

Brilliant Easter Wedding at Saint Peter's Yesterday

Mr. E. Hoyt Moore and Miss Marie Louise Archbell Married at Three-thirty O'clock in the Presence of Large Company. Left on Afternoon A. C. L. For a Tour Southern Cities.

One of the most beautiful Easter wedding ever consummated in Washington took place yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in historic St. Peter's Episcopal church, when Miss Marie Louise Archbell was happily married to Mr. E. Hoyt Moore, one of the city's popular young business men.

For weeks this auspicious event has been anticipated by the large number of friends of the couple and yesterday nearly every pew in the church was occupied by a well-wisher.

The church chancel was a perfect bower of choice evergreens, palms, Easter lilies and roses. These ideals of beauty, backed up by the soft rays of the numerous waxen tapers, made a scene of beauty over which the star of memory will long linger.

Prior to the entrance of the bride, party Mrs. R. A. G. Barnes, organist, and Mr. R. A. G. Barnes, violinist, rendered a very enjoyable musical program.

No woman ever plighted her troth to the man of her choice under brighter skies, for as the marriage bell pealed forth its solemn approval, the "King of Day," too, decreed that all the elements smile its best greetings to another one of Washington's fair daughters.

Promptly at the appointed hour and to the inspiring strains of Longfellow's, the bride party entered the edifice.

Misses Annie Thomas Archbell and Marjorie Hoyt first entered, pulling the ribbons up the center aisle. They were closely attired in frocks of white batiste and white lace hats. Arriving at the chancel steps they were quickly followed by the ushers, Messrs. Angus D. MacLean, Charles Dixon, Aurora, N. C.; Walter Wolfe and Charles Moore, entering the church in pairs.

Miss Margarette Archbell, of Kingston, N. C., the bride's first bridesmaid, handsomely gowned in white crepe trimmed in shadow lace with picture hat and holding a bouquet of pink Killarney roses, wended her way up the aisle alone.

Two bridesmaids next followed, being Miss Elizabeth Hurt, of Locust Grove, Md., and Miss Mary Tankard. Two groomsmen, Messrs. Allen Moore and Joseph Mayo, followed. Miss Anita Hurt, Locust Grove, Md., and Miss Genevieve Hall, of Centerville, Md., followed by Daniel G. Fowle, of Atlanta, and Mr. Edmund Harding.

The bridesmaids were attractive gowns of white crepe trimmed in shadow lace with white picture hats, carrying bouquets of pink Killarney roses. Arriving at the chancel they assumed their allotted places.

The dame of honor, Mrs. Marion Guerdard, of Memphis, Tenn., attractively dressed in grey crepe de chene, with picture hat and carrying a bouquet of white bride's roses, entered the church alone. Following the dame was the bride's maid of honor, and cousin, Miss Mollie G. Mayo, dressed in blue figured crepe de chene, trimmed in shadow lace with white picture hat, holding a bouquet of white bride's roses.

Miss Mollie Gaskill Guerdard, Memphis, Tenn., handsomely attired in white batiste, with lace hat, did the honors as the bride's flower girl.

The bride entered leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. M. T. Archbell, who gave her away in marriage. Always attractive in manner, she was especially so and a cynosure of all as she slowly wended her way up the aisle to the chancel steps, where she was met by the groom and his best man and brother, Mr. Henry Moore. She was attired in an exquisite going-away gown of blue with hat and gloves to match. Her bouquet was lilies of the valley and orchids.

Arriving at the altar and while the organ spoke softly the sweet strains of Tremble, Rev. Nathaniel Harding impressively pronounced them as one for better or worse.

Just before the entrance of the party Miss Ruth Butler sang most charmingly and delightfully, "O Perfect Love."

Amid a shower of congratulations and best wishes, and this in theirs, from the entire city, Mr. and Mrs. Moore drove to the Atlantic Coast Line depot and left on the 4:30 train for an extensive tour of the Southern cities. Upon their return they will reside at the home of the groom's mother, Mrs. J. B. Moore, until their new home on West Main street is completed.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Archbell and counts her friends as legion. She is a graduate from "The Hannah Moore College, Maryland. A woman of rare gifts, both in intellect and manner, she is of that type of Southern womanhood that always attracts and captivates.

The groom is among Washington's rising, energetic and popular business men, being manager of the Carolina Distributing Company, a large wholesale concern here. He is a son of Mrs. J. B. Moore and enjoys the confidence and esteem of a wide circle.

The gifts received were numerous and costly.

Those attending the wedding from afar were:

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Fowle and son, Atlanta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Hoyt, Williamston, N. C.; James R. Gaskill, Edward Bynum Gaskill, Tarboro, N. C.; David Archbell, Wilmington; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Archbell, Bath; Miss Margarette Archbell, Kingston; Misses Elizabeth and Anita Hurt, Locust, Md.; Miss Moore Chapel Hill; Mrs. Marion Guerdard, Memphis, Tenn.; Miss Mollie Gaskill Guerdard, Memphis, Tenn.

