A CONFESSION

Story of a Reckless Young Man

By F. A. MITCHEL

I was born all wrong for what was expected of me. My father founded a business which grew to be very profitable and produced a large fortune. I being my father's only son—indeed, his only child—his chief joy in life was that one day I would succeed him in his business, for though he had not then reaped much benefit from it, he saw great possibilities ahead.

At nineteen I was in jail under sentence of death for participation in a Central American revolution. My father came and bought my life with money. He took me home, telling me that I was a fool, but he hoped I would grow wiser with age. But there is an old adage, "Bury a fool in a mortar and he is still a fool." One year later, while climbing a mountain in Switzerland, I was carried down into the valley by an avalanche and was the only one of the party to come out alive.

One would suppose that this second escape would have cured me of impetuous great risks. But no. The day I came of age I fought a duel with a French army officer in Algiers and was wounded with unto death.

At this time my grandfather on my father's side was living, a hale and hearty man of seventy-five. My father, being taken suddenly ill and not having time before his death to lay any plan for his estate, left all he possessed to his father. What instructions went with the will I did not know, but later my grandfather informed me that if I settled down before his death he was to leave the property to me.

Unfortunately for me, my predisposition for getting myself killed was not sufficiently affected by this situation to induce me to go home and live an ordinary life. Finding myself in Rome when the Italians were sending troops

"I WAS STRUCK WITH ASTONISHMENT" to North Africa to fight the Mohammedans. I enlisted in an infantry regiment and was shot down by an un-Christian dog and lay in a hospital three months. When I recovered I went to Paris, where I received a letter announcing that my grandfather had died and had been married only a few hours before his death, leaving my estate to his wife.

Being still young, without common sense and by no means cured of my absurd predisposition, I was not very sorry that I should no longer be re-

Most Children Have Worms. Many mothers think their children are suffering from indigestion, headache, nervousness, weakness, constipation, when they are victims of that most common of all children's ailments—worms. Fearful, ill-tempered, fretful children, who show and grin their teeth, with bad breath and colicky pains, have all the symptoms of having worms, and should be given Kickapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant, candy lozenge, which expels worms, regulates the bowels, tones up the system, and makes children well and happy. Kickapoo Worm Killer is guaranteed. All druggists, or by mail. Price 25c. Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., Philadelphia and St. Louis.
