SATURDAY, MARCH 23

VERY, VERY SAD.

And so the Colonel is going to take the stump? Well, well! We should never have thought it possible. Did Stubbs deceive us.

When the Colonel wrote to the Seven Little Governors he told them that "I will accept the nomination if it is tendered to me." We never dreamed that the Colonel would have to hustle out and supervise the job of "tendering." Stubbs told us the country was seething for Roosevelt, that the tidal wave was rushing toward the East, and that Taft's name would not be presented to the convention. What is the matter?

We reject with scorn the reactionary confession of Frank Munsey that the Colonel "has perhaps started a little too late." The Colonel never started too late. He couldn't start too late. Possibly "the people" started too soon. Anyway, it is all very very sad.

OLD POEM MADE OVER.

The Rock Hill Record is developing serious poetic symptoms. In a recent issue we find this very readable parody on a famous old poem.

Tell me not in mournful numbers That the town is full of gloom, For the man's a crank that slumbers In these glorious days of boom. Life is real, life is earnest, And the grave is not its goal— Every dollar that thou turnest Helps to make the old town roll. But enjoyment and not sorrow Is our destined end or way; If you have no money, borrow— Buy a corner lot today. Lives of great men all remind us We can win immortal fame. Let us leave the chumps behind us, And we'll get there all the same. In this world's broad field of battle, In the bivouac of life, Let us make the dry bones rattle— Invest something for our wife! Let us then be up and doing With a heart for any fate, Still achieving, still pursuing— Booming early, booming late. —Charlotte News.

CLUBS INSTEAD OF SALOONS

Many Social Institutions Formed in Birmingham, England, in Which No Intoxicants are Allowed.

There are in Birmingham, England, sixty-six social clubs in which no intoxicants are allowed. About forty are self-supporting. Eleven are carried on in what were formerly public houses. Twelve clubs meet only once a week, but all the others are open nightly except Sundays. Most of them are open Saturday afternoon also.

A social institutes' union also converts five corporation swimming baths into free social recreation halls in the winter months. These institutions are quite distinct from sporting, trade, benefit, musical and other sectional clubs. There are also thirty-five Good Templar lodges in the vicinity of the city.

The Good Templars have many lodges open weekly in Birmingham and 200 in London; drink from frequent social clubs and other temperance concerns if they will. Sir Thomas Whitaker and others are opening large temperance billiard halls about the country with many attractions of a wholesome kind; the churchmen and the Methodists have provided great social centers, and other churches are doing the like. It is therefore not a fact that working-men go to the public house because they have nowhere else to go.

Crimes in Drinking Places.

The court records of lower Bavaria for the year 1910, the latest officially recorded, showed an increase during the year in the number of fatal assaults. According to correspondence of the German temperance press, stabbing was the most frequent method of assault, amounting to 15 cases out of every 20. Most of the criminal deeds were committed at night between 11 and 2 o'clock, and 17 out of every 20 occurred either in the saloons, before them, or on their way home from them. Only one in that number took place in the workshop, one in the home and one in the woods.

In 15 cases a large amount of beer had been consumed before the deed was committed, or the criminal was a habitual heavy drinker. Thirteen lives were lost on Sunday, the other seven on work days.

These facts, particularly the time and place, show very clearly the cause of these evils and point the way to their correction.

GRATE TO FATTEN POULTRY

Work Should Be Done Four Weeks Before Killed to Get Right Proportion of Fat and Lean.

Fowls should be fattened at least four weeks before they are killed, not to make them as fat as possible, but to give them the right proportion of fat and lean to make the fowls fat and juicy when cooked.

The fattening-grate shown herewith is 6 feet long, 16 inches wide, 18 inches high and divided into three equal aisled compartments, each holding from four to six birds, as the case may be.

The slats or laths are 1 1/4 inches wide, placed one and a half inches apart at the ends, sides and tops of the grate, but those in front are placed vertically two inches apart.

The floor of the grate is made of slats laid lengthwise, one inch apart, leaving a one-inch space on either side between the first lath and the sides of the grate. The grate should stand on short legs or trestles, to allow convenience in cleaning.

The trough is made the full length of the grate and should be three or four inches deep. It is supported at either end on notched boards, in order that it may be taken away when the coops are cleaned.

Never leave the feed before the chickens more than 15 minutes, and feed very little at the start, gradually increasing the amount until the end of the week they are getting all they can eat three times a day.

Some rations for fattening are given below:

- Equal parts by weight of finely ground corn, oats and shorts, mixed with sour skimmed milk. Same ration, except substitute ground barley for the corn. Finely ground oats mixed with skimmed milk. Equal parts of finely ground oats, corn and low-grade flour. If beef-scrap is used, 15 per cent. is the best proportion.

LEGHORNS ARE BEST LAYERS

None Other Found So Strong and Hardy and Consequently Easy for Poultrymen to Raise.

Leghorns live and are profitable longer than other breeds. Large hens put on fat after the first year and do not lay so well afterward. Leghorns lay well until four or five years old and a Leghorn on free range will never get fat enough to hinder her laying.

Like all other fowls they are at their best during the first and second years of their lives, but as long as a Leghorn hen looks bright and thrifty she will lay profitably, says a writer in an exchange. This in a great measure offsets the fact that their bodies are too small to sell well as dressed poultry, however the buyers here pay as much per pound for them as for any.

They are accused of not laying so well during the winter as the larger hen. If the houses are cold enough to frost the combs of the single combed varieties they will not lay until their combs are healed. They hard ly ought to be expected to, and rose combed varieties do better on this account, but given comfortable quarters I have no trouble in getting them to lay in winter. Last December was a very cold month here, the temperature being below zero nearly every morning during the month and some mornings more than 20 below. I had yearling hens laying, also pullets hatched in June that had been laying since September 1.

Other small breeds that I have tried fill all these points except one. I have found none other so strong and hardy and consequently easy to raise and so take them all in all, the Leghorn suits me for an all-around farmer's fowl better than anything that I have ever tried.

The Economy of Prevention. To spend money lavishly on hospitals, insane asylums, jails and reformatories is well, but better would be a public desire to go behind the pauper, criminal and diseased in mind and body, seek the causes that made them thus inefficient units, and to apply the prevention, if it is in the public power, as it has been demonstrated, largely to do.

Dangerous Enemy. Beer is a far more dangerous enemy to Germany than all the armies of France—Yon Hottel.

A BRISK WALK TO WASHINGTON PARK

A day like today. Nothing is more beneficial, or more healthful than a brisk walk to and from Washington Park.

"Drat the luck! I wrote a paragraph about a Turkish towel and a printer made it 'Turkish bowl'." "Oh, well, don't blame the poor fellow. He was probably thinking about what Italy is doing to Turkey now."

Unable to See. "Would you want your wife or your mother or your sister to have to mingle with men at the polls?" "I can't see why it would be any worse than mingling with them in overcrowded cars."

Its Effect. "Drink often causes paradoxical conduct in a man, doesn't it?" "How so?" "When a man gets tight, it often makes him loosen up."

The Paris correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association writes that the scourge of alcoholism to which for a long time the working class of France has been very indifferent, has, at last, begun to really and vitally interest them. There has been recently organized a Federation of Anti-Alcohol Workers which is sending out an appeal to all the syndical organizations inviting them to take part in anti-alcohol propaganda. The federation has already held several meetings and given moving picture lectures in Paris. Like other continental workers the French begin to realize that drink by dulling ambition and impaired efficiency is a handicap to the workman at the very points where he needs to be strongest if he is to improve his condition.
