lumbermen are fully capable of meet ing the conservation problem both from the standpoint of the permanent requirements of the -lumber trade and from that of the continued rosperity of the public at large."
Forester Graves held that for most large owners to introduce forestry immediately over their entire hold ings would not be practical from a business standpoint, because this would involve making a corelderable investment in the dark. It could not be told now either what forestry would cost them or what it would bring them. Further, a preliminary working out of the exact methods of cutting and fire protection should be obtained. Therefore Mr. Graves pro posed: (1) That those lumbermer who are luterested in this matter make an immediate test of the practice of forestry on their holdings (2) that this be regarded as a be-ginning with a view of ascertaining the possibility of forestry, rather than an attempt to establish an organized system of forestry over his entire holdings; (3) that to accomplish this object they associate themselves to gether either through their trade as sociation , or by a new association in order that through cooperation and partnership the expenses of fory may be reduced to a minimum that each owner set aside from 1,000 to 10,000 acres as a practical demonstration ground; (5) that there be employed by the association a for-ester to direct the technical work, his salary and expenses to be prop erly prorated among all the mem bers; 9(6) that each owner emplo bers; 9(6) that each owner, such local guards or rangers as are necessary to carry out the fire regu-lations, restrictions of cuttings, etc. Mr. Graves warned the lumbermen that if they did not themselves move that if they did not themselves move in the matter they were likely to find the public taking action to prevent the impoverishment of States through the impoverishment of States through this afternoon and tomorrow afterstriction on private lands. "The more I study into this subject of private forestry," said Mr. Graves, "the more I am convinced that what is needed is not immediate legislation, but an immediate beginning of the practical operation of torestry, and I am convinced that the results of such a beginning will be conclusive evidence that American lumbermen are fully capable of meet-In ad- tion is well worth your attention on piated. The main auditorium of the First Bautist Church was crowded last night to hear Rev. R.M. McFarland. The subject of his discourse was "Belshazzar's Feast." He drew an analogy between this feast and the feast of sin. The speaker said that the feast of sin may have a very auspicious beginning, but a very dis-astrous close. After the analogy with the ancient royal feasts, indulgence in drinking or any other participation was entirely voluntary, and could be given up at any time by the guest, so was it true that those indulging themselves in the feast of sin could break away any time they so desired. He emphasized the fact that today many would have the Bible interpreted by nice sounding phrasiology, and complimentary terms, but that when the hand wrote on the walls of the palace half, Daniel gave the meaning just as it was. So all men should be willing to lay aside all creed and dogmatia Bibbe plainly and simply for what it

When the announcement of Havens' victory was conveyed to William Jennings Bryan just before he took a train for the West tonight he exressed his deep satisfaction.

"It is very significant," he said,
"not only as regards the rebuke given of the Republican party on the whole, but it is vitally significant in that it goes to show that Republicans are displaying a will and intention to register their protest against candidates when those candidates are not personally satisfactory. Mr. Havens victory is a notable one and pregnant with great political possibilities."

"The result in the Rochester district," said Champ Clark, minority leader in the House, "taken in connection with the results in the sixth Missourl district and the fourteenth Massachusetts district proves conclusively that the country is disgusted with the Republican administration and the Republican Congress and proposes to overthrow them."

Representative Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey, who was deposed from the championship of the committee on banking and currency by Speaker Cannon declared that the election result was a "judgment of God."
