all of the larger companies, as well as independent buyers. Government graders are also on the job. Growers from North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia, have brought tobacco here to be sold.

Farmers, near and far, are expressing their satisfaction over the prices brought on the West Jefferson market.

Sales will close on Friday until after the holidays, but the warehouse will remain open continually to receive tobacco except on Christmas day, it was announced.
