There's Comfort In the Breeze Swept, Dustless Homes in WASHINGTON PARK.

That no one shall solicit fares for a public hack except the driver, when seated on his vehicle, and it prohibits anyone riding on the seat with the driver.

New York's preparation for the establishment of an ice manufacturing plant to supply the public with ice at cost marks the second notable step of the municipality along paternalistic pathways.

There have long been maintained twenty-nine milk stations, where pasteurized milk has been sold at a figure barely covering the cost. The completed plans for the installation of an ice making plant were prepared with a view to delivering the ice so manufactured to these milk stations, to be sold there at cost, that is now such a boon.

The installation cost of the ice manufacturing plant in the basement of the hall of records is between $30,000 and $35,000. The machinery will turn out twenty-five tons of ice daily. This makes the cost of a twenty-pound piece at milk station 2 1/2 cents, figured at the cost per ton of $2.50. This places ice within the reach of 2,500 people daily, who according to reports by the city's board of charities have to do without it because of practically prohibitive cost.

The output of the hall of records plant figures to nearly one ton of ice a day to every milk station. Subdivided, 100 of those needing it most are able to procure twenty pounds of ice at cost.

Borough President McAneny asked recently that $40,000 be transferred from a surplus in the street cleaning department for the installation of the hall-of-records ice manufacturing plant. As soon as the funds are made available the machinery will be rushed to installation, and New York's second experiment in paternalism will begin.

I never saw my neighbor or his wife, but nothing could ever convince me they are not both excellent people, because my window overlooks their back yard, and their back yard has a clear carpet of turf and trees and several blue bushes beautifully in bloom, and all without a trace of careless disfigurement. And I hear the voices of children and the sound of children's games there on an evening. I believe in the testimony of back yards. They seldom deceive you, while the front is generally built for that especial purpose.—Chicago Inter Ocean.
