SHOULD INFORM

Why does not the attorney general consider it "compatible with the public interests" to inform congress whether the department of justice contemplates criminal proceedings against the tobacco trust? Is the star chamber method relative to the sugar trust frauds that occurred under the Roosevelt administration to be repeated under the Taft regime? Taft is an eminent lawyer; so are most of the members of his cabinet eminent lawyers. Is the principle of publicity and popular government to be stifled again, as in the meteoric period of his predecessor, by inside arrangements and "diplomatic" maneuvers which will shut off the legislative branch of the government from knowledge of what the departments under its control propose to do?

A VAST GULF

The king and queen, the powers and potentates, and various persons of more or less political and social magnitude, have nothing on Jack Johnson, the black man's pride. Jack comes from America, and if his skin is a little tanned and he persists in saying "them's my sentiments," he appeals to the sporting blood of the world, something more strenuous than fox hunts and derby turners, whatever the dilettanti in aesthetics may have to say about it. "Marse" Johnson with a considerable portion of the London population will divide honors with the principal figures in the coronation. It's largely a matter of show whether the muscles or of jewels, anyway, and the crowd will always follow the fellow that does something, regardless of outward raiment. Between Jack Johnson and George V., king and emperor, there is a vast gulf, socially and mentally and politically, but between King George the man and Johnson, the black panther, athlete as pieces of human machinery the palm has already been accorded to the latter by the salvos of the London populace. It is a curious phase of human impulse but it is actually an existing one.

SOME SENATORIAL HYPOCRISY

The senate has before it a bill from the house known as the campaign expense bill. It is all right so far as it goes, but it does not go far enough. It should be amended so as to provide for corrupt practices in the primaries, to cover the work of the marauders who come into the first stages of the selection of candidates in the interest of whatever matter or clique may be concerned. The initial cornering of the manufactured sentiment being over, the balance of the work for the accomplishment of the election of the favorite candidate is comparatively easy. The publication of campaign expenditures for the final campaign is not troublesome at all, so long as the use of money for the first process of securing a candidate satisfactory to those who need him is not inquired into. The original draft of the publicity bill was prepared in 1905 by the non-partisan commission of which Perry for the prosecution of persons who should use their influence to corrupt the voters in presidential and congressional elections. It was virtually a corrupt practice act, which, if enacted in its original form, would prove a valuable accessory to acts of similar intent since then passed by the various states.

The pretense that there is no way to prevent corruption at primary elections put forth mainly by the senators who know that in the southern states the members of congress and of the legislatures, which select members of the United States senate, are virtually elected thereat, is the veriest of hypocrisy. A pure primary would do away with the scandal which attaches to election of Stephenson and others. It is not beyond the power of congress to prevent the occurrence, or recurrence, of these instances of national disgrace and humiliation. The congress has frequently exercised the power to regulate the time and manner of the election of the representatives thereto. This power should be extended to compel not only the publicity of expenditures for election purposes, and possibly the limitation thereof, but it should also provide adequate penalties and criminal procedure for the corruption of the electorate in the selection of candidates.

HER FRIEND'S GOOD ADVICE

The Results Made This Newburg Lady Glad She Followed Suggestion.

Newburg, Ala.—"For more than a year," writes Myrtle Cothrum, of this place, "I suffered with terrible pains in my back and head. I had a swollen complexion, and my face was covered with pimples. Our family doctor only gave me temporary relief. A friend of mine advised me to try Cardui, so I began taking it, at once, and with the best results, for I was cured after taking two bottles. My mother and my aunt have also used Cardui and were greatly benefited. I shall always praise Cardui to sick and suffering women."
