The Parmers' Union ont only stands for something, but claims to be doing a continuity. If it had not been for the Parmers' Union its members say, the farmers of this section would not have secured '15 cents for their cotton last fall. This was done in two ways, they claim. First, The union adopted a better fisched for making cotton reports than the government, used. Second. A great many farmers from South Carolina

There are some farmers who be-lieve that the warehouse system would prove a failure toward secur-ing better prices for their cotton, but here are some extracts taken from a booklet issued by the Farmers' Union: Cotton Company, Momphis, Tenn., which may be of interest: "A learn comparting of south for Success Obtained.

To accomplish this result the management offered to Mr. Hammond Eve, of the Savannah district, who insid refined the first shipment, a handsome raward when he had demonstrated his ability to reproduce this object was obtained. The result depended not only upon perfect refining methods, but also upon the selection of raw material of the very best quality. Such oil is not produced every year, but the Southern Cotton oil company determined to keep up the standard, and will carry over the standard, and will carry ove the standard, and will carry over enough choice oil from year to year to insure a sufficient supply of un-form quality. For several months beat oil of this perfected quality only has been used in cases. The public seems to immediately recognize the superiority of the oil as the trade has been doubled.

Therefore, the Southern Cotton Oil Company has decided to use a new and distinctive label for this special oil which shall hereafter by known as Wesson Snowdrift Oil for cooking and salads, and be put up in the only. They will, also, demonstrate the excellence of Snowdrift Oil to replace butter as well as for cooking purposes and take the place of the

The Southern Cotton Oil Company fully expects to prove to the people of Washington that this oil is equal to the very best olive oil for making mayonnaise and French dressings.

The sommunity meed not think that because this oil is less expensive, it is not better than oils coating three or four times as much. Give the oil an honest trial. Get a can, and abide by the result.
