QUESTION OF MOMENT

Doubtless as this reaches its readers throughout the county the excellent article in Monday's News over the signature of Superintendent W. G. Privette, of the County Schools, will have been read and digested. This is well, for he discusses questions that demand serious thought and consideration from every citizen, whether favorable to good schools or is willing to let them remain as they have been for decades back. Superintendent Privette makes timely suggestions, and then has the manhood to say, if those differing with him will make their grievances known he is broad-minded enough to see more than one side. Every citizen in Beaufort county should read the article of Superintendent Privette, and if he does not take the Daily News endeavor to secure a copy—for what the superintendent has to say is certainly worth while and presents questions squarely of great moment if the future welfare of the county is to be considered. Mr. Privette well says: "No man doubts that a good school is the best investment and with the church is the greatest asset any community can have"—this being true and no one can gainsay it, it is not the duty of every law-abiding citizen to put his shoulders to the wheel and see to it that the public school system of one of the best counties in North Carolina are placed in the very forefront of progress and thrift. Of course, there are some who would retard its progress, to use the phrase of Superintendent Privette, the "red school house" of former days. Its time we do away with sentiment and for the days of Auld Lang Syne sake and give the cause of education and the rising generation better opportunities, a better chance, if you please, to go out in the world and battle for what the world has in store. If we are to progress and grow we must not neglect the education of those who are to follow us. The time is the present.

FOR SHERIFF.

To My Friends and Democrats of Beaufort county:

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of Sheriff subject to the Democratic primaries and convention. I desire to say to my fellow citizens of Beaufort county, should you honor me with your support and elect me your sheriff, I would endeavor to give you an honest and clean administration of all the duties pertaining to the office.

As for collecting the taxes, I would be as lenient as I could to do my duty, and by so doing, reflect credit upon myself and county.

Thanking my friends throughout the county for any support you may extend to me, I am,

Very respectfully, WILLIAM M. BUTT, Bonnerton, N. C. 3-23-eol 1wp.

PARIS DECLARES THAT SKIRTS WILL REMAIN FULL AT THE HIPS

Peg-tops and panniers, tunics and ruffles, mark the new skirts and seem to be growing in favor every day. Often these hip draperies are of chiffon or net; the new soft taffetas are especially suited to panniers, as it has just body enough to require no bones or wire. The flowered taffetas are very quaint and pretty, giving an 1850 effect which is fascinating. No. 8236 shows an afternoon costume of plain and figured taffetas. The skirt is a peg-top design with the folds laid in softly about the waist. A soft sage green is the color, with the side tunic showing just a suggestion of pale Persian shades and a cleverly arranged waistcoat of the same shade of green velvet. Taffetas may be had in black and colors from 11 to 14 a yard. They range in width from 36 to 44 inches. To copy a dress for a girl of 18 it requires 4 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. No. 8200-8201 is a dainty suit for spring. The coat is developed in golf-line trimmed with contrasting revers and a few buttons; the skirt is a two-piece design with a slightly draped effect brought about by two crosswise pleats in front. This design requires for size 36 2 1/4 yards of 36 inch material for the coat (8200) and 2 1/4 yards for the skirt (8201). No. 8236—sizes 14 to 18. No. 8200—sizes 22 to 42. No. 8201—sizes 22 to 36. Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, Dept. of this paper.

NOTICE OF SALE. Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain Chattel Mortgage executed by H. B. Stillely to George H. Elliott which said Chattel Mortgage is dated March 13, 1913, and is duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Beaufort county, in Book 176, page 271, the undersigned will, on Monday, the 6th day of April, 1914, at the "Stillely Building" on Water street, in the city of Washington, N. C., (said building being the one heretofore occupied by Southern Bottling Works), at 12 o'clock, M., offer for sale, to the highest bidder for cash, the following described articles of personal property, to-wit: All that certain stock of goods, wares and merchandise, fixtures, book accounts, machinery and paraphernalia now owned by the said H. B. Stillely and used in connection with the bottling plant known as "The Southern Bottling Works" which said bottling plant is located on the South side of Water street in the city of Washington, N. C., between Market and Bonner streets, in what is known as the Latham-Stillely Building. It being the purpose and intent hereto to cover all of the property of every kind, character and description, located in, used in, and connected with said bottling works as aforesaid. Default having been made in the payment of the note secured by said mortgage, said sale is to be made in accordance with terms of said mortgage. This 14th day of March, 1914. GEO. H. ELLIOTT, Mortgagee. Edward L. Stewart, Att'y. 3-16-4wc.

