HOLD THE STATE TOGETHER.

For the second time there is looming up the question of dividing the State into two circuits or Superior Court judges. Senator Ward in the Senate and Representative Witherspoon in the House introduced bills Saturday for the dividing of the State into two judicial circuits of ten districts each today, and with the question of twenty districts settled, lawyers mean to fight it out with redoubting of the State under the new act.

It is proposed that the Superior Court judges of the first ten districts shall ride those districts in rotation, and that those of the second district shall ride those in rotation. It is admitted that the judges of the two circuits should interchange with each other as they see fit, even after the new system goes into effect. Then what is the use of passing such a bill at all? About the most substantial reason so far advanced in favor of the measure is that under the new plan judges would not have to travel so far from home. But a judge is a traveling man, able to take care of himself, and the more he sees of people in various quarters of his State, the better fitted is he for his honorable and very responsible duty.

And yet the proposed dividing of the State has a tendency to widen the different sections of the State a little farther apart. As matters now stand, there is none too much sympathy between people of Eastern and Western North Carolina, settled separately, developed separately, and each with its own ideals and traditions, there is much ground for antagonism between the two sections. The Eastern part is inclined to look upon the mountains as rough and jagged, while the West is proud to regard the East as snobbish and lacking in frank genuineness of feeling.

At the State University it has often been noted that there is too great a tendency for the Eastern and Western men to stay to themselves. Whenever the State song is sung Eastern and Western voices blend together in the chorus of "Carolina." We all have a common heritage after all. The glorious history of our State in the Revolution and Civil Wars is shared by all, and we acclaim with one accord, "First at Gettysburg and last at Appomattox." The two halves are drawing closer together all the time. But it occurs to us that the judges, rotating with each other from one end of the State to the other, have much to do with helping the good work along. Let our judges continue to go about the State—the whole State.

KENYON BILL IS ANALYZED

The purpose of the Kenyon bill is "to prohibit interstate commerce in intoxicating liquors in certain cases." Now the "certain cases" in which it is sought to prohibit the interstate shipments of liquors are described as follows:

"Which intoxicating liquor is intended by any person interested therein, directly or indirectly, or in any manner connected with the transaction to be received, possessed, or kept, or in any manner used, either in the original package or otherwise, in violation of any law of such State, or territory, or district of the United States."

The falacy and injustice of this provision is best known by applying it to some article of interstate commerce other than liquors.

Let us see how this would work applied to fire arms and ammunition—to shotguns for instance, shipped from one state to another. The bill would then read:

"When shotguns are 'intended' by any person interested therein, directly or indirectly, or in any manner connected with the transaction, to be received, possessed or kept, or in any manner used, either in the original package or otherwise, in violation of any law of such State, territory or district of the United States."

Let's Dine in WASHINGTON PARK

Thousands of our citizens keep shotguns and shotgun ammunition in their homes. The man who uses a shotgun to attack or murder a neighbor is arrested and punished, but what would we say of a law which would confiscate a shipment of shotguns upon an allegation made by some one that "somebody, directly or indirectly connected with the shipment, 'intended' to use one or more of the shotguns for some harmful purpose in violation of law."

In the light of past experiences in liquor legislation, it is fair to assume that if the Kenyon bill becomes a law, it will have one of three results: it will be added to those other liquor laws, which by reason of their unfairness and vagueness, fall into disuse and non-enforcement; or it will result in the repeal of all prohibitory laws; or it will be declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States—Town and Farm.

BRUTALITIES IN RUSSIA.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 11.—The leniency of the High Court of Cassation in sentencing to only three months imprisonment Police Sergeant Tokovny and six rural constables, convicted of torturing a number of prisoners suspected of murder, has evoked loud protests from the Liberal press.

One of the victims died as the result of the brutalities inflicted upon him. Another made this statement at the trial:

"Both my father and I, after being taken to prison, were beaten with whips, cat-of-nine-tails, sabres, and the butt-ends of rifles. All the other prisoners, who were similarly treated, were dragged in a bleeding condition to a table, whereon lay a confession which we were ordered to sign. On refusing, we were beaten again. When we asked to be allowed to look through the paper, or at least to have its contents read out to us, the beating was resumed. Several times I fainted, whereupon they brought me back to consciousness by pouring cold water over me, and demanded that I should sign the paper. I do not remember that I complied with that order, as I fainted again, and

HOW ONE WOMAN WON

Her Health and Strength Back Again by The Use of Cardui.

Tampa, Fla.—In a letter from this city, Mrs. E. C. Corum writes: "I was all weakened and worn out with womanly troubles. My husband brought me some Cardui as a tonic, and, from the first day, it seemed to help. I had almost lost my reason, but, thanks to Cardui, I did not. Soon, I felt and looked like a new woman. I think the remedy is wonderful. I recommend it to my friends, for I have received great benefit from it."

Cardui acts specifically on the weakened womanly organs, strengthening the muscles and nerves, and building them up to health. It helps to refresh the worn-out nervous system and relieves the effects of overwork, both mental and physical. Fifty years' successful use fully prove the merit of this purely vegetable, tonic remedy for women.
