VALUE OF SOUTHERN CROPS.

According to the Manufacturers Record the crops of the South grown last year were worth about $2,550, 000,000. The Record gives the fol Jove, the Record gives the following figures: Five months ago the Manufacturers' Record estimated that the value of agricultural products in the South in 1909 was $2,550,000,000. Later figures indicate 550,000,000. Later figures indicate that the estimate was not far from the actual facts. The later estimate is based upon the figures for certain selected crops—cotton, corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, flaxrice, potatoes, hay, and tobacco

"The total value of these selected crops in 1909 was $1,484,580,000, an tincrease of $712.802,000, or at the until 1872 that the first class of rate of 92.4 per centiover the $771,- trained nurses was graduated from 778,000 value of 1899. That latter value was less than 61 per cent of the total $1,271.654,000 value of all grown within a generation the great was the state of the total $1,271.654,000 value of all grown within a generation the great was the state of t something less than the actual value

"In the selected crops there was an unincrease of 1909 over 1908 of but the whole country, and of but $254,718,000, or by 5.8 per cenj. in the whole country, and of but $31.661,000, or by 2.1 per cent in the "the work of the woman whom the whole country and of but $31.661,000, or by 2.1 per cent in the "the influence of the woman whom the work of the work of the work of the woman whom the work of th

South.

"Poor seasons for grain and other crops showed their effect in the Southern total in spite of the increased price of the short crop of cotton. The year 1908 is, therefore, hardly a fair one for a comparison of Southern agricultural values with other than the support of the comparison of the short crop of cotton. The year 1908 is, therefore, hardly a fair one for a comparison of Southern agricultural values with other than the comparison of the compar ern agricultural values with other years. Navertheless, the figures of 1899 and 1809 reveal rather satisfactory progress, the increase in those years for the whole South having been from $771,778.000 to $1.484.580,600, or by $2.4 per cent, while the increase for the whole country was from $2,511,155,000 to $4.652,57.000, or by $5.7.000 to $4.652, per cent. In the 657,000, or by $5.3 per cent. In the selected crops Texas ranked in 1909 second of all the States in the coun-try with its $316,793,000 value, or only $20,292,000 less than the illinois value. Its increase in the 11 years was at the rate of 109 per cent That percentage was exceeded in th Scuth by South Carolina's 112 pe cent. Georgia's 128 and West Vir ginia's 113 per cent. The highest rate of increase in any one State in the 11 years was that of idaho, 111 per cent, but the total value of ida-ho's selected crops in 1909 was but $22,906,000, which is less than the total of any Southern State save that of Florida. It is interesting to note that the increase of 202 per cent in that the increase of 202 per cent in Oklahoma in the 11 years brought the value of its selected crops to $122.033.000, which was exceeded in 1909 only by the values in Texas, Georgia, and Kentucky, and was greater than the value in any Southern State, except Texas, in 1899."