The Scrap Book A Doctor Analyzes Emergence

Unintentional Frankness. The Bishop of London recently told a story of a visit he paid to Buckingham Palace to see King Edward. As he was going in he passed the late Lord Salisbury coming out, but the statesman did not seem to know him.

To the course of conversation he mentioned the meeting to King Edward. "No," Lord Salisbury never was known anybody," replied the king, and going to a bureau he took out a photograph of himself and handed it to the bishop. "What do you think of that?" he asked. "A very excellent likeness, sir," replied the bishop. "Well," said the king, "when I showed it to Salisbury he looked hard at it for a minute and then said: 'Poor fellow! I wonder if he is really as stupid as he looks!'"

Look on the Right Side. Look on the right side. The best side, the bright side. Troubles will vanish are less. Turn from the "blue" side. And look on the true side. The side that is used with a soap. Leave the old wrong side! And go to the new side. Banish both worry and fear. Wrongs shall be righted. Your heart be delighted. Some gladness for all there is here. Come from the lone side. And walk on your own side. Your share of life's pleasures to gain. Your life is all gladness. Instead of all gladness. Come over; don't suffer pain.

The Dressed Alternative. The long suffering wife of a habitual drinker in a Mississippi town secured notice on the local trashman keepers—this was in the old days before prohibition—that she would prosecute any one selling her husband intoxicants. So when the gentleman in question, slightly wavered on his pins but dignified and scholarly as always, dropped into his favorite saloon that evening and called for a toddy the barkeeper only shook his head.

"Can't do it, colonel," he said. "Sorry, but you know how it is." "But, sir," said the colonel, "I am a patriot. I furnish for the cooking draft." "All right then," said the barkeeper, "have a glass of water on the house!" And he produced a cold, brimming glassful. "For a moment the colonel contemplated the offering sorrowly. Then he raised it to his lips and in a resigned tone of voice said: "If the great philosopher Socrates could drink hemlock without a shudder I suppose I can swallow this!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Not For Sale. Henry A. Franck, the author, telling of a trip down the spine of South America from Bogota to Buenos Aires, said: "Eggs are plentiful, though in the Andes, when you enter a shop with four bushel baskets of them sitting around in various corners, the inevitable reply is 'They are not for sale.' The proper and a la mode answer to this is to say in your most fluent and regal Quechua: 'Of course I know very well they are not for sale. No Andino lady who considers herself a lady would think of selling eggs'—men while you are filling your basket or sacks with the fruit in question—but I have taken three dozen. How much do I owe you?" "The answer is sure to be a meek 'Dos reales, senor!'"

Soothed His Nerves. Hans von Bulow, the famous leader and composer, was one of the most eccentric members of a professional wherein eccentricity is common. It is related that one day, while walking the streets of Vienna, Bulow came upon a restaurant band on its way to the middle of the street, and joined the small boys about the drummer. Following the band, he kept bowing to the surprised drummer, applauding him at almost every beat.

"That is rhythmic! Excellent! That's the way I like to hear it!" he continued to ejaculate, to the surprise of all and to the great delight of the small boys. Persons in the street began to recognize the famous pianist and joined the procession, so that the band had one of the largest audiences to which it had ever played. Bulow listened attentively to the end of the last piece and then made a deep bow before the drummer and his instrument. "Thank you," he said. "That was refreshing! That puts my nerves in good condition again!" It is said that when the drummer learned who his strange admirer was he was the proudest man in the regiment.

Fair Play. Daniel Webster was once used by his butcher for a bill of lard standing. Before the bill was settled he met the butcher on the street and to the man's great embarrassment stopped to ask why he had caused sending around for his order. "Why, Mr. Webster," said the tradesman, "I did not think you would want to deal with me when I've brought suit against you?" "Not true!" said Mr. Webster. "So me all your wish, but for heaven's sake don't try to starve me to death!"

Great Men Need Little Sleep. There are some remarkable cases on record of derangements from the customary amount of sleep. Many persons have reached advanced age without ever having more than one or two hours' sleep out of twenty-four. General Fitchburg informed Dr. Gilbert Blane that in the course of his active campaigns he had for a whole year not more than one hour's sleep in the twenty-four hours. Frederick of Prussia and Napoleon, as a general thing, never devoted more than three or four hours to sleep.
