A Few Years Hence

The old and settled neighborhood of today will be more or less delapidated. A few years hence old friends will have passed away or else moved to a newer and healthier section.

Ure foresight and build in dust free Washington Park, where the outlook points to being the most exclusive Homesite Property in or around Washington. Inducements to builders. See me at once.

Old English Press Gangs.

In the past the news of a shortage of men in the navy and the hint of action by the admiralty would have put the merchantman on guard. Toward the end of the eighteenth century, for instance, there was a call for sailors for the navy, and 'persuasion' was the rule. 'The press in the Thames for the last three days has been very severe. Five or six hundred seamen have been laid hold of.' Thus runs one of many entries in the papers of the period. It was not always peaceful 'pressing' as this item in the 'Times' of 1775 will prove: 'There was a very hot press on the river Friday night last, when several hundred able seamen were procured. One of the galleys in hourly a Liverpool trader was resisted by the crew, in which a desperate fray took place, in which many of the former were thrown overboard, and a lieutenant who boarded the vessel, was killed by a shot from the vessel.'—London Chronicle.

A Bit of Kitchener's Tact.

The Egyptian Bedouin is not compelled to pay taxes or to render the ordinary obligations of citizenship, which in Egypt includes military service. Soon after the outbreak of the war between Turkey and Italy a delegation of Bedouins approached General Kitchener and told him that they wanted to go across the border to the assistance of their hard pressed fellows in Tripoli. The English general admitted with unexpected readiness that their request was reasonable, but he reminded them that by granting it he would be creating a precedent which would make them liable for military service with the Egyptian army.

The delegation withdrew, and Kitchener was not troubled any more with requests for leave to cross the border.

Scotsmen and Funerals.

Englishmen, says Ian MacLaren in 'Books and Bookmen,' bear them selves well at burials, where Scotsmen are at a disadvantage because the cautious Scotch eye is focused upon an uncertain future. But the Scotsman shines at a funeral as one of the fixtures of life.

'I fear,' says one member to his neighbor at the fall of a walking funeral, 'I'll see Jamie Thompson walking in the front side by side with the chief mourner and him no a drop o' blood to the corpse?' 'Fine I see him in forward, meetin' the ambitious body. He would be inside the hearse if he could'—the most awful and therefore most enviable position for a sober minded Scot.

NEW MOTOR ROAD CLEANER.

Works on Vacuum Plan and Picks Up Stones and Broken Bricks. The first demonstration in England of the new motor vacuum road cleaning machine, the invention of an Italian engineer, took place at Southport recently.

The machine has from twenty to thirty horsepower and a four cylinder motor engine. The sweeping mechanism consists of a cylindrical brush composed of a series of small brushes, which revolves in a sheet-iron shell in the opposite direction to that of the wheels of the car. The speed at which the brush rotates creates enough draft to collect by suction all the dust and deposit it in a receptacle. The machine picks up wooden blocks and broken bricks, and it is said that it can deal steadily with bottles and stones up to nine pounds in weight.
