MEATS FOR THE TABLE.

Variety is the spice of life and the progressive housekeeper is constantly varying the diet so that monotony is never a bugbear. It is easier to go on day after day cooking the same old dishes, it takes study and planning to make a variety and keep within the allowance for the table expenses.

As meat is our most costly food it is reasonable to give thought in planning the meal dishes or there is needless expense. It is not necessary to buy as little as is ordinarily consumed and can always "water the porridge that all may dine" in case unexpected company arrives. A good way to serve chicken:

Stewed Chicken—Cut up the bird and cover with hot water, allow it to cook slowly until tender, boiling will toughen the tenderest meat. About half an hour before serving add a teaspoonful of salt and a slice of onion, more salt will be needed, but add it to the broth if necessary. Take two tablespoonfuls of flour, moistened with water, add to the broth with a half cup of cream, when hot pour over a well-beaten egg and serve poured over the chicken.

Irish Stew—Take one pound of the neck of mutton and cut into small pieces, add three carrots and four onions, cover with boiling water and bring to a boil; stew slowly for 45 minutes then add five potatoes, pepper and salt to taste, and serve very hot with the vegetables around the meat.

Nellie Thapull.

Accommodating. "Why do you argue with your wife?" asked the bachelor. "Don't you know the faculty of H?" "Of course," replied the married man, "but I have to 'howl' a little piece once in a while."—Punch.

Egyptian Archaeology.

The British School of Archaeology in Egypt, one of the most important organizations in this realm of research, aims in the coming season to prosecute its explorations in the two great centers of early civilization—Memphis, the historic capital, and Thebes, the prehistoric capital. The latter is more bound up with the earlier Hebrew narrative in the rock of Gizeh than any other city in Egypt, and in two parts of it already show remains of the earliest dynasties; there seems to be some prospect of at last reaching back to the prehistoric kingdom and revealing the development of civilization in its earliest forms.

At Memphis the school has hired the site of one of the large granite pylons of the metropolitan temple as a center for work, and other labors will be attempted which will extend over a generation or more.

Furniture Hints For Housekeepers

Every week we are going to give the housekeepers hints from our trade journals as to the very latest ideas in Furniture. This week we quote from the New York Reporter

Bedroom Furniture.

"During the spring house cleaning there will be a big demand for Mahogany and Birdseye Maple and White Enamel Dressers and Wash Stands will lead all other woods with the spring buyer, especially in the high grade goods. These with Cheffoniers to match and Brass for Iron Beds will constitute the furnishings of the bedroom. They make an ideal bedroom and are very substantial."

We have a very complete stock of the above and we cordially invite your inspection
