NEGRO HORRIBLY KILLED ONCE LIVED HERE

Swiftdale, Va., Feb. 3.—A colored man was killed here instantly Friday, by a freight train, who is said to have been from Washington, N. C. He was out in two at the waist, his arms cut off, and his skull fractured. He was buried Saturday, after a verdict of accidental death by the coroner's jury. As the result of inquiries, it developed today that the name of negro was John Battle, that he was probably from Washington, N. C., and possibly had a sister living in that place.

SMALL FIRE IN CITY SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Saturday afternoon the fire alarm was given and the department rushed to the corner of Fourth and Harvey. The blaze, which proceeded from a negro shack, turned out to be a very small affair, however, and was easily extinguished.

Raw linseed oil is the best remedy for constipation. It acts more quickly than any of the other simple remedies. MARK STATE HIGHWAYS

Telegraph Poles Painted to Indicate Various Routes. C. Gordon Reel, state superintendent of highways of New York, has designated several main highway routes of the state by colors for the guidance of automobilists. This has been done in accordance with the suggestion of Frank D. Lyon, secretary of the New York State Automobile association.

Five routes have been designated with colors, red, blue, yellow, green and brown respectively, and state highway employees have been appointed to begin marking the routes at once. Telegraph poles along the lines will be painted in colors by local automobile clubs and the state will paint the top rails of fences and bridge approaches. Colored disks will designate routes through cities and towns and maps will be prepared showing the color scheme and outlines. Connecting routes will later be designated by combinations of colors.

Solitary Confinement. The punishment which replaced the death penalty in Italy—namely, life imprisonment with solitary confinement—is considered to be much worse than death itself. Murderers sentenced to life imprisonment invoke death to end their sufferings. Isolation, complete in the very sense of the word—enforced idleness, lack of exercise and sufficient food and continual surveillance in a cell so small as to almost render any movement impossible—such is the fate of a murderer in Italy. Solitary confinement lasts for five long years, sometimes for ten, but convicts can hardly bear it for more than six months. Invariably they are insane long before the term expires, and often they commit suicide. The fear of solitary confinement acts as a preventive to murder as much as and perhaps much more than that of capital punishment. It is quite true that the cases of murder have not diminished to any great extent in Italy since the abolition of the death penalty; but, on the other hand, they have not increased.—Chicago News.

German Justice. A curious illustration of the principle of responsibility abroad is afforded by a civil damage suit growing out of the breaking of a plate glass window in a German town. A witness had testified as follows: "As I was passing down the street in front of the window I saw a big stone come whirling through the air. I did not know whence it came. I saw it coming through the air, and I had just time enough to dodge to save myself from being hit by it."

The witness was sharply questioned upon the point whether the stone that broke the window would have struck him had he not dodged it. He was then dismissed. Eventually the decision of the magistrate was this: "Inasmuch as if the witness had not unfortunately ducked his head the glass would not have been struck by the stone, he is hereby adjudged responsible for the breaking of the window and is ordered to pay to the owner the value of the same."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Orchard and Garden. A neglected asparagus bed on the place is of little commercial value and to take up the old crowns and reset them would be unwise when young plants can be obtained at a moderate cost and a new bed planted at much less expense.

Save all of the wood ashes and apply them to the orchard. They supply potash, which is a necessary element of fertility. In addition to the great food value of ashes, they benefit the mechanical condition of the soil in making it mellow and friable.

When the temperature drops so low some of these nights hang a lighted lantern in the cellar about a foot from the floor, making sure it cannot fall and set fire to the house. The heat from it may be enough to save the fruit and vegetables from freezing.

As the extra grade tea teacher was questioning a boy about Napoleon's disastrous invasion of Russia and the subsequent retreat from Moscow. "What did the French do then?" she asked.

"They ran away," said the boy. "Yes, that is what they did," said the teacher, "but ran away" is hardly the correct phrase to use. What should you have said?"

The boy's face lighted up with understanding. "They beat it!" he exclaimed proudly.—Kansas City Star.
