MR. CANNON'S HOT TIME.

The direct primary accomplishes one useful purpose at any rate. It forces Joseph G. Cannon to brave the fierce heat of Kansas in midsummer to defend the system.

In the caucus and convention days Mr. Cannon made no public appearances until everything political except the voting had been out and dried.

The Speaker is in Kansas at this time not to attack Democrats but to please Republicans. Instead of addressing a compact and not too keenly interested party he speaks to men politically affiliated with himself who are staid, disinterested and inquisitive.

It must be admitted, therefore, that the direct primary makes for progress. It stimulates independent thought within party lines.

Mr. Cannon has not willingly demonstrated the value of the primary, but his labors this week in that direction will be remembered as among his most important public services.

WHAT THEY WILL FIND.

When Attorney-General Wickersham and Secretary Nagel, who sail next Saturday for Alaska, arrive at their destination they will find a territory twice as large as that of the State of Nevada and nearly as large as that of the State of Wyoming.

They will find a territory with a white male population of voting age more than five times as large as was fixed upon by Congress as requisite to representative government in the Northwest territory more than one hundred and twenty years ago.

They will find an unusually vigorous, self-reliant and ambitious population—a people accustomed to hardship, knowing well how to take care of themselves and probably the best specimens of American pioneers to be seen today.

They will find as much evidence perhaps of Guggenheim-Morgan rule as of the authority of the United States, the one fiercely denying the right of local self-government and the other mildly assenting to the contention.

Finally, they will find there, as we hope may always be found wherever the flag waves, a democracy that is safer than a plutocracy and conditions in every other respect which will confute the fears, real or pretended, of selfish interests and hidebound classes.

BULLETIN ON FIG CULTURE IN NORTH CAROLINA.

A very timely bulletin on fig culture has been prepared and published by the North Carolina Experiment Station. The publication was prepared to supply information with reference to the growth and marketing of the fig, for at this time much interest is manifested in fig culture by farmers and other fruit growers in most sections of the upper South.

Such subjects as soils for figs, propagation, planting, cultivation, mulching, manures and fertilizers, irrigation, pruning, winter protection, harvesting, marketing, uses and varieties are fully discussed. The important subject of the premature dropping of green or immature figs is fully treated, and remedies for same are given.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured free by addressing Director C. B. Williams, West Raleigh, N. C.

POINTED PARAGRAPH.

A man is apt to have a dear wife either to his heart or to his pocket.

Nothing pleases the average woman more than an opportunity to displease some other woman.

It must be awfully hard on a sister not to have a man around the house to blame things on.