On Monday evening from 9 to 12 Miss Mollie Mayo charmingly entertained the bride party and friends; Monday afternoon from 3 to 6 Miss Mary Tankard was at home in honor of the bride party and on Tuesday evening from 9 to 12 Mrs. M. T. Archbell entertained.

NEWS STAFF MAN VISITS IDEAL FARM

Last week a member of the News staff enjoyed the privilege of driving over one of Beaufort county's largest farms, that of Dr. D. T. Taylor, accompanied by the most jovial of managers, Mr. D. D. Glascock.

This farm comprises about 600 or 700 acres and the operations carried out are on an extensive scale.

We were first taken around among the numerous tobacco beds and before the trip was completed we had viewed more than 5,000 yards of the beds, the plants being small, but did not show any serious damage by the recent cold weather. Dr. Taylor will set in tobacco this year about 250 acres, which alone, will mean much to the Washington market.

After viewing the tobacco beds we were taken through his cabbage and there we saw the prettiest field of cabbages to be found in this section. More than 50,000 head were in one plot and large enough. They were just beginning to head, and judging from the reports, cabbages will be worth a good price this season, and the doctor will probably feel that he is a better farmer than doctor and the profession may suffer the loss of much of his valuable time.

In another part of the field we saw early peas, which promises a splendid crop, these in addition to cucumbers and other truck, in which the doctor specializes, should reap a handsome profit for their efforts this year and classes him among the largest farmers of Eastern North Carolina.

We were next shown through the

President Prepares Congress For Drastic Action In Mexico

General Huerta submitted to an executive session of the Mexican Senate today the demands of the American government for a salute to the flag. No answer has been received by the Washington government up to a late hour today.

President Wilson announces intention of seizing Mexican ports unless Huerta apologizes for indignities offered the United States.

The Atlantic fleet sails from Hampton Roads for Tampico and Vera Cruz.

The transport Hancock sails from New Orleans with a regiment of marines equipped for field service in Mexico.

President Wilson confers with leaders of both branches in Congress. Tells them there will be no more quibbling with Huerta. Developments show that series of insults and not arrest of marines at Tampico caused adoption of a drastic policy by the administration.

Huerta will salute the American flag or the Atlantic fleet will seize Vera Cruz and Tampico. What happens afterward depends on Huerta. That is President Wilson's determination. Leaders in Congress with whom he conferred agreed there was ample precedent for such action.

Not only the Tampico incident, but a long series of indignities offered to the United States to the conspicuous exclusion of other foreign nations represented in Mexico has convinced the President and his advisers that the United States has been singled out for "manifestations of ill will and contempt."

Official dispatches to Charge O'Shaughnessy have been intercepted by the Mexican censor.

A ship's orderly ashore in full uniform in Vera Cruz on business of the United States, was arrested and released while a nominal punishment was meted out to the local officials. These hitherto unpublished facts dairy which, under the same management, has been operated most successfully.

We can not give Dr. Taylor credit for all the success of his extensive farming operations. He is indeed fortunate in having the services of so energetic a manager. Mr. Glascock is ever on the job and gives personal supervision to all the work. He has been with Dr. Taylor for some time and is better known as "Bussie, the Milkmaid."

PUNGO SCHOOL CLOSED ON APRIL 8TH

Address Was Delivered By Prof. C. W. Wilson of Greenville. School Rendered a Most Delightful Program. Other Speakers.

The commencement exercises of the Upper Pungo school, came off Wednesday, April 8, beginning at 10:30 a. m. The day programs was begun with song. The Old North State by the school, after which Professor C. W. Wilson, of E. C. T. S. Greenville, N. C., lead in prayer, and again the school sang, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," which was followed by an encouraging helpful and influential address by Professor C. W. Wilson. His general subject was, "The Influence of the Rural School," and treated his subject ably. In his plain way he impressed his hearers as an earnest speaker, and gave us many good thoughts. This is the second time we have been fortunate enough to have him with us in this capacity, and feel greatly benefited by his coming. Following him was a short talk by County Superintendent Privette, after which a most luxurious picnic dinner was served on the grounds, and was enjoyed thoroughly by everyone present.

The day program thus being ended Professor Wilson and Mr. Privette bade us good-bye, and returned to Washington. Everyone feeling well assured of another day well spent, returned to their homes to make ready for the night program, beginning at 8 p. m. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, long before the hour had arrived the house was filled to its utmost capacity. The exercises began promptly at 8 o'clock, with some very careful selections of instrumental music on the organ with violin accompaniment, by Misses Mary Johnson and Carrie Spruill.

