HYDE COUNTY WANTS RAILROAD

BAKER'S STUDIO.

yet the projects end with Mr. A. holding the fat.

These people of Hyde county are too well conversant with the disadvantages accruing from their railroad stopping in Belhaven or to connect with only the Norfolk and Southern to adhere to its stopping there. They want their road to come through to Washington, where they can choose the road they wish to ship or travel by, knowing that competition will save them thousands of dollars each and every year.

These Hyde county people, these Belhaven people, are too familiar with the shrewd manner and methods used by the railroads to gain their point to put much faith in railroad promises. They change hands too often.

Learning of the inside manipulation of railroads, they invariably teach, while they are making fabulous profits on their watered stock they have no compassion toward the feelings of the people, nor the law unless they are forced to it after fighting to the last ditch, though they know they are in the wrong. Their object being to teach the public they had better take their fifteen or fifty dollars loss rather than pay that amount to lawyers after losing the time attending "postponements at court." Hence we cannot look to the railroads, nor the unjust manner of operating in carrying their point with any degree of confidence. They only consider personal gain. Their main point is, whenever they can, control all territory, knowing whenever they can do this, they are monarchs.

They know each individual cannot afford to fight them, nor will individuals come together for one man to fight them.

The man shipping twenty-five barrels of potatoes can not afford to go to law through court for ten cents a barrel overcharge, but when you count this ten cents a barrel additional profit to the railroad from 500 people, it is quite an item.

I don't wish to assert that in trying to stop this railroad in Belhaven, the Norfolk and Southern managers are acting underhand, crooked, or taking any undue advantage of anyone. These people are shrewd far-seeing manipulators, looking solely to their own interest, caring nothing for the general public. For this reason if the people's present interest is not protected, there will be another case of being "dominated by a railroad."

One trouble is few individuals are far-sighted enough to consider the importance of giving this railroad a proper outlet, and many who do, are negligent, or don't think their efforts would avail anything, which accounts for the seeming lack of interest upon the part of the people, and there is where Mr. Lamb, the general manager of the Norfolk and Southern, in giving such personal attention to this matter is making good. He knows how to make an impression, as well as impress others "that the people do not care."

Mr. Lamb was chosen for his position because he knows how to do things; because he knows which things are the best for the interest of his railroad and how to do these things best. Mr. Lamb is so eager to keep this railroad from getting to Washington where there will be competition for its traffic from that vastly wealthy territory, he does not leave it to others; he knows the best way to have things done is "do it," and has left nothing undone that could help stop this railroad. This should show to the State Council the importance Mr. Lamb places upon checking this move before it gets too far, or in the reach of litigation competition of other roads bidding.

It is hoped the masses, who, for hundreds of years have so faithfully toiled will be shown, "we serve the people."
