THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

It is through the rising generation that the evangelization of the world is to be accomplished, and there is no more potential agency at work today for training the child aright than the Sunday school.

This is a day of religious gatherings. The Bantist have just closed ings. The Baptists have just closed a great meeting at Baltimore. Maga great meeting at Baltimore. Mag-nificent progress was reported in all phases of the church work. The Methodist Conference at Asheville reports, also, gratifying progress. This week the Presbyterians are meeting at Atlantic City and other points, and this church, also, offers meet plasting reports of progressions. points, and this church, also, offers most pleasing reports of progress in all lines of its work. No more im-portant religious gathering, however, has been held recently than the great world Sunday school conference at Washington.

the work which is undertaken is world-wide. Inspirational gatherings have been haldr and the success has been truly great. The bond of sym-pathy which joints together the! Christian workers of the world will be better cemented as a result of the close intercourse of these carnest close intercourse of these carnest men and women in the next six days. There is not a hamlet in the United States that is without its Sunday school. There is scarcely a family among the Protestants of this counwhere some member does not hear the lesson from Sunday to Sunhear the senson from Sunday to Sunday. The missionaries of the future in the great world movement are 40 be found in the boys and girls who are now learning the first precepts of Christian love and duty in the Sunday school classes.

Sunday school classes.

"Should the weather be favorable tomorrow night, Washington will see a most impressive pageant when the delegates marshaled in companies and regiments, will parade down Pennsylvania avenue to the east side of the Capital when the majorite was the control of the Capital was the control of the capital was the control of the capital was the ca sensylvania avenue to the east side of the Capitol, where the reviewing stand will be placed. Such a body of earnest workers will impress even the residents of Washington, accustomed as they are to scenes of this character. The parade and monster demonstration at the Capitol will be a sight worth active and tol will be a sight worth seeing, and with favorable weather should attract a large gathering.

"The Sunday schools of the world bind together a larger body of men and women, boys and girls, than does any other non-sectarian organization. The various denominations find in The various denominations find in the Sunday school a recruiting army to fill the ranks of Christian workers as the generations go on. John Wan-amaker calls the Sunday schools the greatest asset of the nation. From amaker canse and the nation. From the time of the Puritan fathers, this country has been greatly benefited by them. The Sunday schools were bere when the thirteen colonies were united into one great nation. Since then there has been a continuous then there has been a continuous of the state the stalwart colonists as typified in the Sunday school are still to be Found in the sturdy manhood and womanhood of the present day. MA Wanamaker has been superintendent of one Sunday school for five years, and he declares there is nothing he likes better than to be with his class-as every week.

The gathering in Washington this bridesproom dorget the ring and had a week is the greatest assemblage of go tack to missionaries and other servants of God that was ever held in the inter-ests of Sunday schools and the chil-dren of the world. From this city abould radiate influences that will b felt in the extremess corners of the earth. Every delegate and very vig-tion at the meetings should go home with a new incentive to work, and the results should be both beneficial

The Substituted Egg.
"There was a clever reporter," said a lawyer, "who used to do the Albany legislature. If a session promised to be long the reporter would refreah himself with a hard boiled egg. Taking the egg from his pocket, he would open it and drop the shells into the crown of his hat, which he held between his knees. He would flush this hurried repast before any one knew that he was doing. But on April 1 the boys couldn't resist playing a joke on their agg eating friend. They substituted for his hard boiled egg a raw one. Oh, what a mess there was, to one. Oh, what a mess there was, to be sure, when in the midst of an im portant debate the poor reporter has tily broke that egg in his bat."—Bus falo Express world Sunday school conference at Washington.

The potentiality of the Sunday school, and the importance of this congress, are so ably set forth in the following editorial from the Washington Herald, that we make space for it in its chitrety:

"Evangelization of the world through the Sunday schools is one object of the great gathering which began in this city yesterday. Delegates to the world's Sunday school convention from all parts of America and from practically every nation in the world are gathered here for sessions to last a week, and the scope of the world engather here for sessions to last a week, and the scope of the world well inspirational gatherings have been halder and the success has been truly great. A Famous Status.

The great temple of Zeus Olympius at Olympia, Greece, was $34 feet long and 17 wide. The columns of this famous shrine were 60 feet in beight and 6½ feet in diameter and are the and 6½ feet in diameter and are the largest which now remain of ancient architecture in marble. Sixteen of the wonderful columns are still standing and are among the most imposing in the world. In this temple stood the colossal status of Zern, forty feet high, on a pedestal of twenty. This status was the manterpiece of Phidias, the world's greatest arist, and, or famqua was it that it was considered a calamity to die without seeing it. The innertal work was removed to Constantinople by Theodosius I. and was destroyed by fire in the year 475 a. D.

Kipling's "Vampire."

Kipling's "Vampire."
Rodyard Kipling's verses written for Sir Philip Burne-Jones' striking paint-ing "The Vampire" were the result of much labor and persistent pursuit of an idea that had long proved quite elusive. When it was finished Burne-Jones expressed obligations for it Kipling wrote a delightful letter, presenting him with the copyright.
"The verses for "The Vampire," he wrote, "which we will call vampoetry, wrote, "which we will call vampoetry, are your property. So if any one wants to dramathe 'em, etch 'em, set 'em to music, paint 'em sky blue, translate 'eri into Erse, Celtic or Hittle, use 'em for hair dye advertisement or Church of Engload hymn you must deal with that man."

The Hunter and the Guide.

The Hunter and the Guide. Every year there go into the wilder less thousands of hunters with the trappings and accouterments of slaugh ter. Some of them come back. Parts of some of them come back. There is great carnage in the woods—not wholly among the wild animals. It is considered cheap sport to shoot a guide, as his skin is no good. Yet when there is nothing else in sight what can a hunter do? The usual method of the sportsman is as follows. There is a rustling in the bushes. The hunter levels his rife at the spot and pours thirteen slugs into it. Then be shouts, "Is that you, guide?" There is seldom an answer.—Van Norden Magazine. Some of them come back. Parts s seldom an answer.—Voldagazine.
