TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

At the time the re-organizing of the Chamber was the direct outcome of the concentration of the Chamber's forces and its members.

The Washington Chamber of Commerce needs, but to accomplish its aims and to carry out its program of the Chamber, much needed ways, as promoting the Chamber's interests.

What has our Chamber done for you? Then if in the coming year we accomplish one single thing, won't we be making progress?

The Chamber pleads with the members to attend the meeting tomorrow night, Friday, October 1, and in a body select one objective point; then let everyone work for that one thing, listening to the starting of no other project until we get through with the one. Do this and we will end our year with a glorious record; disregard it and we will be a dismal failure.

The Chamber may decide to drop all else and work for a canning factory or a knitting mill or a tobacco warehouse or, may be the Mattah muskiet Railroad will be decided upon.

If you have any reasons why the above is not best for the town, don't fail to bring out those reasons. Then after discussion if the Chamber decides it best to work for half a dozen things at once, your secretary stands ready to do his utmost. His first object is to see you interested by attending the meetings, then your free discussions which will bring matters to a close, and once decided upon, for all to back it up.

FOR PURE FLOUR.

A suit has been brought in Omaha which greatly concerns the entire flour industry of the country. It is brought under the pure-food law and is for the purpose of testing the legality of the bleaching process used by millers. If it is decided that this is a violation of the law, then the people may not be able for the future to buy the very white flour which makes bread so beautiful in appearance, but they may then find it possible to secure flour which will make more wholesome bread—flour more like the kind they used to get when wheat was carried to the water-power mill in the neighborhood and then ground and separated into flour, seconds, etc.

Between the mill and the table old-time flour was treated to no process which, while adding to the whiteness of the flour, made it vastly less nourishing, if not actually unwholesome. It is certain that the flour produced by the present process of grinding, which is to secure as fine quality in appearance of the article as possible does not contain as large proportion of the nourishing properties of the grain as does flour ground in the old way, when wholesomeness was not expected to take second place. Let's hope that this lawsuit will result in giving us back the flour of our daddies—Charlotte Observer.

PRESIDENT NORTHROP SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS OLD.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 30.—Dr. Criss Northrop, who will retire at the end of the present college year from the position of president of the University of Minnesota, after having held that position for twenty-five years, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday today. He was overwhelmed with letters and telegrams of congratulations from his friends and former students of the university and the members of the faculty, the students and the citizens in general with each other in showing to the beloved "prexy" the high regard in which they hold him. Dr. Northrop is a native of Connecticut and a Yale graduate. He came to the University of Minnesota in 1884, when it was a college of a few buildings and few students. Under his able management the university developed into a magnificent institution, attended by more than four thousand students.

Maine Hunting Season Opens

Bangor, Me., Sept. 30.—The open season for deer, moose and other big game, protected by the laws of Maine, begins at midnight tonight and there is every indication that the season will be successful in every respect. Game is reported to be plentiful in all parts of the State and the number of applicants for hunting licenses has been greater than in many years. On every train men in hunting costume and carrying their gun cases, may be seen in large numbers, and everywhere the station platforms are littered with camp outfits on their way to the camps and hunting lodges in the interior. Particularly large is the number of hunters bound for the region about the Penobscot River, Moosehead lake and Aroostock county, where game is more plentiful than in other sections of the State. In that region more than four thousand deer have been killed every year during the last decade and more than half that number of moose.

Under the new law no one is permitted to shoot more than two deer during the season, which ends on December 15, and only one bull moose during the season which ends on December 1. Cow and calf moose are not to be killed at all. Bear may be shot at any time and without restriction as to number, while caribou are protected at all times and may not be shot at all. Dogs, jacklights, artificial lights, snares and traps are prohibited in hunting deer or moose. Only moose bulls having at least two tines to their horns may be shot. The hunting season is always a source of considerable profit to the State and
