THE RECIPROCAL TRADE AGREEMENT
The reciprocal trade agreement, which is a part of the general tariff reduction bill, is the subject of the present article.

President Taft transmitted to Congress a message urging early action on the reciprocity agreement with Canada. He stated that he based this message upon deference to popular sentiment and duty to the great masses of the American people. The message follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:
I transmitted to the sixty-first congress, on January 28, last, the text of the reciprocity trade agreement which had been negotiated under my direction by the Secretary of State with the representatives of the Dominion of Canada. This agreement was the consummation of earnest efforts, extending over a period of nearly a year, on the part of both governments to the effect a trade arrangement, which, supplementing as it did the amicable settlement of various questions of a systematic and political character that had been reached, would promote friendly relations now existing.

The agreement is in itself and in its terms a purely economic and commercial. While the general subject was under discussion by the commissioners I felt assured that the sentiment of the people of the United States was such that they would welcome a measure which would result in the increase of trade on both sides of the boundary line, would open up the reserve productive resources of Canada to the great mass of our own consumers on advantageous conditions and at the same time afford a broader outlet for the excess products of our farms and many of our industries. Details regarding a negotiation of this kind necessarily could not be made public while the conferences were pending. When, however, the full text of the agreement with the accompanying correspondence and data explaining both its purpose and its scope became known to the people through the message transmitted to congress, it was immediately apparent that the ripened fruits of the careful labors of the commissioners met widespread approval. This approval has been strengthened by further consideration of the terms of the agreement in all their particulars. The volume of support which has developed shows that its broadly national scope is fully appreciated and is responsive to the popular will. The House of representatives of the sixty-first congress after the full text of the arrangement with all the details in regard to the different provisions had been before it, as they were before the American people, passed a bill confirming the agreement as negotiated and as transmitted to Congress. This measure failed of action in the senate.

In my transmitting message of the 11th of January, I fully set forth the character of the agreement, and emphasized its appropriateness and necessity, as a response to the actual needs of the people of the two countries, as well as its common advantage. I now say that measure and the reciprocal trade agreement is a part of the general tariff reduction bill, which is a part of the general tariff reduction bill. The reciprocal trade agreement is a part of the general tariff reduction bill, which is a part of the general tariff reduction bill.

I have fulfilled my duty therefore, not to acquiesce in relegation of action until the opening of the constitutional session and convene the sixty-second congress in extra session in order that there shall be no break of continuity in considering and acting upon this most important subject.

WILLIAM B. TAFT

W. J. BRYAN VIRTUALLY ENROLLED HIMSELF
Washington, D. C., April 6.
In drawing seats in the house today Representative DeLoach got the best seat and gave it to Mr. Bryan, so that the latter could be close to Mr. Fitzgerald, chairman of the committee on appropriations. Representative Kitchin, who has been considered the lucky man of the delegation, drew a seat in the district of "Cherokee" ship. Once his fellow laughter at him.

The most persistent pursuer here is Lee Christian, of Illinois. He has worked every member of the delegation and his own. Mr. DeLoach, whom he has not been able to influence to his liking, and he has worked every member of the delegation and his own. Mr. DeLoach, whom he has not been able to influence to his liking, and he has worked every member of the delegation and his own.

Colonel William Jennings Bryan virtually declared himself a candidate for the presidential nomination. His most intimate friends may be looking to run. This came as a surprise to many people here, for it has been said time and again that Champ Clark was the Nebraska candidate immediately after the story concerning Mr. Bryan's intentions was whispered about the capital. The speaker of the national democracy appeared on the floor of the house just before the gavel fell, and was given a ovation. There was nothing noticeable about the air of applause that came from congressmen and spectators. What happened next was very plain. Colonel Bryan was not present, politically. The minutes later Governor Harmon, who always runs well in Ohio, came in and was greeted with a joyful round of applause, but there was as much difference in the two demonstrations as there is between a negro camp-meeting and a negro walk. Bryan caught the big poles. The Buckeye man was at a disadvantage however, for very few persons in the house knew him by sight, and everybody knew Bryan. I believe that this made the difference in the reception of the two men.

Colonel Bryan has said that Colonel Roosevelt and President Taft went before the people on his policies and he believes that his time has come. Mr. Bryan may not be the next democratic candidate, but he may be prayerfully considered. This is the consensus of opinion here today.
