A VERDICT NOT CRITICISED.

Referring to an article on another page of today's News by M. A. D. MacLean, we wish to emphasize the fact that in our editorial of the 28th we were not referred to the verdict in the case against Rieck and Johnson because we heard none of the testimony, therefore could not express an opinion as to his guilt or innocence.

The editorial was based on the theory that since the recorder had adjudged him guilty he should have imposed a penalty in keeping with the offense committed, and the general reputation of the man. It was not our intention, nor do we now wish to convey the impression that all men charged with violating the prohibition law are guilty. No man should be convicted or acquitted because public sentiment is either for or against him. He should be tried and judgment rendered according to the evidence in the case. The present prohibition law is making lawbreakers and perjurers of men who would otherwise be peaceful, law-abiding citizens, and any law which debauches the citizenship of a State or community should be written off the statute books, and every fair-minded citizen will admit that the prohibition law and its amendments is debauching the citizenship of Beaufort County and the State of North Carolina.

GOOD ROADS.

That Beaufort county is daily in need of improved roads becomes more and more apparent daily. Hardly a week passes but our citizens can hear complaints as to the wretched conditions of the county. In the Daily News of only yesterday Mr. F. H. Rollins, who has just returned from a ten-day auto trip through central Carolina, that the worst roads he found anywhere were right in this county. No town can hope to thrive as it should and be based on a liberal patronage from the country unless the people coming to town have good thoroughfare over which to drive their teams. It is a fact that some of the best and toughest roads he took along the line of these roads. Whenever you find the people agitated in good roads and having their faith by their wags you see thrift and energy and business. This makes the roads of Beaufort county second to none.

The weather man says cooler weather this week. We notice however, that he fails to give us an insight as to the coming days for rain and lightning.

Lemons are selling in Washington at five cents apiece or three for ten. Lemonade drinkers will have to forego the pleasure of this refreshing drink unless things change. This is but another evidence of the high cost of living.

A well informed citizen states that there are at least one thousand more acres of tobacco planted in Beaufort county this year than last. Putting the price at one hundred dollars per acre means one hundred thousand dollars to the farmers. The crop so far throughout the county is said to be promising.

Forty thousand old veterans of the war between the states are today camping around the camp fires of memory at Gettysburg where fifty years ago the greatest struggle ever known to modern times was enacted. Only the courage and soldierly qualities of both the North and South are now recalled.

Conditions have certainly changed in Washington since the prohibition law has been in vogue. Folk don't rise as early mornings now as then. In those days it was customary for a fellow to slip out of his bed by daybreak and rush down town for an eye-opener. Now they remain in bed until breakfast time. Yes, how things have changed.

Worth Living is a Life In Washington Park
The River Shore Will be for Recreation and Pleasure.

You can take the children, go in bathing, teach them to swim and at the same time give them (particularly the girls) one of the best exercises a person can have. It promotes deep breathing, which strengthens the lungs, it develops the chest. It exercises the entire body and is enjoyed by everyone that knows how. The cooling water is exhilarating, it aids digestion. You will never regret teaching the children to swim.

ON HOT AFTERNOONS what real comfort there will be in a seat with in the park along the river shore, where you can get the pure, cooling, Southern summer breezes, fresh from nature's gift, the Pamlico River.

THEN A STROLL down to the water's edge. Such a restful view of the rippling waves, dotted with white sails, giving tone to the tired feeling and strength to the drooping spirits. Could anything be more conducive for a resident section?

YOU CAN'T SHOW ME the child that does not delight in a romp upon the clean white sand along the river shore, or fill his bucket or make letters in the sand to see them wash gradually away. The moral effect of such occupation is good.

PICTURE YOURSELF under a tree in your own yard watching the many strollers along the broad sidewalks, some lounging about in the park or making merry the time by teasing. Others in their stylish turnouts driving up and down the picture avenues. Then, yonder through the trees, the river is dotted with pleasure boats; here, near the shore, robust children, brown and healthy, paddling their craft. Further out, a race, both hopeful and happy and healthful.

Such scenes of beauty will make bright many, dull hours as now spent, cooped up in a narrow, crowded street, where the vision, year in and year out, falls on the same scene across the way.

IT'S AS NATURAL for a child to keep busy as to sleep soundly when it is well. If you don't give them play grounds and playthings to occupy them, they drift into mischief, hang around stores, where they learn to smoke and chew, which, with cheap candy, keep them sick most of the time. There will be no stores in Washington Park, though playgrounds (free from the dangers of the streets), as well as others. Don't you feel that you should give the children the advantage of such surroundings? You know it will make them stronger, happier and healthier children.

I TELL YOU, IT'S A FACT few people in this world have a more perfect home than offered in Washington Park. It's ideal, and as the number of lots are limited you had better send in your name at once. Just drop me a postal saying, "I'm interested in Washington Park," and I will call on you. Bear in mind, all the choice lots will soon be sold.

A. C. HATHAWAY.

MISQUOTED MR. ROLLINS.

In giving an account of F. H. Rollins' auto trip to central Carolina in yesterday's News he was misquoted. The paper stated that Mr. Rollins said "that if Beaufort County farmers make good crops and secure a good living thereby then the farmers in Wake County and counties contiguous ought to be millionaires." In giving Mr. Rollins' statement the Daily News should have said that if "the farmers in Wake county and counties contiguous could make a living with their varied obstacles then Beaufort County farmers with their natural advantages and resources should become millionaires."
