NEWS TRAVELS IN HOSPITALS

Wireless Outdone in Rapidity with Which Patients Get Forbidden Information.

"A very efficient system of wireless telegraphy exists in every hospital," said the nurse. "Apparently all patients have the knack of transmitting messages, otherwise the news of serious cases would not travel so quickly and accurately from ward to ward. It is contrary to the rules for hospital attendants to retail gossip, and most of them do observe strict secrecy, yet notwithstanding that precaution there is never an interesting case in the building whose history is not known and discussed in the remotest corner.

"Last week a boy suffering from a peculiar kind of throat trouble was brought into a first floor ward. The doctors were very much interested in the case, yet they took special pains never to mention it in the hearing of another patient. But for all the good their caution did they might as well have lectured on the case in every ward; for when the boy died men and women all about the hospital said to the nurses:

"So that poor boy died, did he?"

"Now, how did the news travel?"

NOT YET APPRISED OF LOSS

But Mourners Would Be Pleased When They Came to Realize Their Bereavement.

Cohn and Goldberg went into the diamond business. They got about $100,000 worth of diamonds on credit. "Now, how will we make it a success?" asked Goldberg.

"I got it," answered Cohn. "We will put the diamonds in a coffin and ship it to Canada and you and I will go as chief mourners along to Canada."

So they got two black suits, black bordered handkerchiefs and all the trappings for mourning. They accompanied the coffin to Montreal. As the baggage man took the coffin out of the baggage car they stood beside it crying.

"Are you the only mourners?" asked the baggage man.

"Yes, right now," responded Cohn. "But in 30 days there will be more mourners and in 60 days still more mourners."—New York World.

Coffinless Funeral.

The Bacchanalian funeral in Italy, which took half a day to reach the burial place, is very like what Dean Ramsay tells of bygone Scotland. There was the old maiden lady of Strathpey who had her grandnephew see that as much whisky was used at her funeral as had been used at her baptism. The churchyard was ten miles from her home. It was a short November day, and night was closing in when the funeral procession arrived. "But whaur's Miss Ketty?" asked the grave digger, and being answered, "In her coffin, to be sure," he still missed the coffin. The party, during a halt at a wayside inn, had rested it on a dyke, and forgotten it when they resumed their way; and the interment had to be postponed until the next day.

Maid's One Good Quality.

Servant girls know their own good points and they take care that everybody else shall know them. One maid who was obliged to look for a new situation because her employers were leaving town listened critically to the enumeration of her virtues as set down in the recommendation that had just been written by her former mistress.

"There's one thing you've left out, ma'am," she said. "I never cut my fingers. I wish you'd put that right up at the head of the list. Ladies will like that. Some girls cut their fingers terrible and it looks bad."

"Why, that is true; you never do," said her mistress, and the unusual point of efficiency, "She never cuts her fingers," was inserted as requested.

Beware of Cousins.

Cousins are not as simple as they seem. The very fact of being a cousin is complicated. The intricacies of cousinship to both eluding and detaching cousins will be cousins, even if you did not choose them. They can borrow money from you, visit you without being asked, tell people they belong to your family, contest your will, even fall in love with you—and a cousin once removed is twice as apt to. Never completely trust a cousin—never depend on his not doing any of these things. Never take him for granted. The "cousin law" may or may not make what it means. And cousins always do the "right" part of things sometimes.—L. Hunt.

Oh how dusty dusty dusty, Making furniture look rusty, When the breeze is stirring briskly, And the ground is dry and crispy, In Washington. Oh this dust makes air so dusky, Makes us all feel dull, yes husky, As the breeze stirs up those scaly Microbes: We eat them daily In Washington. Horses stir up dust so thickly And we breathe it makes us sickly, Why this air with dust kept hazy, Can but set us almost crazy In Washington.

Automobiles are getting within the means of modest, pursed people. Now is the time for you to secure the best Washington Park addition lot that ever will be within your power to secure. Better see me at once.

WHICH? 'Tis not dusty dusty dusty, So our furniture looks lousy, And our carpets we brush lightly, Stay clean and looking brightly, In Washington Park. Breeze here so pure and healthy, Makes us rich in health, yes wealthy, Then no dust to make us huffy, So feel gay like Fluffy Ruffy, In Washington Park. Dustless air we have it dandy, Yes and picturesque scenes so bandy, Come then build your cottage cozy And your life will be so rosy In Washington Park.
