THE FALL SEASON

When the crisp air of autumn tingles the blood, and sets the pulses going, the poets in prose and verses sing the glories of the season, and the Detroit News, ignoring "brown October ale," pays this fine tribute to pure cider:

"Fall is the season when man is moved to praise of things humble in origin, but rich in fulfillment. The young turkey struts about, preparing himself for November's feast; the woods crackle with the dropping of hickory and butternut as the boys send clubs into the branches, and the pumpkin swells and yellows on the vine.

"Especially is it the time when the muse inclines to sing of cider. And the muse might be in far worse business. The Romans knew the drink, and before them the Greeks. In the days of Isaac and Jacob the pastoral tribes were familiar with its head and zest.

"To such drink does the palate yearn in these October days. Exalted be the natural, undistilled juice of the first pressing. A good custom is the old one of grating up a little horseradish and dropping into the scoured casks that are to hold the liquor. It improves and lends the tang, which is beyond the powers of description.

"With a cool place for its storage, the resultant product can be kept in any receptacle. If no cool, cobwebby cellar be at hand, then a stone jug will do admirable service. From either a generous-mouthed pitcher, topped with the lightest, airiest bubbles that ever rode an underlying depth of rich, clear brown, can be brought out to make an autumn or winter evening with book and hickory meats and popcorn and a snapping fire an evening of life, indeed."

THE YOUNG MEN RESPOND

In the campaign in North Carolina the Democratic party is fortunate in that the older men are giving their wise counsel and the young men are enthusiastically endorsing for the big battle that will be ended on the 5th of November. In Sunday's paper, there appeared a clarion call from former Governor Jarvis, appealing to the young men of the state to organize and use their best efforts for the preservation of good government through the Democratic party.

These young men, in the seventies and the eighties, as well as in the sixties, were the distinguished leaders in days that called for courage and ability. Now that they have retired from public life, enjoying the confidence and esteem of the State, they send words of wisdom and cheer to the young men of the state, calling upon them to stand true and steadfast even as the men of their generation put their lives in jeopardy to maintain good government through white supremacy.

The young men who are making ready and hearty response to the calls of these trusted men are asking the men of the younger generation to follow in their footsteps. In today's paper appears a number of ringing letters from patriotic young men who show that in 1910 North Carolina has men worthy to walk in the footsteps of Jarvis, Cox and the leaders of that era.

Young men of North Carolina: You can give a record-breaking Democratic majority this year if you will devote a few days to the services of your country.—The News and Observer.

It is assumed that he could carry a Southern State or two. Mr. Roosevelt says he would run again for President. It won't be long before assurance that he can carry a few Northern States will have precisely the same effect on him.—St. Louis Republic.

One and thought in connection with the approach of Christmas is that little Robby will be sure to leave word for Santa Claus to bring him a nice new aeroplane.—St. Louis Times.

The attack on the tariff was suspended for a moment while a wealthy American woman paid $11,000 in duties on her imported goods and jewelry.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Postmaster-General Hitchcock is almost persuaded that one-cent letter postage is right. We are almost persuaded this comes too late as a campaign slogan.—Pittsburg Sun.

Appetite Gone

Indigestion is the Cause of It—Brown's Drug Store Has the Cure

People go on suffering from little stomach troubles for years and imagine they have a serious disease.

They over eat or over drink and force in the stomach a lot of extra work.

If these people would take two MI-O-NA stomach tablets with or after meals stomach misery would go in five minutes and they would be a great big help to the stomach in its strain of overwork.

MI-O-NA is guaranteed by Brown's Drug Store to cure indigestion or any stomach disease, or money back.

MI-O-NA for belching gas.

MI-O-NA for distress after eating.

MI-O-NA for foul breath.

MI-O-NA for biliousness.

One hundred of the citizens of Hyde county have taken one share each.

This new institution has the best wishes of the Daily News. This is something that has been long needed in that enterprising county.

By raising the Maine they may also raise several new contentions.

Probably no bill in the world has had so strangely varied a history of play as that of Greenwich. The granite line across the top of the summit to the meridian from which the longitude on every British map and chart is calculated. All England sets its time by the moon solar clock. There is a large galvanomagnetic clock fixed on the outside wall of the observatory and divided into twenty-four hours. There are still many who believe this clock is kept going by the sun. They do not know that the fixed stars are the real timekeepers from which Britishers check their daily progress.—London Graphic.

CHARACTER Character gives weight to one's words and permanence to one's acts. Character secures the confidence of those who employ, the respect of those above, the love of those on our level, the loyalty of those beneath. Character is the guinea stamp on the gold, the ring of the genuine coin, the signature at the foot of the portrait.

A Woman's Tongue. "Woman's tongue is her sword, which she never lets rust," wrote Mimi Necker. "The tongue is not steel, but it cuts," wrote Erasmus. "The tongue kills more than the sword," wrote Vesalius, the Ottoman statesman. "Solomon, the embodiment of wisdom, wrote, 'It is better to dwell in the corner of the house than with a brawling woman and in a wide house.' And St. James wrote, 'The tongue is a little member and boasteth great things.' However, the good King Arthur said, 'Deny not to woman the proper use of her tongue.'"

The First Iron Ship. The first iron ship has more reputed birthplaces than Homer. Both the Clyde and the Mersey claim pre-eminence in this respect. Sir E. J. Robbison of Edinburgh designed an iron vessel in 1810, which was not launched till three years later, and it is said that an iron boat was worked on the Severn even as far back as 1788. Steel was not used in the construction of merchant ships' hulls until 1850. Old salts were not alone in their belief that wood was meant by Providence to float, but iron to go to the bottom. A naval constructor of some repute once said: "Don't talk to me of iron ships. They are contrary to nature."—Chambers' Journal.

Alcohol Baths. Alcohol baths are thrice beneficial when the hand is substituted for the sponge of old time usage.

Letting His Light Shine. If anybody wanted to see something curious just come with him, the marble cutter said. Somebody did. So he led the way to a monument that had inscriptions engraved in three languages—English, German and Hebrew. "Same thing for each one," he said. "You can see for yourself what it says in English—a good citizen, a good father, a good husband and hence to his soul. The relatives had that eulogy printed in all three languages because their friends are kind of mixed on tongues. Some can read one thing and some another, and he was too good a man for anybody to pass by unaware of his virtues simply because they couldn't read the language on the tombstone."—New York Press.
