WHY NOT PIX STREETS?

A universal topic of conversation hich breaks out with most vehem ence just after n spell of bad weather, is the condition of Washington streets. When two or three "leading Jusiness men" get together on a corner, in a drug store, or in a barber shop, this subject is sure to be brought up sooner or later, and discussed more or less hotly.

No one has been heard to brazenly, sulvocate bad streets.

All agree that somebody ought do something, though exactly who ought to do what seems a proposition upon which ideas are vague and definite opinions lacking.

There is a city board whose duty i is to attend to such matters, and in view of the strong public sentiment, it would seem to be the duty of this board to think of the most feasible plan for beginning at once the work of improving the city streets.

The objection may be unde that the city has not the finals. Very probably the city will not be able to efford for sometime to come an ex-
