ALREADY DOWN AT HARD WORK

MISS HARDING OF GREENVILLE IS A VALUABLE ADDITION TO THE FACULTY OF SCHOOLS IN WASHINGTON.

Although the Washington Public Schools only opened on Monday, September 14, the student body as well as the teaching force have thus early settled down to hard work.

Superintendent Campbell, the new executive head of the schools has already made a very favorable impression with his assistants, the students and the parent and no doubt under his efficient management the public schools of the city will clear next year with the best record in its history.

Incidentally this paper in giving a list of the teachers for the present session in last Monday's issue omitted the name of Miss Beulah Harding of Greenville who is teaching the grades 6A and 7A.

THE NEW YORK WORLD TO MR. BRYAN.

William J. Bryan's salary as Secretary of State is $12,000 a year. He has justified his activities as a lecturer by the statement that to meet his ordinary expenses without encroaching upon his personal fortune he must have an income of not less than $20,000 a year.

The World assumes that the crux of this question is, therefore, the sum of $8,000 a year. Mindful of many things in the proposition that it hereby makes, notably the dignity of the American Government, the circumspect behavior of its principal officers and the success of the Administration of Woodrow Wilson, all of which have been given the most sober attention, it modestly makes this suggestion to Mr. Bryan:

If you will devote your entire time to the duties of your office and refrain during your tenure from lectures or other addresses at which admission fees are charged, The World will pay you on behalf of the American people regularly during your incumbency of the office of Secretary of State the sum of $8,000 a year, with no obligation on your part except to observe the one condition herein expressed—New York World, Sept. 17.

JUST COULD NOT REMAIN AT HIS HOME

GEO. E. MAJOR LEARNING OF STORM DAMAGE IN WASHINGTON HASTENS HERE FROM NEW ENGLAND.

RESIDENT OF HERTFORD, N. C.

CAME TO VISIT HIS FRIEND MAYOR F. C. KUGLER AND TO EXTEND TO HIM HIS SYMPATHY IN HIS GREAT LOSS.

"I just couldn't remain at my home long enough to even glance at my mail when I learned of the great loss you had sustained by the recent storm." Thus George E. Major, of Hertford, N. C., greeted Mayor Frank C. Kugler upon his arrival in the city yesterday via the Norfolk Southern Railroad.

Mr. Major is a member of the Major & Loomis Lumber Company, of Hertford, N. C., and for the past five or six years the Kugler Lumber Company, of which Mayor Kugler is at the head, has been selling lumber to this firm. Mr. Major at the time the storm occurred, was touring the New England States in an automobile and did not hear of the damage done in this section until several days after it happened.

DREDGING COMPANY TUG RAISED THIS MORNING

The Norfolk Dredging Company as was stated in yesterday's paper, is now engaged in raising their dredge and tug sunk during the late storm.

One of their tugs was brought to the surface of Pamlico river at the buoy yard this morning and this afternoon the work of raising the other tug at the draw of the county bridge is in progress. The work is being watched by many citizens.

TO INSURE THEIR PROPERTY AGAINST RECENT DAMAGE

to insure their property against recent damage, when Home Rule comes to Ireland. Society has forsaken the tango and turkey trot for the moment. The new feed is open-air sleeping.

The pioneer of the movement, which has spread all over the British Isles, from shooting boxes in Scotland to fishing huts in Ireland, is a well-known Scottish hostess, who one day, as an experiment, had twelve beds placed for guests to occupy, if they liked, in different parts of her spacious garden.

Fashionable people do not dream of sleeping under a roof at this time of the year. They have their beds taken out of doors into the garden. Ladies who have almost begun to despair of their complexions take heart again after a few weeks trial of this "all-weather" treatment.

Another landmark of medieval Paris, a street where, some scholars think, Dante lodged in the Latin Quarter when he was exiled from Florence, is about to pass away. This is the narrow, winding Rue de la Parcheminerie, near the foot of the Boulevard Saint Michel, and one of the oldest streets in Paris.

Six centuries ago, however, it was the great book-selling center of Paris, and here were turned out all the French missals and books of hours, exquisitely illuminated, now bought for tens of thousands of dollars by great collectors. In one of his works Dante is said to mention that the most wonderful things he saw in Paris were the missals and books.
