TO COMMEMORATE SHAKESPEARE'S BIRTH.

New York, April 22.—The dramatic profession and playgoers all over the United States will observe the birthday of Shakespeare tomorrow on a more extended plan than has been hitherto followed. This is due largely to the efforts of Ian MacLaren, the distinguished English actor, who has been making a tour of the United States in "The Daughter of Heaven," with Miss Viola Allen.

Says MacLaren, "In England this event is annually celebrated by commemorative performances, pageants and other appropriate ceremonies. This year dramatic companies in the United States will give special performances of Shakespeare's plays. It is hoped in the near future to start a fund for the erection of a Shakespeare's Museum in the United States."

KIPLING A DRAMATIST

London, April 22.—The most interesting theatrical event of the season is the production here this afternoon of an original play by Rudyard Kipling. It is a one-act piece, called "The Harbor Watch," and appears as a part of the afternoon bill at the Royalty. Of course there have been staged versions of the more dramatic of Kipling's stories, such as "The Light That Failed" and "The Man Who Was," adapted by others, but this afternoon's production is the first thing written by Mr. Kipling. Beyond that is a work thoroughly characteristic of Mr. Kipling, and it contains a number of soldiers and sailors, nothing has yet been divulged about the play.

He's Going Away From Here

This man is evidently in a hurry. He is going away from here. You never can get some men into action without a powerful stimulus. You can hardly say this man is having a busy time, although the bull may be in all in the point of view.

Anyway, the man is going some and THAT IS GOOD FOR HIM, or is it? He goes fast enough. He has developed a burst of speed for once in his life. It is good to get into action.

It is good for the individual and even better for the community. THIS TOWN WANTS TO GET INTO ACTION. That means we as individuals want to get into action for the town. We want to get a move on.

The census shows that this country is increasing in population at the rate of nearly 2,000,000 per year. These people have to settle somewhere.

Why not here? We may not be able to get the whole 2,000,000, but even a fraction will help.

Why not go after them? We believe this is a good town also we would not live here.

Why not tell others and let them SHARE ITS BLESSINGS?

MISS FAUX MARRIED TO MR. R. H. MILES

Miss Maude Faux was quietly married at 2:30 this afternoon to Mr. R. H. Miles at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Faux on West Second street.

There will be no appeal from this decision. The date for the announcement has been extended three weeks beyond the original time because of the large number of subjects that had to be considered. NEWS FROM CAL. DISTURBS WILSON

Washington, April 22.—News of the determination of the legislative leaders in Sacramento to frame and pass an alien land owning bill, directly discriminating against the Japanese, unofficially conveyed today to the White House and state department, was received with grave concern and disappointment. Such a development had not been expected in view of the first favorable comments in California upon the President's suggestion of the regard he had for preservation of the friendly relations between this country and the oriental nations.

IMPRESSIVE CONGRESS OPENS.

Valetta, Island of Malta, April 22.—The formal opening of the business session of the fourteenth International Eucharist conference here today was most impressive. Manager Heylen, bishop of Namur, and president of the Permanent committee of the congress, celebrated the inaugural mass in the Rotunda of the cathedral.

Considerable interest is attached to this assemblage of the Eucharistic congress by virtue of the fact that it is held in the historic island where, it is said, St. Paul, the Apostle on his journey to Rome to be tried before Caesar was shipwrecked with his Roman captors. Added to this distinguished feature is another still more interesting, as it is more authentic. For it was in the island of Malta that the Knights of St. John, said by some to be the forerunners of the Knights Templars accomplished their greatest work.

The city of Valetta, where the congress is being held, is named for the grand master La Valette, who in the last attempt of the Turks to capture the island in 1565 saved the city after a siege of eight months and routed the formidable enemy with a handful of men. Among the objects of interest are the mortifications erected under La Valette. Had it not been for these mortifications and the valor of the knights he controlled now by the Ottoman Empire.

It was Napoleon, finally reduced the knights to condition for surrender. They rebelled and with the assistance of George III. of England cast out both the knights and the French in the year 1814.

Valetta offers the traveler many interesting sights suggestive of Malta's romantic past. Its civic and ecclesiastical history being almost inseparable, the city naturally presents the spectacle of beautiful buildings. Conspicuous among these is the Church of St. John. In this cathedral the knights of every nation decorated their respective chapels and erected memorials to their grand masters.

In the Governor's palace, once the palace of the grand masters, is a collection of war relics dating from the crusades. The council chamber is hung with Gobelin tapestries. A public library founded in the last days of the knights' activities contains 60,000 volumes, many of which are rare. Here also is the cave where St. Paul and St. Luke are said to have lived now marked by a large church, still the principal shrine of the Maltese. In this church may be seen the celebrated Byzantine portraits in silver of St. Paul.

The Maltese people boast that theirs is the only Catholic nation, for there are no Maltese Protestants. Naturally they have prepared for the congress with remarkable fervor. Among the gifts which the people will present to the Papal Legate is an elaborately ornamented chalice, set with jewels.
