BEST CO-OPERATIVE FARMING

Great Success Financially and Socially Have Proven Economic Value of the Movement.

Experiments in co-operative farming have not been numerous either in the country or abroad, yet their great success financially and socially goes beyond question the economic value of the movement.

One striking feature of the movement in those countries where Socialism is rapidly spreading is the tendency toward individualism in co-operative farming. This is shown by the fact that of 150 such farming associations only about one-fourth were operated collectively under a manager, while the remainder were managed under the individual allotment plan.

This last aspect of the associations has been demonstrated more clearly in our own country. Practically the first co-operative farming plan was the Italian colonization scheme on swamp lands north of Wilmington, North Carolina, which was begun about six years ago.

WHAT ALL STATES REQUIRE Citizens of Every Commonwealth Should Read Carefully and Heed Advice of Professor Holden.

Professor Holden of Iowa is quoted, as saying to an Iowa farmers' meeting: "But why direct our energy in a warfare out of which can come no good. Let all stand for a bigger, greater Iowa. We need to be up and making Iowa sentiment. That is what is most needed now."

A New Jersey man puts in a claim for an invention by which peas can be made to grow by electricity. That may be all right, but if the New Jersey man desires fame as a real benefactor of his race he will perfect the invention so that it will produce weeds from growing by electricity.

Have something to work for—and then work for it. It is better to be clean and ragged than to be dirty and rich.

Give the boys a chance to make good on the farm before they have a chance to make bad somewhere else.

Don't matter how accommodating a neighbor may be if he is careless about his livestock you wish for more staples between you.

The world has for us just what we have for it. It is a great whispering gallery which flings back the echo of our voices.

Don't stick at home every day all through the summer. The wife and the boys and girls will be brighter and freer for good work if they get a fine ride or a nice little trip occasionally.

FAILURES OF MANY FARMERS Trouble May Easily Be Traced Back to Poor Management and the Lack of Co-operation.

Were we to sum up the failures of many of our farmers' elevators we could easily trace the trouble back to poor management and lack of harmony on the part of the shareholders.

Actual cases in our section serve to illustrate these points. One association used a four per cent margin and shipped out the grain as soon as possible.

CANDID ADVERTISING NEEDED Deliberate Misstatement Regarding Goods Means Business Suicide In the End.

Time was when even reputable merchants lacked full candor in their advertising. It was argued—by people with ridiculous ideas of the aims and purposes of advertising—that the people would only believe a small part of what an advertiser claimed, anyhow; hence it behooved him to exaggerate accordingly, so that after the reader's deductions from exaggerations had been liberally made, a basis of truth would remain.

As this was always a false argument it has been exploded—to stay exploded! Self-respecting, thinking people are the people who read ads nowadays. And to deliberately misstate a fact in advertising now is simply a species of attempted business suicide.

Advertising Talks

Helps Merchants Dispose of Seasonable Goods and Keep Fresh Stock on His Shelves.

August is a month in which newspaper advertisements are eagerly watched for and read very closely.

Many people have deferred buying articles of wearing apparel until the present time and they are watching the columns of the newspaper carefully for the merchants' invitation to them to come to their store and inspect their stocks and prices.

There are many others who purchase nearly all their summer clothing and wearing apparel of all kinds during July from the simple fact that they know the modern live and progressive merchant will during this month inaugurate special bargain sales of seasonable merchandise in order to make room for his fall and winter stock.

August newspaper advertising is eagerly looked for and carefully read. The merchant who advertises reaps a rich reward and gets rid of summer stock at a time when there is a demand for the merchandise. The merchant who advertises in August is not the man who fails to sell his reasonable merchandise and who is compelled to box it up and store it away to be displayed on his shelves and counters next season, when styles have changed and there is little or no demand for the goods he carried over, and which he is then forced to dispose of for a trifle.

Newspaper readers realize that the live merchant is the one who always has a nice, new, fresh stock of goods to show customers each season during the year.

The value that newspaper advertising is to any merchant depends on the kind of a newspaper he uses as well as the circulation of the newspaper has. A newspaper that is read by the most people not only in its home city but in the cities and towns surrounding it is the best medium through which to reach the people.

The paper that a paper has is what the live merchant buys. He wants to reach the people and he uses the paper that the people read. The live merchant knows that the people read the newspaper they have confidence in and respect for, and they also know that an advertisement in a newspaper of that character is worth more than it is in a newspaper that has scarcely any circulation in surrounding territory.

People have confidence in the paper they read and no one understands this better than the really live merchant.

CANDID ADVERTISING NEEDED Deliberate Misstatement Regarding Goods Means Business Suicide In the End.

Time was when even reputable merchants lacked full candor in their advertising. It was argued—by people with ridiculous ideas of the aims and purposes of advertising—that the people would only believe a small part of what an advertiser claimed, anyhow; hence it behooved him to exaggerate accordingly, so that after the reader's deductions from exaggerations had been liberally made, a basis of truth would remain.

As this was always a false argument it has been exploded—to stay exploded! Self-respecting, thinking people are the people who read ads nowadays. And to deliberately misstate a fact in advertising now is simply a species of attempted business suicide.

A store which would thus forfeit the confidence or respect of all honest people would soon find out that there were not enough dishonest people—there were people who would condone dishonest advertising—in this town to support the smallest stores in it.

You may read the ads nowadays with the satisfying knowledge that advertisers realize that falsehood is business suicide—unfalling! Candid advertising is necessary nowadays.

Don't take this course. Follow the advice of a Washington citizen. Mrs. G. E. Edwards, 223 E. Main street, Washington, N. C., says: "I suffered terribly from backache, accompanied by sharp, shooting pains through my kidneys. The kidney secretions caused me considerable annoyance. I used several kidney remedies but received no relief until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They drove away the pains and lameness in my loins and strengthened my kidneys. That tired, aching feeling disappeared and I was able to rest better at night."
