THE FIRST DAY OF THE EXHIBIT IS A SUCCESS

Many Visitors and Patrons Visit Public Schools. The Exhibit Continues.

The first day of the annual exhibit at the Washington Public Schools took place today and from the hour of nine o'clock to the closing, a large number of interested parents and visitors attended and visited the various departments.

The visitors and their friends were delightfully entertained this morning in the school auditorium by the pupils composing the third grade in the High School of which Miss Annie Payne is the efficient teacher and preceptor.

After the opening exercises the visitors went to the rooms of the different departments where they were shown the work done for the past year.

The exhibit will continue throughout Friday and tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock the Kindergarten department, Miss Mary Wright, teacher, will have charge of the exercises in the auditorium. These annual exhibits of what the pupils in the public schools are doing and accomplishing is doing much to instill enthusiasm not only in the students but the parents as well. Every parent and citizen of Washington should attend the exhibit.

THE DANCE WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

The subscription dance given at the Elks home by the Alumnae of the Salem Female College, Winston-Salem for the benefit of the association, proved to be one of the most delightful and enjoyable of the many given this season. The dance was led by Mr. R. F. Burkhardt, Jr., and the music was furnished by Forbes Orchestra. A large number of couples were present both from the city and elsewhere.

SKETCH OF THE LATE MAJ. HENRY HARDING

There fell peacefully on sleep Tuesday afternoon an true patriot and gallant a soldier as ever wore the gray. In the death of Major Henry Harding a just man passed to his eternal reward, to receive from the master he served the welcome placed as well done good and faithful servant. His life was the soul of honor his dealings with his fellow man just and upright, his loyalty to his country true, his devotion to his family and friends perfect. His service to Christ steadfast his benevolence to the needy often handed generous. He was indeed the truest type of man in God's own image. To him death was no fears, but only an entering into perfect rest after a long and well spent life. His end came peacefully. Only a few moments before he was he was sitting in an arm chair on his front porch. Growing suddenly worse he was assisted to his bed and in a few minutes passed away.

Major Harding was 76 years of age and a native of Beaufort county where he spent his early years and was educated at Trinity school at Chocowinity. When the civil war broke out he organized the "Beaufort Flow Boys" and went to the front as captain of that company. He gallantly as a soldier fought him steady promotion and until he became major of the 61st N. C. regiment.

Through the war he was in the thickest of the fray, being in the line at Charleston and also in several of the hottest battles in the vicinity of Petersburg. Only once was he wounded and then slightly in the shoulder, but he was twice taken prisoner, such time being exchanged for a Federal prisoner held on the Confederate side.

When the war ended he returned to his native county and was elected to the representative in the legislature which followed. In 1870 he also served the county on the board of commissioners.

In February, 1902, he married Miss Emma M. King, the widow and sister-in-law of General King. These are

VISIT THE DEPT. OF MANUAL TRAINING

Fine Work is Being Done. Samples of Work Now on Sale.

It would say any citizen of Washington to visit the Public Schools and carefully examine the work in the Manual Training department under the direction of Mr. G. B. Howard, who has been in charge of this branch for the past three years. Today and tomorrow, Reception days, Mr. Howard will have on exhibit quite a number of samples of work as executed by his pupils. Yesterday a Daily News man visited the Manual training department and to say that he was agreeably surprised is needless. The work as executed by the pupils is simply wonderful and shows what a boy can do when he tries. The principal work performed is mechanical drawing and bench work and no doubt those who attend the exhibit today and tomorrow will have cause, and justly so, to feel proud of this well known educational institution which has and is doing such fine work in this city. Pupils are taken in the Manual training department from the seventh grade up and on through the High School.

The samples of work on exhibition today are tamberettes, piano seats, book racks, labels, switches, swings, etc., all made and finished by the pupils in the school. They are for sale and no doubt there will be no trouble in disposing of them. This department of the Washington Public Schools is a feature and is growing more popular all the while. When patrons visit the schools today and tomorrow they should not think of returning to their homes without first paying a visit to the Manual Training department.