The program was as follows: Commencement sang (chorus), by school.

Recitation, Welcome, Ellen Carter.

Musical song, several girls.

Hoop Drill, by twelve girls.

Frog Hollow (Lyceum play), several boys and girls.

America (chorus), by the school.

Then was given a short but impressive address by Mr. J. D. Paul.

His subject was "Don't Be a Coward." He defined coward for his purpose as "One who lacks courage to do his duty." He spoke for more than half an hour, and held the close attention of his audience every minute of his time. Suffice it to say he handled his subject ably, showing that he has in him the ability to make a great speaker.

Next was instrumental selections by Misses Johnson and Spruill.

Bashful Boy (play), four boys and four girls.

Murder Will Out (play) several girls.

Valedictory, Bryan Harris.

To our beloved teachers, Misses Spruill and Tuten, is due much praise and credit for their earnest endeavor to arrange a good program which was thoroughly enjoyed by every one present. Amid showers of good wishes from friends and parents and pupils Miss Spruill left for her home in Roper, N. C., and Miss Tuten a few days later bade us good-bye and returned to her home in Edward.

We regret very much to see them leave us, for not only have they been doing good work in school, they have been a great help to us in our society work. Long may the good lesson they have taught linger with us.

DR. S. L. KREBS TO ADDRESS THE CITIZENS

At School Building Tomorrow Night—Subject—Manners That Win in Business. Rare Treat in Store. Admission Will Be Free.

A rare treat is promised the citizens of Washington tomorrow night, especially so to the merchants, salesmen and clerks. Through the efforts of the merchants of Washington, Dr. Stanley L. Krebs, of Philadelphia, has been secured to address the citizens tomorrow night at the school auditorium at 8:30 o'clock. His subject will be: "Manners That Win in Business." This address will be especially helpful to salesmen and clerks. The buying public will thoroughly enjoy it. It promises to be instructive, humorous and entertaining.

Dr. Krebs was here about one year ago under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce and so delighted and charmed all who heard him that he has been induced to make a return visit. He is a very attractive speaker and should be heard by a large crowd. The address will be free.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM WILL PLAY GAMES

The members of the Washington High school baseball team left this morning via the Atlantic Coast Line for Tarboro and Rocky Mount. They face the Tarboro team this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon in Rocky Mount try conclusions with the High school team of that town.

Pres. E. A. Lowther Leaves Today For An Absence of Several Weeks

President Edgar A. Lowther, of the Washington Collegiate Institute leaves the city today for a six weeks' absence, to fill engagements in churches where he will represent the cause of Christian education in the South. He will fill appointments in Syracuse, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie, in New York State, in New York city, and its suburbs. Next Sunday morning President Lowther will speak at the First church, Syracuse, N. Y., and in the afternoon will address the students of the university in John Crouse College. The purpose of President Lowther's tour is to secure a patronage for the institute among the various churches visited, also to interest philanthropic individuals and organizations in needy students who are dependent on work and financial assistance for an education. He is also given an opportunity to present the problems of education that are peculiar to the South to the end that young people who are seeking employment as trained teachers and who have an ambition to serve where the need is greatest irrespective of large remuneration, may be induced to go into backward and undeveloped regions. Inasmuch as the institute was established for the sake of a large territory, extending from one end of the State to the other, President Lowther will stress particularly the need apparent in those rural sections that have been neglected and where boys and girls have had little opportunities for development. Having traveled extensively all the way from Cape Hatteras to the Appalachian mountains in the extreme West, he is familiar with the large field which includes our American white population in the mountain regions and along the islands of the eastern coast.

It is a growing conviction of educators that the nation in the future must look largely to the American population of the South to supply the brains and statesmanship that will be in demand in future generations. The north and west are being inundated by alien peoples who are not familiar with our American institutions and our traditions. We are facing a crisis in which it is a question whether America will be changed by the alien invasion or retain its individuality. They believe that the time has come when immigration must be restricted and time afforded through the right kind of education to mould our youth to the ideals of American citizenship. The South offers the best field in the nation today for educational progress. Here the school has an opportunity to minister to the economic, the intellectual and the religious development of a new South that is being rapidly transformed by the growth of the educational sentiment.

In leaving the city for another tour of publicity work in the interest of the Washington Collegiate Institute, President Lowther does so with a deeper conviction than ever of the promise and increasing influence of this new school. He will be accompanied on his trip by Mrs. Lowther, who with her little daughter, Carolyn, will spend a few weeks at Ocean Grove, N. J. Mrs. Lowther is convalescing from a serious illness brought on by overwork in the opening of the school when she gave all her energy and time toward making possible its opening under very difficult and embarrassing circumstances. She gave up the privacy of her own home for several weeks in order that classes might be held and
