THE HIGH COST OF LIVING AND THE COST OF GOOD LIVING.

Two statements have appeared in the newspapers recently regarding the cost of living. One was that, under present conditions, the cost of living is six dollars a month for a family of four. The other was a statement from the Department of Agriculture that one of the factors in producing higher prices is the inflation of the pure foodstuffs and the cost of transportation.

HOW GOOD ROADS WILL HELP THE MERCHANT.

Better Highways Bound to Keep the Neighborhood Trade at Home.

The increased area of distribution of the goods, wares and merchandise of our factories and stores demands a new method and means of transportation.

Good roads will extend the radius of service of the city merchant and jobber to a much larger territory.

Good roads will keep the many millions of dollars of our citizens at home instead of being spent through catalogue houses in cities outside of the state.

Good roads bring renewed energy and thrift to the merchant in every market center of the state.

Farm products will be marketed more easily throughout the year. Sales of merchandise and collections will be distributed over a larger period of time.

Good roads will mean good times to the merchant. Bad roads keep trade away from a town or city.

APPLYING GRAVEL TO ROADS.

Up to Date Farmers Use Manure Spreader For Difficult Job.

In a locality where a large mileage of gravel and rock roads had been constructed farmers discovered a method of laying the material uniformly and with a minimum of effort.

Several of the farmers owned manure spreaders of the kind that have low hanging, easily detached beaters and automatic fall gates.

They removed the beaters, took the tops of the material they could haul, drove out upon the road to be treated, threw the material in gear at a speed that was required to make the proper application of the material, and it was spread in a uniform layer on the roadbed.

Some of the men with an implicit faith in their machines did not even go to the trouble of removing the beaters.

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN ROAD.

A remarkable piece of road building has been done in the vicinity of Los Angeles, Cal., on an automobile highway from Laurel canyon to the summit of Lookout mountain.

It is just wide enough for one vehicle and, says the Scientific American, has one route for ascending and another for descending cars.

It rivals the famous roads of Norway and the Alps in its multitudinous Y's, hairpins and sharp turns. The side of the steep mountain is actually terraced by this road.

The popularity of this run is shown by the string of cars on a holiday. The grades are very easy, and the road is perfectly safe.

The Thing He Remembered.

A young girl of romantic disposition sat at dinner next to a man who had once fished on one of Cornell's greatest crews.

She tried to draw him out on the subject of fishing and of the particular contest in which he had captured the record in his senior year.

"I suppose," she said, "that your most vivid recollection of that race is of the cheers of the crowd as you came across the finish line?"

He shook his head. "What is the thing in connection with the race that you remember most distinctly?"

"Well," said the oarsman slowly, "when any one talks about that race it always brings one recollection, one picture, a very vivid one, to my mind right away."

"What is that?" asked the girl eagerly. "The man who rowed No. 1, who sat just in front of me, had a mole exactly midway between his shoulder blades."—New York Tribune.

What You Eat in Apples.

Do you know what you are eating when you eat an apple? No, not the sorts and varieties of worms for there will be no worms if you have bought your fruit from an orchardist, who sprays his trees. You are eating milk acid, the property that makes butter-milk so healthful. You are eating gallic acid, one of the most necessary elements in human economy.

You are eating sugar in the most assimilable form, combined carbon, hydrogen and oxygen caught and imprisoned from the sunshine. You are eating nitrogen in its most available state. You are eating a gum allied to the "fragrant medicinal gums of Araby." You are eating phosphorus in the only form in which it is available as a source of all brain and nerve energy.

In addition to all these, you are drinking the purest water and eating the most healthful and desirable fiber for the required "roughness" in food elements.—National Horticultural.

Notions as to "Lost Arts." Current tradition credits the ancients with many "lost arts." It is still common to hear people say that means unknown to us must have been employed to erect the pyramids, that the Damascus blade is beyond the power of modern cutlers and that the art of hardening copper died with some little brown Aztec.

In point of fact, larger stones than any found in the pyramids have been quarried in Maine, carried across the sea and erected in buildings in England and France. If any one cared to pay the cost there are plenty of contractors who would build a replica of the largest pyramid and would not take so very long about it.

It is doubtful whether a "Damascus blade" will stand as much as a good modern hand saw or the spring of a cheap clock.

Copper can be hardened by modern methods to equal any specimen that has been left to us by the ancients. Many arts that are supposed to be lost are simply abandoned because there is no modern need of cultivating them, and others are not even abandoned, but employed every day and improved upon.—New York Tribune.