SYMPATHY FOR WOMAN SLAYER

Special to the Daily News. Cleveland, Ohio, April 25.—Much interest and sympathy is manifested in the case of Mrs. Rose Devorkin of Lawrence, Mass., who was arraigned in court today for trial on a charge of second degree murder, for killing Jacob Horovitz in a Cleveland street on Nov. 27, 1911. Mrs. Devorkin shot Horovitz, tralling him here from her Massachusetts home. She charged that Horovitz had known her as a girl, and that on stories growing from the friendship her husband had divorced her according to the Jewish rite. Since the tragedy the woman has given birth to a baby boy, now about two months old.

A woman will believe anything a man says if he puts it in the form of a love letter.

WIRES ARE ALL BUSY TODAY

Miss Lucile Pugh Disobeys Doctor And Leaves Her Sick Bed to Defend Negro Charged With Murder

New York, April 25.—Miss Lucile Pugh, a lawyer rose from a sick bed yesterday to defend Leroy Polidexter, colored, accused of the murder of Thomas Brown in a quarrel over a game of craps. Miss Pugh's doctor had ordered her to stay indoors, because of a throat trouble. She sent word of her condition to Supreme Court Justice Davis and asked him to postpone the trial. When the reply came that the case must proceed she arose and at the opening of the afternoon session was in her place within the bar. Nine jurors had been chosen. She assisted in selecting the others.

This is the first murder case in New York to which a woman has been assigned as chief counsel. Miss Pugh, who hails from North Carolina, asked for the appointment to defend Polidexter because his father was a slave of a friend of hers. By chance the last friend examined was Robert Lee, a descendant of the Virginia Lees. On Miss Pugh's insistence, Senator McClelland, who is assisting her, accepted Lee without further examination.

Miss Pugh, a slight, pale woman with earnest brown eyes and strands of chestnut color warming her dark hair, prepared much of the case and will conduct the direct examination of witnesses. She expects to acquit her client, but she informed District Attorney Moss, the prosecutor, that whatever the result she will appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States from the refusal of the Court to quash the panel because there was no colored person in it.

Miss Pugh is associated with Senator James B. McClelland and comes from North Carolina. She was attired in a blue serge skirt with a standing collar, and wore no hat as she sat by the side of the defendant during the early morning. She handled the gruesome exhibits in the case—consisting of a five-chambered revolver, an opium pipe and a razor—and looked critically at the dead man's clothing. The exhibits did not phase the young woman lawyer. Senator McClelland examined the first witness and when assistant District attorney Frank Morse had finished the direct examination, Samuel Freeman who had testified to the craps game preceding the shooting, Miss Pugh took him in hand. In her cross examination she referred to the prisoner as Leroy, his first name. Before she proceeded far she called Freeman Sam, a familiarity that is unheard of in the criminal court. Her questions were put to the witnesses in a clear, but boyish tone of voice, and as she proceeded with the examination many of the lawyers practicing in the criminal court became interested in her queries. She brought out in her questions to Freeman that before the tragedy there had been a craps game in the premises on East Twenty-eighth street. Brown had lost $36 to Polidexter, and finally in an effort to recover his losses he put a $50 pin in the game.

Miss Pugh as has already been stated in the columns of the Daily News was a citizen of Washington before going to New York where she studied law and graduated. Her many friends here wish her success in her first case for murder in which she is counsel—Ed.

EFFORT TO SAVE RICHESON'S LIEGE

Special to the Daily News. Boston, Mass., April 25.—The hearing on the appeal for commutation of the sentence of Clarence V. T. Richeson, confessed slayer of Aya Linnell, who is sentenced to die in the electric chair during the week of May 19, will come up before Governor tomorrow morning. William A. Morse of this city and John L. Lee of Lynchburg, Va., counsels for the former preacher, will ask for the commutation of their client's sentence and the Governor will thereon decide whether or not it shall be presented to the Executive Council. It is understood that one point that will be urged in favor of commutation is the fact that Richeson's confession saved the State the expense of trial. This expense, it is estimated, would have amounted to fully $45,000.

