so many ancient governments that er this nation will continue as a republic or follow in the footsteps of so many ancient governments, that labor-saving machines have proved s menace and that the bread line is a diagrace to modern civilization were some of the things discussed by Mrs. Leane, She talked of the Star Spangled Banner, of "the boundless prairies of the West," of the "nation's great undeveloped wealth."

"Oh, I've toned down in my old age;" she told a reporter after the lecture, "but I feel as strongly on reform issues as I did years ago. This, however, is a conservative age, and I find that it is not best to be too radical. Then, too, it would not be proper to discuss such things in a school room."

Secret of Empress's Beauty.

The German Empress is said by artists to possess the finest shoulders of any woman in Europe. She gives the credit to a soap manufactured exclusively for her. This goap has a deliciously refreshing odor, and the Empress believes it is beneficial to the nuscles while acting as a tonic to the cuticle of the face and neck. The Empress uses peppermint as a dentrifice. New-mown hay is her favorite handkerchief perfume, and once a day her rooms are sprayed with cologns. The Empress powders her hair freely, as she naturally is not pleased by the promise of being prematurely gray. The chances are she would submit her hair to the peroxide bath, but the Emperor will not permit it. Dived hair is one of his net averbath, but the Emperor will not permit it. Dyed hair is one of his pet aversions, although curiously enough he does not object to powder.