HOSE WAGON HORSE INJURED YESTERDAY

Yesterday in answering the alarm of fire one of the horses attached to the hose wagon of the Volunteer Company was injured on West Third Street. The accident was caused by a freight train of the Atlantic Coast Line backing on the street just as an attempt was made to pass by the wagon. The animal although skinned in several places is not thought to be seriously hurt. In case of fire the right of way belongs to the fire department and should be given them at all times.

NEW CAMPANILE DEDICATED WITH A SOLEMN BLESSING

The Event Was One of Interest in All Parts of the Entire World. TOWER ONE OF FAMOUS STRUCTURES Stands Today Just as Before. Restoration Occupied Ten Years.

Special to the Daily News. Venice, April 25.—Tens of thousands of people witnessed the solemn blessing today of the reconstructed Campanile of St. Mark's. Not only the people of Venice, but hundreds from the provinces of Italy and from neighboring countries joined the event one of international importance. Interest was added to the occasion by the presence of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena. Senators and deputies of the Italian parliament were present in numbers, while the Vatican was represented by a distinguished delegation headed by several members of the college of cardinals. The Campanile which was dedicated today is a perfect reproduction in every detail of the old one destroyed on July 4, 1902. The old tower was one of the famous structures of the world. For centuries it stood as a visible reminder of the time when the Venetians dominate the arts and commerce of the world. It began as a water tower before the Christian age was in its teens, and developed into a bell tower, with bells ringing forth at the first hint of danger, and latterly was considered a part of St. Mark's cathedral. Today the tower stands just as before. Its restoration has occupied almost ten years and is considered by architects and engineers as a most remarkable achievement. The bronze statues and the famous gates are again in place, the whole loggia has been restored, and the great bronze angel, 16 feet high, looks down again from the pinnacle of the structure. At 10 o'clock this morning, as a fitting prelude to the dedication ceremonies, the chimes were rung. Tears glistened in the eyes of the Venetians as they gathered in the square of St. Mark's and heard the old familiar sounds for the first time in almost a decade. Of the five bells in the restored Campanile four are new and were presented to St. Mark's by Pope Pius X.

MEET TO FRAME HAGUE PROGRAM

Special to the Daily News. Washington, D. C., April 25.—The American Society of International Law, which was formed in 1906 for the purpose of "fostering the study of international law and promoting the establishment of international relations on the basis of law and justice," assembled in this city today for its sixth annual meeting. Opening tonight with an address by Senator Root, the sessions will continue over tomorrow and Saturday. The society has decided to devote its entire meeting this year to the consideration of the programme, organization and procedure of the third Hague Conference in 1915. Some of the speakers and their subjects are: Gen. George B. Davis formerly Judge advocate general of the United States Army, on "The Effects of War Upon International Conventions and Upon Private Contracts;" Thomas Willing Balch, of Philadelphia, on "The Marine Belt and the Question of Territorial Waters;" Rear Admiral Charles H. Stockton, president of George Washington University, on "The Codification of the Laws of Naval Warfare;" and many other speakers of prominence both in American and Europe.

PARSON TELLS HOW TO BE HAPPY THOUGH MARRIED

Advices Husbands Not to Buy Wives Cigars and Wives Not to Look For Wings on Husbands. New York, April 25.—The Rev. L. H. Jones preached Sunday night in the Patchogue Congregational Church on marriage and gave this receipt for a happy marriage: "Don't expect too much from your wife. Don't cast slurs nor mean jests even in fun. Don't be too touchy of your rights as lord and master. Don't buy 80-cent candy before you are married and 10-cent candy afterward. Don't forget that your wife is entitled to some of your money. Don't expect to go to heaven in your wife's name. Don't borrow from your wife what you give her to expend. Don't give your wife a box of cigars for a Christmas present, to smoke yourself. And this advice to wives: Don't suspect angels wings on your husband in this world. It matters not how good a woman's square may be, she never over-looks an opportunity to improve it. The modern girl is never satisfied until she gets a hat 50c larger for her head and shoes 10c small for her feet."
